

Buy a pipe—
and some P.A.
Get the joy that's due you!

We print it right here that if you don't know the "feel" and the friendship of a joy'us jimmy pipe—GO GET ONE! And—get some Prince Albert and bang a howdy-do on the big smoke-gong!

For, Prince Albert's quality—flavor—coolness—fragrance—is in a class of its own! You never tasted such tobacco! Why—figure out what it alone means to your tongue and temper when we tell you that Prince Albert can't bite, can't parch! Our exclusive patented process fixes that!

Prince Albert is a revelation in a makin's cigarette! My, but how that delightful flavor makes a dent! And, how it does answer that hankering! Prince Albert rolls easy and stays put because it is crimped cut. And, say—oh, go on and get the papers or a pipe! Do it right now!

Prince Albert is sold in tippy red boxes, tippy red tins, handsome pound and half pound tin humidors and in the pound crystal glass humidors with sponge moisture top.

THE DALLES MAN INSPIRED BY HOOD

J. C. Johnsen was recently spending a vacation in the Lost Lake country. On a walk through the section he happened on a man intent in writing as he gazed at the glory of Mount Hood in the early morning sunlight. The visitor, who proved to be Edwin Bundy, of The Dalles, was writing a poem. He promised to send Mr. Johnsen the results of his inspiration. The poem, entitled "Mount Hood," appears below:

We've seen the high hills in the east and west,
We've seen them in sunshine and shade,
Arrayed in bright colors as seen at their best.
From hilltop or from the deep glade,
We've seen them bedecked in a beauty rare,
We've seen them in various mood,
But with all their grandeur they don't compare
With the graceful form of Mt. Hood.

We've looked on its slopes of perilous grandeur
In mute admiration we've stood;
The lapse of the years and ages have made
No change in the form of Mt. Hood.
We've seen the rich hues of crimson and gold
In light of the sun's afterglow,
Reflecting a splendor that's not been told,
On its crown of eternal snow.

It still stands intact, ten thousand years old,
With its grace no monuments vie;
It stands there stately and stentinel bold,
As it lifts its proud head on high,
We've seen the skill of omnipotent hand
Creating all things for our good,
But in Nature's realm there's nothing more grand
Than the snow capped cone of Mt. Hood.

THE FERTILIZATION OF BERRY PLANTS

(By Gordon G. Brown)

For a number of years the writer has been experimenting with various fertilizers for strawberries. Results have always favored the use of considerable nitrogen for whatever formula used. Larger yields and sizes as a result, even on new soil. The writer has deemed it wise to use a "complete" fertilizer in recommending a fertilizer for the valley as a whole. This would include phosphoric acid and potash in the fertilizer as well as nitrogen. This last year the Apple Growers Association has been buying the "simples," that is, nitrate of soda, super phosphate and sulphate of potash, and mixing them in whatever proportion the grower desired. In most cases this has been mixed upon a tonnage basis as follows:

Nitrate of soda, 800 pounds, super phosphate, 800 pounds, sulphate of potash, 400 pounds.

It is recommended that this be applied at the rate of 250 pounds per acre right after the topping season and thoroughly hoed in. In early spring 250 pounds more of the same fertilizer should be applied.

On Willow Flat and in the newer sections such as Dee, Parkdale and Middle Valley there is a possibility that less potash may be used to better advantage. These soils apparently are pretty well supplied with ash deposit from which potash is derived. An excess of potash may give seedy berries of smaller size than where it is used moderately. The section of berries on Willow Flat giving largest yield this year had nitrate of soda at the rate of 220 pounds per acre; super phosphate, 300 pounds per acre, and sulphate of potash 72 pounds per acre. This is a total application of 592 pounds per acre, one-half of which was applied during the summer of 1920 and the balance in early spring, 1921. On a tonnage basis this is made up as follows: 725 pounds, nitrate of soda; 990 pounds, super phosphate; 285 pounds sulphate of potash.

Consul Pushes Boys' Case

On advice from Wasco county authorities, local authorities last week apprehended Clayton Rand, local boy, who was with a party of youths alleged not long ago to have fired on an automobile carrying Alma D. Katz and Col. John W. Leader and their wives to The Dalles. Sheriff Chrisman states that warrants are out for the other boys, who are: Enes Absher, Wilbur Bywater, Cloyd Gordon and Boyd Campbell. The case against the boys, it is said, is being pushed by the British consul at Portland, as Col. Leader is a British subject.

While the occupants of the car declare that the boys, who approached their automobile from the rear, fired with a revolver, and offer a purported windshield as evidence, the youths claim that they had no fire arms and that a rock was thrown by one of their number. Young Rand visited The Dalles and gave himself up to officials. He has been released on his own recognizance to await grand jury action. All of the other boys are out of the county at present engaged in eastern Oregon harvest fields or working at highway jobs.

New York Artist May Locate

R. Griffith, New York City artist, who with his wife and two children stopped for a while last week while en route on a motor trip east from California, says he may locate here. Mr. Griffith declares that the Northwest scenery has bitten deep, and he doubts if he ever recovers. Mr. Griffith plans the establishment of a school for artists here and at The Dalles.

Mr. Griffith has won a wide local recognition during his short stay. He has painted a large number of beautiful pictures of local landscapes, one of the most attractive of which was purchased by the Franz store.

Cow Owners Warned

The county court has issued a warning to orchardists against staking cows on public roads. It is said that a number of minor accidents have resulted from the mixing of automobiles and staked cows recently. The owners of animals, trespassing on the highway, the court cites, will be responsible for any damage resulting from collisions.

The Same Everywhere

The editor of Paissa Akhbar, a native newspaper of Lahore, India, says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy many times among my children and servants, for colic and diarrhoea and always found it effective."
