Butter Is Healthful

No statement was ever truer. Not only does this natural food contain body building elements in abundance, but the butter is a necessity to the system, because of the lubrication it furnishes the body. You may secure substitutes perhaps and pay less for them, but as a matter of health economy the wise housewife will ever see to it that her children are fed on the purest of butter.

Use Hood River Oregon and you'll know you've done your duty to your family, your town and your Valley.

Vinegar Company May Save Gas

The Hood River Apple Vinegar Co., according to W. A. Rooker, is losing a source of large revenue from the present inability to salvage carbonic acid gas generated in the manufacture of vinegar. The vinegar concern has 40 large generators, and constantly a heavy volume of the gas, in demand for giving zest to soda fountain drinks, arises from each generator. Mr. Rooker says that some means should be provided for trapping this gas.

Carbonic acid gas, derived from the fermentation process of fruit juices, it is said, is the best that can be obtained.

Japanese Contribute to Chest

Japanese, according to solicitors for the Hood River County Community Chest, invariably make liberal contributions. In the Oak Grove district, where the percentage of Japanese fruitgrowers is heavier than in any other district except Dee, the full quota has been oversubscribed. The Japanese, solicitors say, apparently are fully informed on the charity campaign and make their contributions without any delaying.

The total of the campaign fund is $7,500, of which $2,500 remains to be raised.

Berry Growers Would Cut Wage

Discussion among strawberry growers of the Oak Grove section, one of the heaviest berry producing sections of the valley, indicates that wages not only for picking but for cultivation of crops this spring will be materially decreased over last year. Strawberry growers say they anticipate pre-war prices for their product. They say they will demand a return to the wages of 1912 and 1913, when day labor was secured for 20 cents per hour.

LOCAL SCHOOL CLUBS MEET REQUIREMENTS

Hood River county had two of the 376 boys' and girls' clubs which finished the work of the year 1920-21, meeting all the requirements of a standard club according to H. C. Seymour, state club leader.

The requirements for a standard club are to have five or more members working on the same project, officers elected from among the members, an adult local club leader, definite program of work for the club year, reports of the work prepared and filed in the office of the state club leader, at least six regular club meetings, a local club exhibit, a demonstration in the community, a judging team chosen by competition among the members, at least 70 per cent of the members completing their work and filing reports, an achievement day program held at the close of the club year, and a membership in the farm bureau held by the club or its officers.

The 6,487 club members in Oregon were organized into 724 clubs. Of this number 376 met the requirements of a standard club, while 254 of these reported 100 per cent of their members completing their work. The total value of all products produced this year by club members is $124,359.68. This was a total cost of $69,581.13, making a profit of $54,778.55, a profit surpassing that of the preceding year in spite of the fact that the value of the products dropped decidedly within the year.

The Hood River canning club, under the leadership of Elma M. Anosla, and the Hood River sewing club under Mrs. J. O. Cameron are the two clubs in Hood River county which finished the year as standard organizations.

"C. G. L." Cartoon Explained

The mystery of the initials, "C. G. L., Hood River," appended to the signature of Cartoonist Perry, of the Oregonian, in the contribution of Tuesday, February 1, "The Corner Grocery Club Discusses Clearing the Highway," has been explained. C. G. Lemmon, Oak Grove orchardist, says that the suggestion came from actual discussions of the Oak Grove Store club, organized November 19, the memorable Saturday on which the mid-Columbia's most persistent winter began.

"One of our latest discussions," says Mr. Lemmon, "touched on the best and cheapest methods of clearing the Highway. We requested Mr. Perry to help us out, and he did nobly."

"You will notice the gentleman to the right, wearing the derby and smoking the pipe. That is about as good as could be done of me by telepathy."

Mr. Lemmon is secretary-treasurer of the corner store club. Other officers are: C. G. Matzky, president, and Frank Fenwick, vice president.

Water Case Creates Interest

Litigation over the rights to water of a spring on the land of Edmund Gehrig, whose neighbors, Philip, Alphonse and Frank Kollas, are seeking to enjoin from the use of the spring, is creating an interest among local irrigationists. Kollas' brothers claim that the recent adjudication of the water rights of the Hood River valley, just passed on by circuit court, following an investigation of the State Water Board, and during a period of four years, grants them the waters of New Wood creek. They declare that the spring is a source of the creek.

The defendant, however, says that the spring in question is in marshy soil and that it never had any definite channel until he cut one, developing the waters of the swamp in supplying his home with water and irrigating a small garden tract. His attorney, E. H. Hartwig, cites Oregon statute, which he declares permits the owner of land the use of waters from such a spring and prohibiting its appropriation. Judge Wilson, who heard the case last week, has taken it under advisement. E. C. Smith represented the plaintiff.

Struck Buys in Upper Valley

J. R. Nunamaker last week sold to George Struck a 40 acre bearing orchard in the Upper Valley for a consideration of $17,000. The place is a mile northeast of Parkdale along the route of the new valley trunk line of the Mount Hood Loop Highway. The tract is considered one of the best in the Upper Valley.
