LUCIAN CARSON'S RISE IS RAPID

Fourteen months ago William Lucian Carson, son of Marshall and Mrs. J. K. Carson, left Eugene as a private cadet in the aviation corps. This week he has returned on a furlough wearing the shoulder bars of a second lieutenant. Fourteen months ago Lucian Carson was an impetuous boy, after 14 months of stringent army training he has a look of maturity about his youthful face, an expression in his eyes that inspires confidence in those coming in contact with him.

From private to corporal, sergeant, student and then flying cadet, young Carson has graduated after honorable flight at a posturing ground at Wichita Falls as a flying cadet.

"The eyes of the army," said there.

Lucian Carson has never had a high school education. He was too busy with an infatuation for electricity and electric lights. Before he was 10 years old he was one of the most trusted inmates of the local power concern. His inventive genius and talent for electrical engineering had won him a place as a chemist at Eugene, Oregon, where he was stationed when the United States called for men to crush the German menace. He was among the first to go.

Lieut. Carson was first sent to Kelly Field, Texas, and then to a flying field near Dayton, O. At Dayton young Carson won an appointment to an officers' training school at Princeton University. Finishing the right course at the New Jersey college, he was sent to the Texas field as a flying cadet.

"I don't believe it would be possible for a man to spend a year at harder work than I have," says Lieut. Carson. "At Princeton I plugged away until I thought I would burst. I was certainly glad when that course was over, and I received my diploma. That insignificant bit of paper, for what it represents, will always mean more to me, I think, than anything else of a similar nature."

CHANDLER SIX SHOWS GENUINE SERVICE

"The meaning of the word 'service' surely is explained and its use justified in connection with the performance of Chandler cars," says C. F. Gilbert, local Chandler dealer.

"A four passenger roadster, purchased by the B. F. Goodrich Company, Akron, Ohio, that has been used for about eight months as a tire testing car, is conclusive evidence of Chandler stamming. And tire testing crews are not content with anything but the gentle handling of a car. In fact, the very nature of their work demands rough usage of the car.

"With above 55,000 miles recorded on the speedometer and a tire average of over 9,000 miles, it is a good proof of the service merits of the Chandler Six, and just because this Chandler roadster has shown such excellent performance, the Goodrich Company has purchased another Chandler roadster, also for tire testing duty.

"There are vital reasons, certainly, why Chandler cars give the service they do," continued Mr. Gilbert. "The motor is the dominant feature of the Chandler car, of course. Owners have named it the 'motor' motor, but the Chandler is not simply a motor with a car built around it. The complete harmony of the whole car impresses even the casual observer. The motor is mounted on rubber, it is a close fit, and in this change the purchaser may have the choice of an equally fine body in a number of various line types."

CASCADE LOCKS GOES OVER THE TOP

James Henderson, Cascade Locks postmaster, was here last week to report the record of that district in sales of War Savings Stamps. Cascade Locks, although only 457 in population, has done a record in sales of stamps. Henderson says that a heavy car has gone over the top with $245 in excess of a $25,000 quota. William Hill, local collector, took the limit of stamps, a total of 200 of the little bonds.

Mr. Henderson says that Columbia Highway workers state that a heavy car will be completed by July 20. Mr. Henderson, however, thinks it will be August 1, or later, before the Highway is opened for traffic.

MANY SHEEP ARE ON DEE PASTURE

W. E. Kirby, rancher of the Dee Flat district, last Saturday received from Shanks a shipment of seven carloads of sheep, to be pastured on logged off lands of the Oregon Lumber Co. Mr. Kirby has previously received from eastern Oregon points 18 cars of lambs and sheep.

The wild peavines and other wild vegetation in the logged off areas, it is said, fatten the sheep very rapidly. The animals are carried from this city to Dee by special train on the Mount Hood.

Soldier's Couch is a Cure

Private Harold Hamel, 6th Regiment, Ft. Adams, R. I., writes: "I was troubled with a bad cough for three months. I tried a sample of Foley's Honey and Tar and felt greatly relieved. I have since used two six bottles and I recommend Foley's Honey and Tar and will always keep it on hand." Foley's Honey and Tar covers inflamed, irritated surfaces with a soothing, healing, cooling and reflex coughs, colds, croup and bronchial affections. Sold everywhere.

MISS GILL PLEADS FOR ARMY NURSES

The following, a plea for the Army Nursing Corps, is part of an address delivered by Miss Edythe Gill, chief of the nursing force of the base hospital at Camp Fremont, Calif., a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gill, of the Congregational church at Redwood City, Calif., recently.

Nearly four years ago a shot was fired, the echo of which has penetrated every nation of earth.

Thinking men and women everywhere were aware that the war was to be a terrible one. They did a little more than one year ago did it really come to us in a vital way.

Our entrance into the war marked a new page in our history. The call to arms has been many times before the ablest and best of our nation's young manhood. The mother heart had been touched deeply and the cry for the protection of their sons has been heard, and the organizations for extending the medical, moral and spiritual welfare of our men, sets a record among nations.

The calling of thousands of men together in more or less crowded hospitals has necessitated through the demands of disease of different kinds. With this condition, another need was made manifest—that of nurses.

Two sources have fed this growing demand, the Red Cross and the Army. Nurses have been trained and sent to the outbreak of the war constitutes about 200 nurses. Several calls of this kind have gone forth and now there is dire need. I believe a campaign is about to be waged to call forth 15,000 nurses. Alas that will take our ablest and best of nurses.

I am quite disgusted with the attitude of press and picture concerning the duties and work of nurses. We who have given three of the best years of our lives to raising and from 10 to 15 years in sick rooms and institutions of various kinds, realize the emptiness of the hand-clapping and bow-bathing sentiment. Sec. Daniels in his call for nurses gives their rightful place when he says: "They are not a part of our military organization as he who carries the musket."

What would we think of our nation's men if they sat on the front line calmly holding their hands, making no attempt to overcome the enemy? I feel the same way about nursing. We are entitled to fight, not with rifles and life, shot and shell, but surgery, medicine, etc., to restore to health those who are wounded or stricken by disease.

Nurses are being sent over in large numbers. A recent letter from New York city told of 1500 being notified for overseas duty, and as we gather the Army lists are still being needed. The duty of sentiment has passed and I believe the spirit of patriotism burns as deep and true in the nurse's heart as he who carries the gun.

Oh, times I wonder which requires more of us, to be over the top, or to be so frequently near, and take the chance of being killed and wounded, or to remain behind the lines and receive the remnants of our splendid manhood as they come the victims of shot, shell, gas and shrapnel, and by tireless hours of watching and working bring them back to a reasonable degree of health and usefulness.

Can you imagine what the presence of a nurse must and does mean to the sick and wounded? Many of our boys have never been away from home before, and the nurse is the only touch of home and its associations that come to their lives, and in the hour of distress and loneliness she is a large place and in their inspiration in more contented and cheerful convalescence.

A recent letter from a nurse in France says the ratio of nurses to the unaccompanied for service is 1 to 100.

When we think of the war, our men, and I would not that you return to any thing that is being done, yet it might be well to suggest that the same thought be extended to the nurses. The constant attention of the nurse with most excellent diversion from any line of work can be had. I hear you say what can we do that will help? One thing you can do is to put the nurse in her rightful place in press and picture—a working force rather than a mere decorative diversion from any line of work. The need for nurses is great. We have now some 20,000 nurses in the United States. If you are a practical nurse, or before marriage a graduate nurse, and you know of some able nurse in your locality who is willing to do what you could do, you can do it and let her join the ranks.

The training school of nurses' aides is still under discussion, and as yet there is no place for any but the graduate.

As I try to picture the future I can see that after the last shot has been fired, the smoke clouds rolled away and God's air free from the deadly gas, the nurse's work will have but begun. The part in the reconstruction cannot be told, but suffice it to say that the nurses' and other closely allied forms of work will be in the forefront. I feel that I am as truly serving my country as any one. It matters not to me where, but the spirit in which I give my service.

There are hundreds more of our very best nurses whose attitude I voice.

In all the walks of life we find the sentimentalist who rushes in and for a few days, so to speak, carries all before him, but service such as we are called upon to give does not thrive or stand upon sentiment. These pass from the stage of action into oblivion in a short time, but she who serves her country and humanity sense there is no next act but to give for her profession, which calls forth the best that is in her remains, ministering to the physical as well as the mental, moral and spiritual in such ways as she herself is unimpaired. Men are very quick to differentiate between the nurse who is a sentimentalist and the one whose profession is her inspiration.

To me the nursing field is one of the biggest if not the biggest open to women. In our day it may be the best, she must have the best for her inspiration. I would that every nurse know the strength of the power of God, how it can help under pressure and strain, giving self possession and peace which otherwise would be impossible.

"His word is true and never fails. My grace is sufficient for thee." "As thy day so shall thy strength be," and "I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly." These are some of the promises that may be ours for the asking, but many turn a deaf ear and are careless and indifferent so the material things of earth must be provided to counteract the tension of duty hours.

If there is a nurse here who has an able body and no ties that keep her, come over and help us. Serve under the colors that our boys may be restored to health and may live to share

EXCHANGE SHIPS MANY BERRIES

The Fruit Growers' Exchange, which will discontinue with the wind up of the strawberry deal of this year, has shipped a record lot of berries for its members. The Exchange, the warehouse and storage plants of which have been sold to A. E. Woolpert and son, W. R. Woolpert, local representatives of Van Winkle & Co., shipped 16 cars of commercial pack strawberries and 14 cars of fancy. Heavy shipments of less than carload lots were also made.

The strawberry business of the Exchange has been managed by F. W. Dill, who has made application for service in the army.

SPIRIT OF FOURTH WINS CALIFORNIAN

The spirit of patriotism as expressed by Hood River people in celebration here has probably won the community another resident. C. R. Armstrong, of Los Angeles, Calif., on a prospecting tour of the Northwest, came here to observe the birthday of Independence. Participation in the entertainment features provided by the Red Cross Chapter in won his enthusiasm.

Mr. Armstrong left for Dee Friday morning saying:

"I am going up there and buy a ranch. The Hood River spirit certainly strikes me just right."

At the Thursday night auction Mr. Armstrong was an automobile kit. "You folks seem to like me here," he said, "see what you have given me."

Apple Estimates Dwindle

While government estimates recently placed the Hood River valley apple crop at 1,200,000 boxes, revised estimates of shipping concerns out the yield of this season to 900,000 boxes, the approximate shipments from here last year. In 1916 the Hood River valley reached a record high mark, approximately 1,200,000 boxes of apples having been shipped.

The fruit of this season, it is stated by inspectors who have visited orchards, will be of better size than the average and will be free from fungus or rot.

Laraway Repairs Calcigraph

The complicated calcigraph, a machine used by the Oregon-Washington Telephone Co. for recording the time of long distance telephone conversations, became in bad order last week. The machine was taken to W. F. Laraway. Although he had never seen one of the instruments before and despite its complications, Mr. Laraway set to work and soon had it in excellent running order again.

Are You One of Them?

There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Scott, Balaclava, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. My druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonder fully and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence.

West Wind Disperses Mosquitoes

After several days of calm, warm weather, a cooling west wind sprang up Thursday night. The breeze from the coast was doing wonders, not only relieving the humid warmth, but driving away hordes of mosquitoes that were making life uncomfortable for residents accustomed to sleep in tents.

The mosquitoes breed in the still water and sloughs left as the Columbia freshet subsides.

the plays of the cause for which they gave themselves.

Victory, not peace, must be written on our allied banner before this world will again be a place where we would seek to live. Buckle on the armor of patriotism, fill the place where you are, inspire, encourage and protect those who are in the forefront, and because of the place they fill may be unable to protect themselves. When this strife is over, may there be no blot on history's page because of duty unfulfilled by either individual or organization.

Pray for us, the nation's nurses, that we fall not, or fall short of the highest and noblest aims of our profession.
