ELECTORS WARNED AGAINST ROORBACKS

As the election draws near some candidates, as in the past, are resorting to disreputable methods in an attempt to fool the voters by circulating falsehoods against their opponents at the eleventh hour. All voters should be on their guard against such methods of electioneering. Any legitimate arguments or reasons why one candidate should be elected and his opponent defeated will stand the test of publicity. The very fact that underhanded methods are being used, by some candidates and their friends, is or should be good evidence that they are relying on the credulity of the voters and should be condemned. We therefore urge all voters to be on their guard against seductive telephone calls, private letters ostensibly from the disinterested, and mouth to mouth scandal.

Some such "work" as above indicated is now being carried on against Senator Nickelsen. Among city folk they say he stood for the farmer and "against" business. In answer to this charge we quote the following letter which is self explanatory.

"Portland, Oregon, March 6th, 1919.
"Hon. J. R. Nickelsen, Hood River, Oregon.
"At a meeting of the board of directors of the Industrial Association of Oregon, held at the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday, March 6th, resolutions were adopted in which they desire to extend their appreciation for your efforts in behalf of your safe, sane and constructive legislation, and preventing the enactment of measures inimical to the best interests of the state, and particularly for your assistance in endeavoring to prevent the passage of vicious and destructive legislation. (Signed) Thos. McCusker, Secretary."

The above letter was signed also by the fourteen directors of the association.

Another slanderous report against Senator Nickelsen purports to say that he endeavored to pass legislation taking from farmers their irrigation rights and hand some over to certain corporations. This report is, like a snake in the grass, kept well under cover. Mr. Nickelsen has resided in this district 43 years; in business in Hood River 21 years; has been a farmer for the past 10 years. From practical experience he knows fully the many vexing problems that confront the farmer. The records of the senate show that he supported every measure proposed in the interest of the farmer. At his own request was appointed on committees of horticulture, irrigation and fish and game. He worked for better laws relating to spraying and inspection of orchards, and nursery stock imported from infested districts. On irrigation committee he investigated all bills relating to irrigation and water rights, he himself having a large farm in the Upper Valley for which he filed for considerable water in the year 1905. He was especially interested in seeing that no law was passed that would jeopardize the rights of the various farm claimants to the use of the waters of Hood river and its tributaries. He believes that the farmers should have the first right to the state's waters.

As to fish and game laws, he had such amendments made in the game laws as were requested by the Hood River and Wasco county fish and game associations, and worked for the general betterment of the fish and game code. His colleagues in the senate and the public press say he "made good." He has worked hard to give you his very best service, without fear or favor. The committee asks that you pay no attention to any false reports or roorbacks circulated against Senator Nickelsen or any other candidate and that you exercise the right of suffrage as thinking voters.

Butler Again on Tourist Board

At a meeting held in Seattle last week Leslie Butler was re-elected a member of the directorate of the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association. W. J. Hofmann, of Portland, was re-elected president. Because of the success of the association's work Oregon and Washington and British Columbia will be asked to double appropriations for the work.

Importance of commerce clubs and kindred organizations following up the work done by the association was emphasized. Names that are obtained at large expense through the association's advertising should be followed up and supplied with literature from every city and town in the Pacific northwest.

Directors pointed out that the likelihood of tourists or homeseekers coming to this section is increased many times when such prospects have literature of many towns upon which to base their decision. Each city should have a central tourist bureau, also, it was brought out, in which all civic organizations should share. In this way the greatest possible amount of good would come through giving tourists the information they desire without waste of effort, duplication or lost motion.

Old Bell to Be Transferred

While the city school board at first considered the installation of an electric gong system in the new Park street school, it has been decided that the old bell, which has sounded "books" to children for 25 years, will be transferred from the old building. The electrical installation, members of the board state, would probably have been much cheaper, but the sentiment of residents called for the transfer of the old bell. The daily sounding of the bell, too, it was said, prevented tardiness among the youngsters.

C. & M. Alliance Next Week

The North Pacific Coast conference of the Christian Missionary Alliance, Rev. Carpenter announces, will convene here next Tuesday. A large number of Pacific coast ministers are expected here. The conference will last until Friday evening.

Rev. E. J. Richards, of New York City, secretary of the Alliance, will be one of the chief speakers of the convention.

Rev. Bulgin's Son Killed

Arthur, 23-year old son of Rev. E. J. Bulgin, United Brethren evangelist, was instantly killed last week when he was accidentally shot by a fellow hunter, Ralph Lyons, near Sunnyside, Wash. His father was a member of the party. It was at first thought that the young man had accidentally killed himself. Later, however, young Lyons confessed the accident, and was received into the church by the father. Rev. Bulgin conducted a series of meetings here eight years ago.
