SHEPLAR BUILDING
NEW FERRY BOAT

The heavy increase in traffic over the Columbia River Highway to this city and thence to Washington points by way of White Salmon, has necessitated construction of auxiliary equipment by the Hood River White Salmon Ferry Co. A. S. Sheplar, who last spring built the Cleona, which has a capacity of 12 automobiles at a trip, for the ferry concern, is now engaged in building a smaller boat of a similar type. The new craft, it is expected, will be ready for launching about May 1.

The boat finished last summer was worked to capacity to haul the traffic last year. On week ends and holidays, long lines of cars were seen on both sides of the river awaiting their turn at the ferry.

Heavy Purchases of Sprayers

Orchardists here this year, according to data gathered by dealers in implements, will spend an approximate $25,000 in the purchase of new high powered spray rigs. Numerous growers, who already own up to date tanks and pumps, will purchase engines that develop a greater power than motor originally supplied the outfit. The expenditure results from the observation of experiment station experts and growers themselves, who have learned that the old style sprayers, with engines incapable of developing high power, cannot force the particles of spray to the tops of larger trees.

The first application of sprays will be made here early in April, according to present indications. Growers in all parts of the valley are busy, hauling out their supplies and getting sprayers in shape for the work.

Young Indian Matron Passes

Funeral services were held at the home Thursday for Alice Corbett, 28-year old Indian matron, whose death occurred Wednesday morning. The young woman, whose husband, a brother and father, the latter Peter Corbett who was widely known as a kind of Christianized medicine man, died of influenza in 1919, is survived by her mother and a small daughter. The family is one of the last few remaining of the original Dog River Indians.

Sam Williams, Indian minister, of The Dalles, officiated at the service. S. E. Bartmess directed the funeral.

Found a Cure for Indigestion

Use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different medicines. I am nearly fifty one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to, now," writes George W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ia. These tablets contain no poison but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.

WISE GETS 5 YEARS
BUT IS PAROLED

The Wise case was ended last Thursday in a parole. Wise, formally charged with assault with intent to kill, was convicted by a jury two weeks ago. The trial body, however, unanimously signed a petition for a parole. Sheriff Johnston and Deputies Wood and Webster, who were complaining witnesses, submitted a letter to Judge Wilson, asking a parole.

Judge Wilson assessed a sentence of five years in the penitentiary. He stated that his sentence would have been two years in case no parole had been asked. Judge Wilson, however, made the parole contingent on the prisoner signing an acceptance that he would remain in the penitentiary. He demanded that Wise refrain during the term of the parole from direct or indirect illicit liquor operations. He also pledged that he would not indulge in liquor as a beverage for that time. Judge Wilson also required that Wise pay the county in monthly installments of $10 the county's court costs in his prosecution, a sum reaching $120. In addition to this he required that the prisoner eliminate a disfigurement that he existed over a justice court case.

In the former case Wise was tried for bootlegging, the charge arising from his arrest on the night on which he was alleged to have tried to drown the deputies. Justice of the Peace Oatman found him guilty and assessed a fine of $250.

This sum was paid into the hands of the court and entered as payment of the fine. Wise and his attorney declared that it was paid in as bail money, and that they had filed notice of an appeal. Wise in accepting the terms of the parole, agrees that the money was for a fine.

Judge Wilson in pronouncing sentence cited that he announced on taking the bench on the local circuit that he would never consider a parole without a jury petition. He expressed himself in disapproval of the parole system because of its abuse. He declared, however, that the circumstances at hand were extraordinary and that he requested his duty to consider the request made of him.

DEE LANDOWNERS
SEEK WATER DISTRICT

Land owners in the Dee Flat section have prepared for presentation to the county court a petition to organize a bonded irrigation district. The petition will be presented on May 3 when the court will be asked to take formal action on the matter. The district includes approximately 2,000 acres. Some of the valley's finest young pear and apple orchards are located in Dee Flat, and the section produces a heavy tonnage of strawberries.

While the petition does not contain any mention of the fact, the district, if organized, will purchase the system of the Dee Power & Irrigation Co., which now waters the fertile area.

Bremerton Man Sells Rhododendrons

J. J. Stoner, employe of the Bremerton Navy Yard, here Thursday with an automobile loaded with young rhododendron bushes, sold plants to numerous householders. Mr. Stoner, who is on a vacation, states that he dug the bushes on a ridge in the Olympics back of Bremerton.

"I got my plants," said Mr. Stoner, "on a high dry ridge. I advise those who purchase the plants that they give them little water. Many persons kill their rhododendron bushes by watering them too much."

City Crew Blasts for Sewer

Local folk were fearful for a time Thursday that the profanity of Dr. Noble for earthquakes around March 25 had come true. The vibrations of the down town district, however, it was learned, were caused by blasting of a city crew engaged in constructing a storm sewer drain at the corner of Third and Railroad streets. The crews, in their excavations struck a large granite boulder that had to be shattered with heavy charges of dynamite.
