A silver tea was given by the missionary division of the Woman's Union of the Riverside church at the home of Mrs. H. G. Cooper Wednesday afternoon of last week. The lawn of the Cooper home were arranged to represent an oriental setting. Young women, garbed as Japanese maids, served. Bennett Brothers announce recent sales of Dodge touring cars to the following: Homer Lovell, A. L. Page, Frank Hutson, of Parkdale, and the Jennings garage, of White Salmon. This list completes a recent carload. The firm expects the arrival of another carload of the popular cars this week.

Slocum & Canfield have tented via living Shriners with a display of handsome mid-Columbia pictures. Photographer Fred Donnerberg, who now takes pictures for the firm, of which he is a member, having recently bought the stock of A. Canfield, recently secured some excellent pictures of the Oregon Products displays.

Miss Georgiana Sienon, who spent the past school year at Holtville, Cal., with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Kealy, arrived home Tuesday evening. She motored up from California with Mr. and Mrs. Kealy, who remained over for a day in Portland, but who will arrive here today over the Highway.

A prominent Hood River citizen asked what Kiwanis meant, of Mr. Woolley. His answer, "It means Oregon Life—go get em." Oregon Life is making a great increase in new business over 1919. They lead all life companies operating in the state. Contracts that please Talk with Woolley, Dist. Mgr., Oregon Life, The Dalles.

Mrs. F. E. Dean entertained her niece, Mrs. E. S. Williams, and husband, of Portland, over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Watts, of Oregon City, were also guests at the Dean home. Both couples motored here over the Highway. Mr. Dean motored with the guests to Mosier and through the valley. They were delighted with the scenic beauties.

Parties who have visited the ditch of the Hood River Irrigation district at a point on Green Point creek, where a slide recently interrupted the flow of water, estimate that it will cost $1,000 to make permanent repairs. Volunteer orchardists restored service temporarily and rains have prevented the accident from causing Oak Grove berry growers damage.

E. O. Blinchar and C. H. Vaughan, who represented Hood River at the annual convention of the State Bankers Association in Eugene last week, declare the session to have been one of the best ever held. Mr. Vaughan was elected chairman of the executive committee of the organization for the ensuing year. Mr. Blinchar was chairman of the resolutions committee.

Miss Margaret Hanlon, here from Alaska visiting her sister, Mrs. E. W. Van Horn, had planned to return home this week. Her visit, however, will be continued for several weeks. She was informed that bookings for passengers from Seattle for the next several weeks would be limited exclusively to members of the Mystic Shrine. Hundreds of Shriners, on the coast to attend the Portland Imperial Council, will make a side trip to Alaska.

Pruning Cane Fruits
 By Gordon G. Brown

Considerable difference in the management of cane fruits has taken place during the past few years. Probably no district has done more to demonstrate different systems than the Puyallup valley growers. Formerly the policy was to grow raspberries and blackberries in hills, four to five feet apart. When the new canes were four feet high they were headed so as to throw out laterals. Now, however, they have found it more practical not to prune at all during the growing season but to permit the canes to grow as tall as possible. Where this was done, planting was about three feet apart in the row.

During winter the side shoots are trimmed off, leaving a long whip shaped cane. These canes are trained to a wire or permitted to lie over a hop pole. This plan gives a much longer harvesting season, since the earliest and consequently the highest priced berries are borne on the ends of these long canes. It has been estimated that where the grower removes the top of his bush berries he is cutting off at least 25 per cent of the crop and by so doing causes his harvest to ripen at nearly one time instead of over a much longer period.
