AN APPEAL TO RE-PUBLICAN VOTERS

Your Central Committee has not been called upon for a special activity so far during this campaign; things have been moving along quietly in the right direction, and this, one of the most important elections since the close of the Civil War, seems assured to our party so far as the presidency is at issue. In looking over the situation as it seems to us we are, however, a little anxious lest the country may be robbed of the full result of a Republican victory, by a failure to give the new administration full working power through a Republican majority in both branches of congress. We are Republicans because we believe the country is safest and most prosperous when managed upon the principles of our party. This belief is justified by what has been the history of the nation since our party was first given control in 1861. Its success has been so marked that since the election of James Buchanan in 1856 but two men have been elected by any party other than ours, and no other one will be before 1924, at least.

Ours has become the dominant party because our kind of voters—Republican voters with Republican minds and Republican morals—have associated themselves together in such numbers as to make it the greatest aggregation of voters of the land, an aggregation of the kind of voters that you and we are. By moral as we use the word we do not mean simply the code governing individual personal action, but rather that character, habit and principle that put men on one side or the other in questions involving public morals, public justice, honest administration, redemption of pledges and the promotion of what is right and best. If the judgment of the American voters has been right on such questions, then our party has been right. If the opposing party has been right then the people have been wrong. In every case the moral issue upon which parties have divided, our position has been right, and upon every such issue upon a question of governmental policy we have been right.

The men we have placed in power since we stood the test and been approved by the people that no Democratic candidate today boasts of being like any living or dead Democrat, but rather wants to be looked upon as the follower of a Lincoln, a McKinley or a Roosevelt. Governor Cox in his western tour sought votes not because he is like any other Democrat but because he claims to be the follower of an honored Republican who is now dead, but whose no Democrat honored or followed while living.

There is a natural reason why the American voters have centered their interest upon the presidency so strongly as to make it certain beyond any doubt that Senator Harding will be the next president of the United States; that is, seven years of Wilson dictation, with a party in congress willing to submit to such dictation, has made the presidency seem unduly important, while forgetting that no Republican president ever has or ever will assume such power, and that no Republican congress has or ever will submit to such dictation. It is partly because of a rebellion against one man government that the tide is setting in our favor so strongly, but when we have destroyed the one man government and restored the government to its constitutional coordinate branches, we shall need the right kind of a coordinate branch to help carry on the government upon the lines of our policies and principles. The elephant and the donkey don't make a well matched team; they don't work well together either abreast or in tandem. The elephant will pull and the donkey will kick—they are built that way. The elephant pulled over the budget bill and the donkey kicked it back.

While our party has no monopoly of political virtue, yet the decision of the American voters almost without exception, and always under ordinary political conditions is that we have been right. That is a vote of confidence, a verdict for our kind of men with our kind of minds and our kind of political morals. Let us enter judgment on that verdict while we remember that Robert Stanfield is a Republican and George Chamberlain is a Democrat.

Why are we Republicans if we do not believe in Republican men? Are we Republicans if we do not believe in their policies? Mr. Stanfield believes our party is right, and will be loyal to it. Mr. Chamberlain believes his party is right and will be loyal to it. We believe our party is right. Shall we be loyal to it? We must answer at the polls. We shall vote to give Mr. Stanfield a chance to vote what we want voted or to give Mr. Chamberlain a chance to vote what we do not want voted.

Southern Democrats are often Democratic because of envy and jealousy, but Northern Democrats are Democrats because they believe their party right on issue. Mr. Chamberlain is a Democrat because he believes that way. We admire him for many sterling qualities, one of them is his loyalty to what he believes, but if he believes wrong, by so much more certainty will he vote wrong.

True patriotism requires every voter, every one of us, to register our vote for what is believed to be the best and best. Let us vote as we believe for Republican men and Republican principles.

Lutherans to Dedicate Church Sunday

All arrangements for the dedication of the newly purchased Lutheran church have been completed. Rev. J. Rimbach, of Portland, will deliver the English dedicatory address in the morning worship, which will begin at 10.30. Rev. F. Hilgendorf, pastor, will have charge of the dedicatory act. An additional service will be held at 2.30 in the afternoon, at which Rev. J. Hilgendorf will preach in German.

The ladies of Immanuel Lutheran church deserve mention for the service they rendered in clearing the interior of the church, which had been vacant for an extensive period. They will also have charge of the decoration.

The financial committee reports as additional donors Louis Plog and the Butler Bank. The committee will continue its work this week.

The Immanuel church extends a hearty welcome to all.

"Capital and Industry--Keep Out"

WOULD YOU, AS A PATRIOTIC CITIZEN OF OREGON, PLACE SUCH A SIGN ON THE BORDERS OF THE STATE?

That is exactly what you will do if you do nothing to prevent the passage of measure No. 314 and 315 on the November ballot entitled, Constitutional Amendment Fixing Legal Rate of Interest in Oregon.

This measure proposes to limit the rate of interest in Oregon to 5 per cent. You can, by law, fix the rate of interest in Oregon, but you cannot, by law, force the loaning of money in this state, when a much higher rate can be secured elsewhere. The passage of this measure would force the withdrawal of the millions of foreign capital which is today loaned on factories, business and real estate in the state and send your local money owners outside of the state to better investments.

Passage of this measure would mean foreclosure of thousands of mortgages; would result in financial paralysis, and would mean widespread unemployment.

You, no doubt, understand the meaning of this measure, but have you talked to your neighbors and friends about it? We urge you to do everything you can to defeat this measure. Oregon's reputation as a sound state for investments requires that this measure be overwhelmingly defeated.

WOMAN'S CLUB NEWS

Members of the Woman's Club are making a study of measures to be voted on in November. At a meeting last week E. H. Hartwig addressed the women, explaining the different measures.

At last week's meeting, Mrs. C. O. Huelst, president, gave a report of the eastern Oregon state convention.

Miss Lenore Gregory, prominent young Portland pianist, will give the first recital of the season to be presented by the music department of the Woman's Club. Miss Gregory, now a teacher at the Ellison-White conservatory in Portland, will render the same program to be given this week before the MacDowell Club in Portland. Miss Gregory, who spent last winter in New York city the student of Mrs. Thomas Carrick Burke, is well known here, having taught in Hood River for two seasons.

At the next regular meeting of the club, next Wednesday afternoon, "Economy in Dress" will be the subject for discussion. Miss Helen Davis, of the O. A. C. faculty, will deliver a lecture and practical demonstrations in dressmaking and baking will be given. The Home Economics Committee, in charge of the program, has asked that all members equip themselves with notebooks and get suggestions.
