Real newspapers want all the legitimate news, and the correspondent who would truly serve his community will send the news, all of it, as it breaks. The good accompanies the bad. Fortunately, here in Hood River most of our news is good news, and from the boosting standpoint Hood River gets the best of the deal always.

Mr. Ravlin did not believe the interview of F. M. Cox, critical of Hood River highways, should have gone to the Oregonian. If this had not been legitimate news the Oregonian would certainly not have printed it.

We expressed our disapproval of Mr. Cox's views on road matters last week, but we have just as much disapproval for Mr. Raylin and his attitude. He would put an end to a real and beneficial news service from Hood River.

Hursey Dakin, who is a partner with his cousin, W. W. Dakin, has arrived home from overseas, where he participated in action with the First Gas Regiment, wearing a Distinguished Service Cross. He and a comrade won the cross for valiant service in wiping out a machine gun nest and locating four others which were later silenced by artillery fire.

Mr. Dakin, who considers his escape miraculous, although his comrade was shot through the left side in the charge on the machine gunners, did sustain a scratch. His pack was shot from his back and his clothing ripped into shreds by machine gun bul-

Evinger Catches Big Ones

While numerous sportsmen are catchng salmon trout and steelheads at intervals, the record for the season is held by "Rusty" Evinger, of the Heights. Since the big fish began the run several weeks ago, Mr. Evinger, an inveterate angler, has averaged six big steelheads a week. One day he landed four big fish. Yesterday he landed a 10 pound steelhead.

The Heights fisherman uses both a spoon and salmon eggs for bait. He will not say which is his favorite.
