The Flowers of Spring Will Soon be Blooming

Your appreciation of the coming of balmy days and the glory of a benign sun, pouring its rays from blue skies will be all the more appreciated this year after your siege of wintry blasts.

In the cold weeks your chief enjoyment came from reading perhaps. Now you will want to behold anew the outdoor wonders of nature. Your eyes, as the poet so beautifully says, are the windows of the soul. They let in sunlight and pictures that please. Certainly you are not doing justice to yourself if you allow shutters of poor vision to rob you of their proper functioning.

We fit glasses for all purposes. Let us help make those windows of your inner self such that your sense of sight is one continual joy.

BUTLER BANKING COMPANY

Member Federal Reserve System

WE read an eastern Bank Ad recently in which the bank undertook to show that there is a difference between Savings Depositors and other people.

The contention was made that Savings Depositors do not have the worried look that other people so often have and that generally speaking they are a satisfied, contented lot.

Without arguing the case we submit that the remedy is simple and certainly harmless so if any reader of this advertisement is affected by the spirit of unrest that at times seems to pervade a lot of people, let us suggest a Savings account and the regular weekly or monthly habit of adding to it.

Come to think of it a customer who has just made a deposit in his savings account Does Have a Satisfied Look. Try it.

ILLICIT LIQUOR CLUB TARGET

MUNICIPAL ROCKPILE IS PROPOSED

Boycott for Bootlegger and His Customers Recommended—Exposition Endorsed—Road Signs Tabu

The Commercial club in session Monday night started a precedent in the activities of such organizations, when it adopted by unanimous action a resolution that calls for social ostracism, in other words the boycott, of bootleggers or citizens found guilty of purchasing illicit liquor. Following the adoption of the drastic resolution the commercial club adopted a motion calling for a committee to be appointed for a conference with the city council, whose members will be asked to adopt an ordinance that will establish a rockpile, not only for traffickers in the product of the illicit distillery but the patrons of the bootlegger as well.

The resolution was presented to the club by E. O. Blanchard. It follows: "Inasmuch as our officers have shown unusual courage and persistence in the enforcement of the prohibition law going to any length of personal peril in the performance of their duties, he resolved:

"That we commend heartily the work of the county sheriff's office, the prosecuting attorney and the municipal officers of Hood River, and that we assure them that the support of the Hood River Commercial club is behind them in their efforts to uphold their part of our fundamental law, known as the 18th Amendment to the Federal Constitution. Be it resolved also,

"That we deplore the demand for illicit liquor on the part of a small minority of the people, that makes it necessary that the taxpayers shall maintain extra police officers for the enforcement of law, and that we warn all who are directly or indirectly engaged in this traffic that we shall use every means in our power to support the laws and bring offenders to justice."

The resolution's strongest proponent was Rev. W. H. Boddy, who emphasized the need for social ostracism, as he termed it, of individuals who by their masquerading behind a base mask of Bohemianism laid the ground work, through their own disrespect of the law, for the worst radicalism the world has ever known. He declared that disrespect for the 18th amendment would lead ultimately to the disrespect of other laws, that some citizen who refused to obey the dictates of the prohibition act on the point of its interference with his personal liberties and privileges might just as logically decline to observe the Mann white slave act on similar grounds.

"It has reached the point where we must apply social ostracism to high places and in low," declared Mr. Boddy. "If I found that a butcher, a baker, a banker, a lawyer or a preacher were guilty of the act of patronage of one of these purveyors of illicit liquor, then I would withdraw my trade from him. If I were a banker and I found that one of my patrons were involved in the sale or purchase of bootleg whiskey I would call that person in and tell him that he had impaired his credit."

"We want Hood River to maintain its name and reputation as a community of refinement," said Mr. Boddy, "and not to degenerate to the point of gaining the name of a 'tough little burg.'"

The rockpile appendage to the resolution was introduced by Hugh G. Bail.

While the club took no steps toward making any recommendations as to the financing of the 1925 Portland exposition the body unanimously adopted a resolution of general endorsement of the fair, and Truman Butler, who is on the general state executive committee, which met in Portland Tuesday, was instructed to carry the resolution to him for presentation at the conference.

Mr. Butler, in reporting to the club progress that had been made in preparation for the fair, announced that the state had been wiped clean of the failure of the recent special legislature to initiate some act to be referred to the people, for financing the fair by tax, direct or on gasoline.

"It was decided at a recent meeting in Portland," said Mr. Butler, "to start in all over again and to build up our plans anew. As yet no scheme of financing has been worked out and as far as that part of plans are concerned we have nothing tangible on which to base a discussion. At our recent meeting I told my fellows of the statewide committee that it was my belief, judging from my observation of Hood River county sentiment, that my county would be in Portland and that it were to be a statewide exposition of Oregon as a whole, an exhibit to the world of the scenic and agricultural assets. But that my people did not believe in an exposition of the old type, with its stereotyped pike or midway and formal sunken gardens and huge temporary buildings.

The full text of Mr. Butler's resolution was as follows:

"Whereas, The state of Oregon has by legislative enactment invited the states of the Union to participate in a statewide exposition, and

"Whereas, Congress has, by joint resolution, given authority to the President of the United States to invite foreign nations, and

"Whereas, We are now advised by the exposition committee, through their printed matter and public utterances that it is their definite purpose to hold a statewide exposition in fact as well as in name, and

"Whereas, Oregon is today the 41st state in the Union in point of development (California has 22 people to the square mile, Washington 20 and Oregon only eight), and

"Whereas, The greatest need of the state of Oregon today is a million more population, and

"Whereas, We believe a statewide exposition will do much to bring a substantial increase in population, now therefore,

"Be it Resolved, That the Hood River Commercial Club endorse and pledges its support to the 1925 exposition."

"My resolution," said Mr. Butler, "is not one of the forms that has been prepared by the general committee. It is just a homemade resolution for the particular consideration of us people here in Hood River."

The club through the recent appointment of a committee, is seeking through cooperation of state, county and federal authorities means of securing a new road to Coopers Spur and Cloud Cap Inn. The club committee is especially seeking to secure federal aid for early application, in order that a mountain road may be opened to a camp in the Oregon National Forest to be utilized by the American Legion Post as a base for its annual ascents of Mount Hood.

"I think this matter of securing an early construction of a road to the mountain and the Legion camp is very important," said E. O. Blanchard, member of the committee, which last week conferred with forestry officials in Portland. The annual mountain climb bids fair to grow into one of the county's big events. We are glad to find that the forestry department is committed to the construction of a road to Coopers Spur and Cloud Cap Inn, but the officials naturally will have to have a survey before they can make an actual application of funds."

Mr. Blanchard said it was not known whether the road would pursue the general course of the old toll road to Cloud Cap Inn or be located on the northeast ridge of the mountain. He said that J. O. Hannum, who is well acquainted with the physical contour of the region, impressed the forestry officials when he pointed out that a road could be constructed with great feasibility along the northeast ridge.

Mr. Hannum, who accompanied the committee in their conference, Mr. Blanchard said, stated that a passable road, connecting up with the Mount Hood Loop Highway and following Tilly Jane creek, might be opened as far as the Legion camp for an approximate $1,600.

Mr. Blanchard, however, cited that W. A. Langille, another man who knows the mountainous forested section, believes that best results will be obtained by following the old toll road on the north side of the mountain where, Mr. Langille states, the snowfall will be cleared out early by action of chinook winds which will not reach the east base of the snow peak.

The club adopted a resolution presented by its permanent committee on scenic preservation, headed by Rev. W. H. Boddy, which condemns the practice of highway or streetside signboard advertising. The action, it was stated by Mr. Boddy, was precipitated by the erection of two huge signs along the Columbia River Highway, one in the city limits at the west edge of town and the other on the East Side grade east of the city. The signboards carry advertisements of local merchants. The resolutions ask that all civic bodies of the city concur in action deprecating such form of advertising. The city council will be asked to adopt some form of ordinance to prohibit the placing of signs, if such legal action can be done, and the county court will be appealed to for cooperation preserving the roads from the marred effects of signs.

Some of the club members even went so far in their discussions as to propose boycott of merchants who utilize such forms of advertising. R. E. Scott declared that the merchants placed the signs out of personal egotism.

"They do not realize any benefit from such advertising," said Mr. Scott, "and they well know it. They merely want to see their names placarded for the public to behold."

Mr. Scott stated that during his regime as club secretary all merchants of the city had signed an agreement not to recognize the solicitations of any outside advertising agency or other itinerants unless the visitor showed a certificate of approval from the Commercial club. He declared that the plan had by actual record saved merchants a short period. He suggested that the system be revived. The signboards, it was stated, were placed at the solicitation of a visiting advertising man, whose fees for the work and the rental of space will cost merchants more than $50.

J. H. Koberg has asked the scenic preservation committee of the club to cooperate in saving timber along the Highway between here and Mosier. He says that beautiful groves of fir owned by Indians have been sold and cut for cordwood. Mr. Koberg says he was approached, as soon as the Highway was surveyed, by parties who wished to buy timber holdings of his along the right-of-way, but that he declined to sell.

"The Highway department," said Mr. Koberg, "last summer spoiled a body of magnificent timber in securing logs for the Twin Falls dam."

Secretary C. C. Crew has received communications from Senators Stanford and McNary and Representative Sinnott, who announce that the author of the harbour bill providing for the Sequoia National Park in California, has agreed to include an amendment to the bill as was proposed by recent resolution of the local club. The bill, as originally drafted contained no provision for preservation of scenic waterfalls and streams. The amendment will give the new park the same degree of protection as already applies to existing national parks.

The club has adopted a resolution asking Congress to maintain the Dillingham Immigration law for another three years. The existing measure, which limits to three per cent of existing alien population immigrants of any one year, will go out of existence in May.

H. S. Brackman asked that violators of the narcotic law be included with bootleggers, giving a sustained account of a cocaine episode. He stated that he had hopes of using the narcotic paragon landed in about two weeks.

Winter Weather Persists

The past week has been one of continued winter weather. Hopes sprang in the breasts of mid-Columbia folk last Saturday, when a chinook caused a heavy thaw. Saturday night, clear and brilliant the wind again switched to the east, and Sunday was a beautiful, clear, cold day. Monday followed clear. Monday night a light rain was followed by snow, and early Tuesday morning a blanket of five inches was piled up over the valley.

Tuesday night mixed rain and sleet prevailed, and a coating of ice formed on apple trees. The next silver thaw was not serious enough to cause damage.

F. G. Church, who has been ill from rheumatism and a severe cold, was able to be in the city the first of the week.

BAND BENEFIT SHOW COMING

THE LAND OF HAPPINESS, VEHICLE

Pythian Music Makers Will Present Cast of Great Excellence—Show Will Be Popular

Through some mistake in the press, the dates of the big musical comedy to be staged under the auspices of the K. P. band of Hood River, entitled "The Land of Happiness," were stated as being February 27 and 28, but the play is to be staged January 27 and 28 at the Rialto theatre, the curtain rising both nights at 8.15 sharp. The cast has been selected and from what the producers say, is far superior to any of the casts selected in the cities previous to their engagement with the K. P. band of Hood River. The performance runs two hours and 15 minutes with constant fun and merriment.

Prof. Hillman, who is directing the dancing, and also the play, is classed as the best of his kind west of Chicago and has devoted his time to theatrical productions of the musical comedy nature through the entire United States.

Jack Alden, who is assistant dancing and production director, has had considerable experience on the stage as well as appearing in several of the foremost musical comedies in the last few years. He is very capable and promises to give the theatre-goers of Hood River some good, clean entertainment.

Prof. Stewart, who is manager of the Hillman Production Company, is another clever entertainer, and his interesting performance will be well satisfied with his work.

The company carries $500 worth of beautiful costumes, the type most popular with the Winter Garden and Zeigfeld productions in New York. Several sets of very handsome and expensive wardrobes will be used for the first time in the production in this city. Special scenic effects are also carried by the company.

The show is made up of two acts; the first act being a minstrel first part and girl and song revue, the song being direct from the publishers and principally popular numbers. The first act will run approximately an hour and 15 minutes. The principal parts are played by Paul Reel, Fred G. Reed, Tom Lethlean, C. M. McCormack, Ed Bries, Jungle Land, the second act, a musical comedy, is an act taken from real life on any of the small South Sea Islands. It is something new in the musical comedy line and entirely different from anything ever seen here. This act is filled with comedy and amusing situations throughout. It is delightfully wholesome and pleasing to anyone with a sense of humor. The principal parts in Jungle Land are played by Miss Dorothy Hand, Miss Gertrude Horne, Miss Betty Staten, Paul Reel, Fred G. Reed, Frank Morse, C. W. McCormack, R. W. Hillman, and A. W. Stewart. All of these characters have been well trained.

The following are the ladies and gentlemen of the chorus:

Alice Carson, Betty Staten, Jeradine Chenoweth, Helen Jones, Jane Carson, Lucille Davis, Myrna Rogers, Irene Fewell, Bernice McKowen, Emily McKowen, Elinor Derby, Lucie Ferguson, Geneva Nickelsen, Dorothy Rand, Dorothy Garrabrand, Bernice Campbell, Gladys Bright, Leona Van Allen, Mildred Rogers, Henrietta Braza, Alberta Carson, Virginia Nickelsen, and O. M. Rogers, Paul Reel, Alfred R. Neil, G. Russell Volstorff, G. A. Edward Volstorff, Fred G. Reed, Mayhew M. Carson, Lloyd Loving, Maxine Mendenhall, Carl Calandra, Glenn Mendenhall, Carl O'Grady, Floyd Dixon, H. F. Morse, C. M. McCormack, Tom Lethlean, Ed Bries, Albert Caldwell, Kenneth Fisher, C. C. Cuddeford, Jack Alden.

READ BIOGRAPHIES SAYS JUDGE WILSON

At the monthly dinner of the Men's Brotherhood of the Riverside Community church Friday night, Judge Wilson, chief speaker of the evening, urged his hearers to read more of the biographies of great Americans, in order thus to fit themselves for a better solution of national problems. He declared that the modern American citizen too often thinks of his country and jumps to conclusions on matters of grave national import without any basis of reasoning for his decision.

Judge Wilson dwelt at length on the merits of American history just before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. He showed how the problems of those times were solved by the sustained thinking of young men, the oldest of whom was only 16. George Washington, John Adams and John Jay were a constant aid to the statesmen.

Hugh G. Bail spoke on the history of recent Mexican revolutions that indicated an early oriental civilization on the Pacific coast. He cited a number of ethnological and archeological reports, stating that they showed a prehistoric habitation of this country by Quetzals.

Fifty men were at the dinner, which was served by young women of the church.

COMMUNITY CHEST FUND IS LAGGING

Because of bad weather, the Hood River Community Chest Fund of $700 is still an approximate $4,000 short. But one district, Oak Grove, has raised its quota of $58, exceeding this by $50. No report has been made by the Upper Valley committee, deep snows having prohibited any canvass. The Oak Grove district reached its quota by use of orders made payable later in the year so dividends on fruit pools are made available.

Sept. Cameron will make the canvas of the teaching force. It is felt that a considerable sum will be realized from this source.

Mrs. Frank Cram will make, with her assistance, a thorough canvass of the residence portion of the town.
