WILLOW FLAT PLANS LOOP CONNECTION

A large number of property owners of the East Willow Flat district met Monday evening of last week in O. H. Hill's apple house for the purpose of discussing the road problem in their district and to devise some means of financing this much needed improvement. As the portion of the district road fund which was apportioned to this part of the district last spring was allotted to other places by the county commissioners and no financial assistance from county road funds was available at this time, it was the unanimous opinion of all present that it would be far better to contribute their time and labor towards improving the county road in preference to paying a prohibitive price to get their fruit to market this fall and being practically isolated during the winter months.

A committee was appointed to ask permission of the county court for the use of one of the county crushers and everyone present agreed to donate either cash or labor towards the cost of grading and surfacing with crushed rock the county road from the Gline hill to the intersection of the Mount Hood Highway below Booth Hill.

HOOD FLUME WILL SOON BE FINISHED

Underwood orchard residents here on business report that the new line of flume being constructed by the Drano Flume & Lumber Co. down the gorge of the Little White Salmon river to Hood is nearing completion. The course of the flume crosses the Columbia gorgeside area in plain view of the Columbia Highway and attract much attention from motor tourists. The flume will drop more than 1,000 feet in the nine miles of its course.

The flume construction will require 1,500,000 feet of lumber. Water is drawn from the Little White Salmon river. The logs from tracts, estimated to produce over 500,000 feet of lumber, will be floated down to Hood, where a huge logging pond will be constructed.

The new lumber concern, in which a number of local business men own stock, will be equipped to route its product either by rail or by Columbia river steamer, as wharfage facilities will be provided at Hood.

TOURISTS FALL OUT NEW CAR SOLD

The trouble that overtook a party of motorists, just off on a tour from The Dalles, proved a boon for C.A. Elliott, the Overland man. Two families of the neighboring city according to Mr. Elliott, had scarcely begun the first lap of an extended tour when they entered upon a dispute that led to a constantly widening breach. By the time the two families had reached the Columbia Highway loops just east of this city the owner halted his car and invited his companions of the other family to disembark.

"And there is where I came in," says Mr. Elliott. "The head of the family left on the roadside walked to my place of business and I made one of the quickest sales of the season." Automobile salesmen customarily are eager to report the names of purchasers of their cars. Mr. Elliott, however, declares that he thinks his patron in this instance had best be left unidentified.

Pomace Recommended for Cows

That no bad effects follow the feeding of dried apple pomace to dairy cows and that there is no decrease in the milk or butter fat production are the conclusions reached by members of the bureau of chemistry and animal industry of the department of agriculture, following an experiment to determine the feeding value of dried apple pomace.

Dried pomace appears to be equal pound-for-pound to dry matter, to good corn silage as a succulent food for the dairy cow. Owing to the property which it possesses of absorbing large quantities of water and swelling, it should never be fed dry, but should be allowed to soak in water for an hour or so before feeding. The pomace appears to be a palatable feeding stuff.

Cloud Cap Closed Tuesday

Cloud Cap Inn, which, according to Homer Rogers, has entertained more guests the past season than any former year, closed Tuesday, and the road to the resort will soon be diked and closed for the year. Already the weather at the high altitude has become fierce and snow has fallen around the hostelry.

While Mr. Rogers says the guest list has been larger than formerly, he says it has not been nearly as heavy as his expectations led him to believe it would be before the season began. He declares that Oregon folk, themselves have not yet learned how easily accessible the snowfields and glaciers are. He proposes to conduct a campaign of education throughout the winter.

Gibson & Sons Grow Everbearing Berries
W. R. Gibson & Sons, owners of Mountain View orchard, have produced Everbearing strawberries in quantities on an experimental plot this summer. The orchardists Saturday delivered 18 crates of large sized, well colored berries to hotels.

While the Everbearing berries will never be grown here in commercial quantities, they may be grown in limited areas for furnishing hotels and restaurants with fresh strawberries in the off season. The Everbearing fruit has been retailing for 15 cents per pint hallock.

No Substitute Offered

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

VALLEY POTATO TONNAGE AT 125 CARS

The latest estimate of the Hood River valley potato crop places the tonnage of both Upper and Lower Valley fields at 125 to 130 carloads. The Upper Valley, where much virgin soil has been planted to potatoes, chiefly of Notted Gem and American Wonder varieties, will lead with 100 carloads of clean tubers. Timothy Newell alone will harvest an estimated 5,000 sacks from 30 acres. Warren Wilback expects 1,000 sacks. Other growers of the district who expect yields of high quality are J. F. Thompson, with 900 bags, and T. Sato, with 1,500. I. T. Beal, who has specialized on potatoes for a number of years, expects a heavy yield.

The chief potato acreage in the Lower Valley is in the Dine Grove district, where growers expect 25 to 30 cars. Wilson Fike, with five acres planted, will have the heaviest Lower Valley tonnage. Upper Valley growers have not sold any tubers to date. They are declining offers of $2 per bag.

CLEAN-UP SQUAD HERE LAST WEEK

A clean up squad of the Veteran's Bureau, operating under the recently adopted Sweet Bill, was here last week at the Mount Hood hotel investigating the claims of ex-service men and hearing any claims that they might have to make with regard to war risk insurance or other matters left over from service days. The men here included Dr. Morris, Cliff Wood and Kenneth Kuggins. They met Friday night with service men from all parts of the valley, the session having been called by the American Legion Post. The clean-up squad left Sunday for White Salmon, where they met with ex-service men Monday.

Shubert Orchestra Well Received

Although the crowd was not so very large, because the musicians came here without advance publicity, those who attended the dance given under auspices of the Shubert Jazz orchestra at the Pythian building last Thursday evening declare the aggregation one of the best that has ever visited Hood River. The laymen in the Shuberts are: Randy Gloe, Jack Curtis, Bud Hassler, Eddie Hawn and Harold Hillman.

The Shuberts' headquarters are in Chicago. They make a trip to the coast and return each year. This year the aggregation is traveling by automobile.

Spontaneous Combustion Causes Fire

Spontaneous combustion originating in greasy rags packed in a kitchen cupboard fired the Heights home of Fred Knoblock at dawn Sunday. The Volunteer Fire Department responded in time to limit damage to about $200. After the fire was extinguished Fire Marshal Morgan and a crew of firemen mopped up the wet floors of the home.

LET'S AVOID A CRISIS

The Hood River Valley will have a large crop of apples this Fall. We know from last year's experience that we will have a shortage of packers if the families of Hood River orchardists do not muster greater forces at the annual packing school, which will be held throughout the week, beginning September 12, at an Association warehouse, corner 5th and Columbia Streets.

Families of growers, if they will permit themselves to really sense the seriousness of the situation, can avoid a packer famine and, in all probability, an attendant loss to themselves, by learning packing at the Association School. Watch the press for details. Prepare now to cooperate for community welfare.
