HERRING FISHERS DO WELL

Splendid Catches and High Prices Have Been the Rule Among Them for Many Years Now.

The herring fisher works always on the night shift, not because the fish feed at night—herring take no known bait—but because they can be seen at night.

Taking their cue from the whale or seagull as to the location of the herring, the boats go off two by two for they work always in couples late in the evening to the fishing ground. Arrived there, they stop their motors, and glistening silently over the dark waters they look for the fish.

One of the men bumps the anchor two or three times on the bow of the boat, and instantly a patch of water lights up with a bright phosphorescent gleam. It is the herring, and the ring-net (now more generally used in the west of Scotland than the driftnet) is lowered. It is held up by corks and has a small light at one end. This the partner boat picks up; they circle around the herring until the two boats come together, when most of the men climb into one boat, where they draw the net, with the herring, on board.

In this little Highland village the men of the last two generations have done well with the fishing. Their boats, complete with nets and motor, cost between £300 and £400, but only the other night a couple of boats, owned by brothers, divided £750 between them for one night's catch.—London Mail.

COMFORT BAGS PLEASE ALL

Nothing Given Out by the Red Cross is More Appreciated by the Soldiers on Service.

The following is an extract from a letter of a Red Cross hospital representative:

"The men like the comfort kits better than anything the Red Cross gives them. We have asked dozens of them what they like best of all that is given them—tobacco, magazines, amusements, etc.—and they all say at once the comfort kits and toilet articles. They come in from the front without even a toothbrush, and when I send the bags around by the other patients, they come back and say: 'Say, you oughter see how pleased those guys were—they said it was just like Christmas. They were all sitting up in bed looking at the things in their bags.'"

"The other day one man who had lost his right hand, called me over to him and said: 'Here, I'll donate my sewing-kit. My wife has got to do mine after this. I'm out of it. You can give this to some other fellow who needs it.' He had heard the others asking for sewing-kits all down the ward. They are in great demand and very hard to get."

Gift From French Republic.

Three phrases from President Wilson's war messages will be woven in a costly Gobelin tapestry France is having made as a gift to the city of Philadelphia. The tapestry is to be hung in the museum in the Quaker city and is about to be placed in the hands of the workers at the famous Gobelin factory for completion, according to an exchange.

The tapestry will be 21 feet by 15 feet. It will be full of life and color and will have an atmosphere of enthusiasm and patriotism in portraying troops departing from Philadelphia for Europe to participate in the war of justice.

Below are three panels containing those phrases from President Wilson's messages:

"Right is more precious than peace."

"We have no selfish end to serve and desire no conquest and no domination."

"We shall fight for democracy."

Horsemen Knew Their Business.

The value of having practical horsemen in charge of remount camps is shown in provisions made for shelter. When it came to building the great depots required at each of the camps they ordered open sheds instead of barns—or for the severe northern climate, sheds closed on one side. To the city-bred humanitarian who saw thousands of Uncle Sam's horses and mules standing out in the cold, this seemed cruel, and complaint was entered. But by practical test it was shown that the horsemen were right. Those animals which were housed up did not thrive as well as the ones which were kept in the open. When talking with the head of the remount division the thing he was most proud of was the fact that our horses were kept in better condition with fewer losses, than the horses of England or France, and that we did this with a much smaller man force, largely because we gave them open-air treatment.

Lookouts Develop New Disease.

"Eye work is perhaps the biggest part of submarine hunting," writes William G. Shepherd, in Everybody's, "and it has its evils and penalties. Woe to the man on a destroyer who is gifted with that strange, unexplainable talent of being able to see by night. There he sits. He is almost a 24-hour-a-day task. And he finally gets the 'periscope eye' and is sent ashore to get well, if he can. His eyes weep tears of pus by day and, after sleep, his lids are glued together with granulation. It is a new disease of this mad century.

"You keep looking through those high-powered binoculars like an old lady reading through her spectacles, one of the boys explained to me, 'until finally they seem to be pulling your eyes out of their sockets.'"

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. It alone is enough to convince one that it is a medicine of more than ordinary merit. Give it a trial and you will find this to be the case.

FINS, FURS AND FEATHERS

In an opinion given by Attorney General Brown to the district attorney for Harney county, the shooting season for ducks, geese and other migratory waterfowl has been definitely settled. Confusion has existed in the minds of many shooters on account of a difference in the federal and state season. The state cannot legislate within the closed season of the federal regulations but it can legislate within the open season. The federal open season is three and one-half months, but the state, if it cares to, may close any portion or all of this federal open season. The shooting season, therefore, which must be observed by hunters throughout Oregon, is as follows:

For Multnomah, Clatsop, Columbia and Tillamook counties, the open season begins October 1 and closes December 31. In all other counties of Game District No. 1, which comprises all that portion of Oregon lying west of the summit of the Cascade mountains, the season opens October 16 and closes January 15. In all counties of Game District No. 2, which comprises all that portion of Oregon lying east of the summit of the Cascade mountains, the open season begins October 1 and ends on December 31.

The original draft of the Game Code included a uniformity of seasons, but the position was taken that the federal regulations were unconstitutional, and therefore, would be inoperative. Since the legislature has adjourned, two federal courts have upheld the federal regulations. It was the clear intent of the legislature to give equal hunting seasons. This would have been accomplished had not the federal law intervened. The state law is inoperative and will be enforced insofar as it does not conflict with the federal law. The dates given above are those within which hunters may shoot and be within both the federal and state laws.

Hermann Prege ended terror for Japanese fruit growers of the Oak Grove district when he killed a 300 pound male bear. Bruin for several weeks had been making life miserable for the Nipponese ranchers. Grabbing for bugs, he had destroyed many strawberry plants and prune and apple trees looked as though a cyclone had struck them. It was the habit of the bear to make visits to the orchards in the nighttime, pull off branches from the trees and then eat the fruit leisurely from broken boughs.

The Japanese had set traps all over the region, but the bear, furnishing many roasts for local epicures, avoided the snares.

Silver gray squirrels, protected in this county at all times of the year, are becoming very numerous in the city. At the Park street school the children, feeding the handsome animals, have scores of pets. The squirrels are very active just at present harvesting walnuts from numerous trees in the city.

The following party of hunters returned last week from eastern Oregon with two fine bucks: J. C. Johnson, E. J. Copper and Ed Miller. The men left here week before last and attended the Round Up. On their way back they stopped to fish and hunt. The two deer were killed near Mitchell.

But few ducks have appeared in the Columbia lowland marshes in the mid-Columbia. While scores of hunters have visited the marshes, no one has tagged any birds yet this season.
