

I Owe My Life to PE-RU-NA

Mr. McKinley's letter brings cheer to all who may be sufferers as he was. Read it:

"I can honestly say that I owe my life to Peruna. After some of the best doctors in the country gave me up and told me I could not live another month, Peruna saved me. Travelling from town to town, throughout the country and having to go into all kinds of badly heated stores and buildings, sometimes standing up for hours at a time while playing my trade as auctioneer, it is only natural that I had colds frequently, so when this would occur I paid little attention to it until last December when I contracted a severe case, which, through neglect on my part settled on my lungs. When almost too late, I began doctoring, but, without avail, until I heard of Peruna. It cured me; so I cannot praise it too highly."

MASONIC BODY HONORS COL. TUCKER

The body of Colonel W. F. Tucker, ranking colonel of the retired list of the United States Army, who died at the Cottage hospital Friday morning from internal hemorrhages, was escorted from the Anderson undertaking parlors to the railway station by members of Hood River Commandery of Knights Templar. On arrival in Portland Saturday night the body was taken at once to the Scottish Rite Masonic cathedral, where it remained in state until Sunday night when the Kadosh funeral service was held at 9:30 o'clock.

While Col. Tucker, whose age was 65, was a native of Boston, his father, William Francis Tucker, and family moved to Chicago while Col. Tucker was but seven years of age. The father was a prominent pioneer business man of Chicago, having been for years at the head of the Stock Yards Bank.

Col. Tucker is survived by his widow, who accompanied the body to Portland and who left with the remains Monday for Chicago where, beside his parents and grandparents, interment will take place in the old family lot at Graceland cemetery. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Wilder, of Elmhurst, a Chicago suburb, and Mrs. Jennie Tucker Johnson, of Bloomington, Ill. Seven nephews and two nieces survive.

Col. Tucker received his first commission as a major of the paymaster's corps in 1882. He filled many important positions during his military career of 27 years, having retired because of ill health 10 years ago while stationed in Chicago. Scores of army officers, whom he then ranked, have won international note since the great world war began. When in Chicago he was on the staff of Gen. Fred Grant. In the Philippines he was on Gen. Leonard Wood's staff.

Col. Tucker was a warm friend of Gen. Pershing. He was a ranking officer of Gen. Liggett when the latter was acquainted of a detail that would take him to the army school at Fort Leavenworth. Col. Tucker was fond of recalling the incident when Gen. Liggett, then a major, told of his assignment. Gen. Liggett was not satisfied, fearing that he would be buried in a continual round of routine. But Col. Tucker pointed out the opportunities that would await a man with years of experience at the army school in case his country entered hostilities of a large scale.

In addition to serving in the Spanish American War, in the Geronimo campaign, in the Philippines and the Arctic, Col. Tucker had seen service at most of the army posts along the Canadian border.

Col. Tucker had won the hearts of Hood River people during his 10 years of residence here. He was always a military bearing, and he carried himself with an old time courtesy. He was fond of children, and he and his wife on their visits to Hood River found delight in visiting families of friends with little ones.

When he came here seeking health he purchased a tract of forest land overlooking the upper Hood river and with one of the finest views obtainable of Mount Hood. In memory of Manila days it was called El Corregidor. There in seclusion with his brother-in-law, George Frey, he had cleared the land and planted a large orchard acreage, and was just beginning to realize the rewards of his labor by the first apple crops when death came.

Col. Tucker's death was a direct result of disease contracted in the Philippine Islands. Ten years ago he underwent an operation that surgeons feared might result fatally. His life was undoubtedly prolonged by the simple life of an Upper Valley orchardist. He had gained recuperation and was in fairly rugged health when the fatal hemorrhages started. Performing the lighter tasks of the farm had become a part of his daily life. His death results from the freeze that visited the district recently. Alarmed over the weather conditions he had aided in transferring apples to a place of safety. Thus, it is likely, he broke the abdominal adhesions of an old operation.

Col. Tucker lost consciousness Tuesday afternoon of last week and for 34 hours was in a stupor. He regained consciousness just before he passed away, recognizing Mrs. Tucker with his last remaining vitality.

WEDDINGS

Wilder-White

Services at the Methodist church were interrupted Sunday night by Dallas Wilder, of Olympia, Wash., and Miss May White, of The Dalles, who sought the ministrations of Pastor Helmick in speaking the words of the wedding ceremony. As the service was in progress Mr. Helmick noticed a man's head in a partly opened door at a rear vestibule. He drew the door and again inserted. Mr. Helmick announced that seats were plentiful and invited the man in, but the head again withdrew.

A. Canfield then went out to investigate. He found the prospective bride and bridegroom. They acquainted Mr. Canfield with their desires and when the service was ended Mr. Helmick officiated at their wedding service. They had secured a license at The Dalles, coming here by an early evening train. They journeyed on to Olympia Monday.

Bosse-Guignard

In the presence of a few friends and members of the family, August Bosse, recently returned from army service, claimed as his bride Sunday Miss Laura Eva Guignard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Guignard, at whose West Side orchard home the wedding occurred. Rev. Robert Chapman officiated.

Because of the busy apple harvest season, both of the young people aiding in packing the crop on the Ideal orchard place, a honeymoon will be postponed until later.

Mr. Bosse is a Kansas City boy, but came to the valley in 1912. He has been employed by his father-in-law on the orchard place and in the manufacture of an apple grading machine. He enlisted in the quartermaster's corps in Portland in 1917. Later he was transferred to the motor transport corps and was promoted to a sergeantcy. He was at Newport News ready to sail for France when the armistice was signed.

Consignment of coats, suits and dresses direct from wholesale house. Will be displayed for a month and to be sold at a very special price. Monday.

When in Portland stop at the modern Palace Hotel, at Washington and 12th streets, in center of shopping and theatre districts.

HOW TO BUY A TRUCK

Consider first the maker. The worth of a truck depends entirely on the sincerity, the honesty and the permanency of the manufacturer.

Having satisfied yourself that the company is all right, next satisfy yourself that the truck is right.

Years of service, durability—ample power—low upkeep—quality that merits its price—ability to deliver goods at all times—these are and should be your demands of a truck.

We urge you to investigate the Chevrolet One-Ton Truck on this basis, and see for yourself that where manufacturing ideals are high, the metals, motor and workmanship are sure to be of the best.

Truck

Now that Apple Season is pretty well over, you are planning on how you will take care of next year's crop.

solved the problem for quite a few this year.

With its Pneumatic Tire equipment you can go out into your Orchard. You can haul to the receiving station. Haul your own box shooks. You do not have to depend on outside hauling—and outside hauling means taking your turn with hundreds of others.

The OLDSMOBILE Truck makes you independent. Look it up now for next year. Get our literature. Study its many advantages, then—ask the man who owns one.
