LOWER BERRY PRICES ARE IN PROSPECT

Prices for loganberries will be fixed for the 1921 season at 7 cents a pound, raspberries at 12 cents, gooseberries at 7 cents and strawberries at 9 cents, in case the recommendations made by a committee of growers at a meeting in Salem last Saturday night finally are approved. The committee was expected to hold a conference with buyers next week and report back to the growers as an organization at a meeting held in Salem April 4. More than 200 persons, most of whom are engaged in producing some kind of berries, were in attendance at the meeting. Last year loganberries brought as high as 10 cents a pound, with the result that several Salem processing plants were forced to suspend operations. This was due to the inability of the processors to place their product on the market at a price that would attract consumers. The Plex company, which in past years has handled most of the loganberry crop in the Willamette valley, processed only a small quantity of the fruit last season due to the high prices. Whether the plant will operate this season has not been definitely announced. Growers are not optimistic with regard to the present berry situation, and it is not assured that the buyers will pay the prices recommended by the producers. In this event further adjustment of the scale will be necessary.

LEGION NOTES

A bulletin from headquarters announces that, without exception, April 1 will be the deadline for membership for this year. After that date all members who have not paid their dues for the year 1921 will become ex-members and their names will be taken off the rolls of the American Legion, as well as off the rolls of the Legion Weekly. Monday next, eight o'clock, in the Commercial Club rooms, the regular meeting for the month of April will be held. There has been some opposition developed to the building and home feature, and on this account any member who has an opinion on either side of the matter should make it a point to get out to the meeting. Important discussions and decisions will be made and a full attendance is essential, as the meeting is probably the most important one of the year. In addition to the building and home question there will be many other matters of importance to the membership which are scheduled to come up for decision. Dr. Abraham, Corbett Alexander, Len Allen and Chas. Allen will be in charge of furnishing something to eat for all hands. The official American Legion button may be obtained from Finance Officer Carmine at the meeting. Plans are being laid for an American Legion chess tournament in the very near future. For the benefit of members who play chess, and for those who do not, it is announced that it makes no difference as to the efficiency of the game, whether you are a beginner or a "shark," as all will be treated according to their ability, in the handicaps. Those desiring to play may get in touch with Comrades Herschner, Van Horn or Garnide.

Portland Symphony Orchestra Concert

A program of popular music is offered in the special Easter concert to be given by the Portland Symphony Orchestra in the Portland municipal auditorium next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. After a drive to Portland to visit with friends, an afternoon of music by a well trained orchestra is a treat. The entire symphony orchestra will play, as at all these concerts, under the direction of Carl Denton, conductor. In addition to the program of orchestral music, Easter carols will be sung by a mixed choir of twelve voices. Beautiful carols, reflecting the Easter spirit, have been chosen. The orchestra will play Massenet's Ballet Suite from "Le Cid," Debussy's "Second Arabesque" Overture from "Raymond" (Thomas); Rubenstein's "Kamenski-Ostrov"; and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

CANNING CONFERENCES CONSIDER INDUSTRY

Oregon capitalist, landowners, berry growers and cannery operators are cooperating with representatives of similar lines in Washington in preliminary plans to advance the canning industry of the two states. While no definite action has been taken, two sessions have been held within the last two days and those close to the conference predict out of these meetings will grow a corporation financed and managed to meet the growth of the small industry of the two states and to handle the production of the Pacific Northwest to the greatest advantage. Operating in the movement are the following prominent men of Oregon: Vice Presidents C. F. Adams and C. C. Colt, of the First National Bank of Portland; J. C. Ainsworth, president of the U. S. National Bank of Portland; S. L. Eddy, vice president of the Ladd & Tilton Bank at Portland; F. P. Kendall, Northside manager of the American Can Company; Frank E. Spencer, of Allen & Lewis, Portland; Truman Butler; Alfred C. Schmitt, president of the First National Bank of Albany, and W. S. Walton, cashier of Ladd & Bush Bank, Salem. The Washington men in the meetings are: Henry Rhodes, W. R. Rust, Chester Thorne G. H. Raleigh, H. V. Alward, all of Tacoma; W. H. Paulhanus, of Puyallup; H. C. Henry, J. W. Strangler, P. E. Truax, Reginald H. Parsons, W. L. Rhodes, H. F. Ostrander, and Gordon C. Corbaley of Seattle. Committees of these men are now gathering further information for use at future conferences for an agreement upon which the centralization of the fruit and canning interests of Oregon and Washington may be accomplished. These conferences are the outcome, it is understood, of investigations made by Will L. Finch, of New York, who has been in the northwest since the beginning of the year surveying and analyzing the conditions in the two states as related to the fruit growing, canning and marketing conditions. Members of the conference have taken the position that the business of preserving and marketing the fruit of the western valleys of the two states has not kept pace with the growth of the fruit growing industry, and that one of the biggest opportunities of the Pacific Northwest today lies in some such move as is now under consideration for the consolidation of those interests in the two states on a plane rivaling the California Packing Corporation. The rapid growth of the canning industry of the two states which eight years ago used only 3,000,000 cans and last year required 50,000,000 cans is pointed out by members of these conferences as an important reason for early work on such an organization as is proposed.

The Hood River County Game Protective Association has released 24 pairs of Valley or Crested quail in outlying sections of the valley. The birds were shipped here from the State Game Farm, J. H. Fredrick, who states that a shipment of Bob Whites is expected soon, asks ranchers to aid in protecting the quail. If they are allowed to go unmolested, he says, the valley in a few years will have enough quail to afford shooting. In former seasons a number of Valley quail have been released here. The Hood River Gun Club, recently organized here, bids fair to take a leading place in recreation clubs. The members, now exceeding 25, participated in their first shoot Sunday afternoon, following construction of a trap house and clearing of a range. Members of the club say the Hood River bids fair to develop sportsmen who will stand high in northwest tournaments.
