When subscribers desire a change in address this office should be notified promptly, and a week before if possible. Always give old address as well as the new. Also, Hood River subscribers should notify this office at once when changing their address from one rural route to another, or from city delivery to country delivery, or vice versa.

A recent issue of The Semaphore, published by the members of the O. W. R. & N. Club in Portland, contains a voluminous article on the resources of the Hood River valley. We have grave suspicions that one J. H. Fredrick furnished the article, which will be of inestimable worth to Hood River. The paragraphs of the long story of Hood River county are replete from every standpoint, but Mr. Fredrick could not conclude without saying something on the wonders of nature. We clipped the following paragraph:

No where has nature done so much for a country as in Hood River county. Here she has surrounded a valley of 60,000 fertile acres with a horseshoe of mountains, the toe of the shoe being represented by Mt. Hood, towering 11,225 feet in height, and the two heels by the abrupt mountains which rise majestically above the Columbia river. Forests, mountains, streams to suit the wildest imaginations, are reached in an hour's ride from the city. The largest game can be hunted in season and the many mountain streams, fairly teeming with trout, may be termed an angler's fairyland.

Not in many years have observers noted a keener interest in cooperative fruit marketing on a big scale than is now in the formative period. Along about 1912 cooperation was given material stimulus by a northwestwise agitation. But at that time application of the idea, by a proposed amalgamation of different sections into one large sales organization, was advanced on an erroneous basis. While less is heard about the cooperative movement today, it will gain a gradual impetus we think and be more permanent. Growers of the larger districts are becoming affiliated with strong local cooperative concerns.

If we remember aright, some 18 months ago some of the residents of the Hood River valley were incensed at an increase in the rates of the O. W. Telephone Co. A full consideration of the basis of the claim made to the Public Service Commission, however, satisfied most local users of phones that the service the company wanted to perform justified the increase. Today everybody seems well satisfied. We believe that the feeling of satisfaction is emphasized by the statewide flare-up following a heavy increase in rates granted the Pacific Telephone Co. It appears that we are getting along pretty well with our home company.

The Mount Hood Loop Highway is going ahead. A meeting was held in Portland Monday, when officials of Multnomah county, the United States Forestry Service and State Highway Commission conferred over plans of an early construction of links of the road on the south side of the mountain. It was announced at the meeting that the forestry service is now engaged in work on this side that will cost about $10,000. A contract will soon be let for an expenditure of $210,000 on this side of the snow peak.

The students of the industrial journalism department of the Oregon Agricultural College issued an O. A. C. Industrial Edition of the Benton County Courier on March 8. The work was performed entirely by the students. The make-up is excellent and the articles interesting and instructive. The industrial edition speaks well for the O. A. C. students of journalism.

We feel honored in having the Dalles seek our water. We wish we could spare some of it for them. Indeed, if there were no streams nearer to the Wasco metropolis we would be glad to let them share with us, but it appears that they will be able to get a domestic supply closer to their corporate limits.

A pitifully small sum will keep a Chinaman from starving. Give enough to ward off hunger and death of several of the yellow brothers in the far off provinces, where want, indescribable, is now mowing down human beings like the first winter's wind tossing colored leaves from their loughs.

It is likely that some of those advertisements of Portland concerns, extremely alluring, with their low priced groceries, to rural residents, will cease. We note that some large Portland grocery concerns, the prices of which have been sensationally low, have gone broke.

Recent court decisions indicate that beer may be sold by prescription from drug stores. We wonder if the medicals will reduce their prescription fees to the point of seriously competing with the numerous well established home breweries that have sprung up nationwide.

The government has asked that April 4-11 be national rat killing week. The city council has asked Hood River folk to furnish up their lawns and premises simultaneously. Now the council, too, should follow the federal instructions and eliminate the garbage dump rats.

It has been declared on frequent occasions that rabbits multiply faster than any other animal. In the realm of inanimates the wildcat distillery, judging by the successful raids of officers, takes first place.

In view of things that have been said lately about some of the apples packed here, we imagine that Mr. Flegel's praises on "the integrity of the pack" Monday night caused blushes.

We note that cannery contemplate paying only part cash for berries the coming season. We are fairly firm in the idea, however, that the relatively small proportion of canning Clark Seedlings will find a ready cash market.

You do not have to wait until week after next to clean up. Those promoting clean-up week will not mind it at all if you begin at once.

Tell your friends to come on in June. The Columbia Gorge hotel will be ready by then.

MANY DELEGATES AT REBEKAH CONVENTION

About 200 delegates of Rebekah lodges at Dufur, The Dalles, Tygh Valley, Maupin, Mosier, Hood River, Odell, Parkdale and Cascade Locks assembled here Monday for the 13th annual convention of District No. 19, Oregon I. O. O. F. Mrs. A. I. Vincent was presiding officer in charge of the convention. Mrs. Ora Cooper, of Dalles, secretary of the Oregon Rebekah Assembly, was present. Convention business was attended to in the afternoon. Monday night initiatory work was exemplified by Laurel Lodge degree staff.

Most interesting reports were read from the various lodges represented, especially those from The Dalles, Cascade Locks and Hood River. A number of instructive papers were read by members of different lodges. The following officers were elected for the next annual convention: Harriet H. Waite, of Cascade Lodge, chairman; Etta Demmon, of Parkdale, vice chairman; and Dora Sexton, of The Dalles, secretary. Cascade Lodge extended an invitation for the next convention, which was accepted.

The evening program consisted of a regular session of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, with all the visiting delegates present. The membership of the Oregon Rebekah lodges shows an increase of over 3,000 last year. At the close of the evening session the following program was rendered: Vocal solo, Mrs. E. O. Dutoy, Odell; piano duet, Mrs. Buford and daughter, of Cascade Locks; vocal solo, Miss Burger, of The Dalles. There were over 50 delegates from The Dalles, 22 from Cascade Locks, besides representatives from Dufur, Mosier, Odell and Parkdale, in all 200 people. Hood River lived up to her reputation as hostess and served a bounteous supper. The young people enjoyed an hour of dancing.

LAND BANK'S RESUMPTION INDEFINITE

The Spokane Land Bank, in reply to a letter from R. E. Scott, secretary of the East Hood River Federal Farm Loan Association, announces that it is unable to make a definite statement as to when the institution will be able to resume business and accept applications for new loans. The general disturbed status of the financial situation and the great demand for investment funds are given as reasons for the delay. The bank writes that a bond selling campaign will have to be organized. A new form of application blank is being devised. The interest rate of all new business, the letter states, will be six per cent.

Mr. Scott expects applications for considerable sums to be made here as soon as the land bank resumes its functions.
