MCCORMICK DEERING INTERNATIONAL

YOU know these trade names. Your father and grandfather knew three of them. They knew in their time, and you know today, that these names stand for the highest quality farm machinery in the world. McCormick built the first practical reaper; Deering sold the first twin binder and was a good-time pioneer; and William Parlin was one of the first steel plow pioneers. The lines of harvesting machines and plows started by these farm machine builders have been growing and developing ever since. Other machines have been invented and developed by the same manufacturers, and every new machine and implement has had built into it the years of manufacturing experience and farm knowledge accumulated by McCormick, Deering, Parlin and their successors. Now all of these machines and implements have been merged into one line—the International Harvester. The reputation of every machine and implement in this line is the same.

WE SELL THE INTERNATIONAL LINE

HOOD RIVER FRUIT COMPANY

WANTED Orchards and Farm Lands

If you have an orchard or desirable piece of undeveloped land in the Hood River Valley that you wish to sell let me have a full description of the same and I will investigate it. If your property is found to be satisfactory as to condition, soil, and price, a contract of sale will be entered into with you.

Only desirable properties which are offered for sale at a reasonable price will be listed for sale through the Farm Land Clearing House now being organized in the City of Portland, with offices in the Henry Building, for which I am local representative.

We are prepared to give the best service possible and such inquiries as come into the Portland office looking for desirable orchard properties, will be sent to Hood River, and the undersigned will show such listings as are offered for sale through the Hood River office; failing to satisfy the buyers in the Hood River Valley, the would-be buyers will be sent to other Orchard Districts in the states of Oregon and Washington.

KEEP SNOW PLOWS GOING, DR. THRANE

Dr. M. Thrane has proposed that all rural residents cooperate with county officials in keeping trunk highways clear of snow this winter. Dr. Thrane says that the horse and buggy on local highways is an exception today and that practically all travel is by way of automobile.

"It is therefore up to us," says Dr. Thrane, "to keep the roads open. If the county will distribute snow plows I believe the people of the county will see that they are operated and that the roads are broken immediately after a heavy snowfall. Unless the snows are unusually heavy plows will not be necessary, but it is well to be prepared."

Hood River has not had a heavy snowfall since 1915 when predictions of Indian George were realized and the blanket piled up to a depth of nearly five feet. While the ancient aborigine weather prophet is no more and local folk are somewhat in doubt, oldtimers say this is the winter for another deep snow.

Big Mosier Plant Being Finished

Walter Colby and August von Hacht report that the big new $25,000 community packing house and storage plant of the Mosier Fruit Growers Association is now practically complete. The structure is wired throughout in the most up-to-date manner. Mr. Colby says:

The new building, which has a capacity to store a half of the district's apple crop, is built of concrete tile, covered with a pebble dash finish.

Mr. Kaesser Finds 'Em Crowded

In a telephone message to his wife last week E. E. Kaesser, in Portland for a few days of business, stated that he was on the verge of returning home because he couldn't find hotel accommodations. Mr. Kaesser had tried four of the leading hotels, and all were full with a waiting list. No hope was given him by any greeters, but he finally decided to try a fifth and was fixed up with a cot.

Mr. Kaesser telephoned to tell other prospective Portland visitors to remain at home if they didn't have hotel reservations.

Ruhnke's Curtains Stolen

Al Ruhnke, who with his family, moved last week to a West Side ranch place, says someone initiated a new form of housewarming.

"They entered my garage and stole all of the side curtains from my automobile," says Mr. Ruhnke. "It is well enough, however, to be optimistic. They might have taken the entire car."

Mr. Ruhnke has reported to authorities and he believes the despoilers of his machine will be apprehended.

Floyd Wright Has Narrow Escape

When Floyd Wright was towing a snowload of coal from Hood River to a highway construction camp between here and Mosier last week, the swell from a passing steamer awamped the cow, sinking it in deep water. Mr. Wright was alone, and had difficulty in saving his launch. The smaller craft was being dragged under when he cut the heavy tow cable with his pocket knife.

Constipation

Most laxatives and cathartics afford only temporary relief and should be used only for that purpose. When you want permanent relief take Chamberlain's Tablets and be careful to observe the directions with each package. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

NATURE'S WAY

Alcohol and dangerous sedatives are fast falling into disuse. When the body is debilitated the effectual means of restoring strength is which does what your regular food should do but all too often fails to do—nourishes and strengthens the whole body. It is the results that follow the use of Scott's Emulsion that have made its multitude of friends.

The Norwegian cod liver oil used in Scott's Emulsion is selected in our own American laboratories. Its purity and quality is guaranteed. Scott & Bowman, Bloomfield, N. J., 19-29

Repairing Broken Trees

(By Gordon G. Brown)
During the past season many trees have been split wide open at the crotch because of an excess load of fruit. The recent snow has also been responsible for much of the damage.

Such trees are in danger of heart-rot unless precautions are taken to prevent further growth. The wood is directly exposed to the elements and there is little to prevent such fungus growths from obtaining a hold. Growers may be inclined to take the view that since pruning wounds as a rule do not develop rot fungus it follows that wood exposed as a result of a split is likewise equally resistant. The writer would take exception to this opinion, because pruning wounds if properly made are in direct line with the cambium tissue and heal over rapidly. A smooth surface dries out readily and this condition is favorable for resistance to decay. On the other hand a rough, uneven surface as a result of a jagged break is able to retain moisture. As a rule when limbs are restored to a natural position after breaking down an absolutely tight fit is not assured and moisture can reach the very heart of the tree. Thus conditions for the establishment and development of heart rot are ideal.

The writer suggests that before limbs are restored to natural position copper tacks or nails be driven directly into the exposed wood. These tacks, when left in the wood permanently, have a tendency to disinfest the wound as they gradually go into solution. Painting over the exposed wood with a good strong mixture of Bordeaux will do further protection. After getting the limb back in place cover the entire line of cleavage with grafting wax so as to prevent moisture from getting in, if possible. Make a note of the location of such trees and renew this covering as necessary until the wound is sealed over.

Under California conditions it is reported that wounds painted with the most impervious paints have proved the poorest protection against wood rot infection. The painting appeared to be the proper thing in that the cut could be sealed, thus presumably protecting it from infection. In this it failed, however, owing to the fact that sap pressure behind the painted surface is nearly always sufficient to rupture it. At the same time the paint retains enough of the sap to keep the wood saturated and it provides an excellent medium for the growth of the wood rot fungus.

The grower should look after all such broken down trees without delay. Don't wait until the bark has dried out or has become separated from the sapwood to such an extent that it cannot be laid over. These matters should be looked after right away. Furthermore, the entire orchard should be inspected and all trees in danger of breaking down under future crops should be wired up strongly.

OUR REPAIR POLICY

Recharging, repairs, testing—these are part of our service. We have the training and equipment to do this work well, at the least price consistent with good work.

Cheap work isn't really cheap at any price, and would only lose customers.

But we regard this service as a part of our obligation to make Willard Batteries last as long as possible at least expense.

Another of our obligations is to distribute for Willard a battery that will last longer and doesn't need so many repairs—the Willard Battery with Threaded Rubber Insulation.

It gives longer life with fewer troubles just as a cord tire does. Drop in and let us tell you its remarkable performance record after over four years of service.
