it didn't, and Paul went flat broke, and hastened away to the yellow pine woods of the South, where he took a contract falling timber. "Cut the stumps high," quoth Paul, "There is timber enough here to supply the earth forever." But soon the camps egan to close down and the mills began to disaspear, and when the boss said, "Cut 'em low," Paul Bunyan quit and started for the Pacific Northwest, where there was plenty of timber and no need of being so particular.

But he got an eye opener when he crossed the treeless plains. It gave him something to think about. "Great Scott," cried Paul as he slid over the Cascades, "They are burning the forests out here! We have no wood to waste,"
