HOOD RIVER COUNTY ROADS

In a few short years Hood River county is going to have a road system of which all citizens will be proud. Indeed, already the roads of the apple section, taking them all in all, are in excellent condition as compared with other sections. We hear criticisms of our valley highways, but had you ever noticed that they come almost altogether from local folk who have never visited the roads of any other section. If you want to know just how good the highways of this valley are just take a tour over the laterals of some other section. Then, too, we sometimes hear a criticism from some timid visitor from the east, a man or woman who has never traveled over mountain roads, who is familiar with the ways cut through level territory or city streets. They do not criticize the road but express fright at the chasms just over the grades.

The Columbia River Highway completion marked the beginning of a new era in valley road building. It necessitated the valley trunk of the Mount Hood Loop, just as the latter road is going to necessitate the betterment of numerous laterals of all parts of the valley.

We wish to congratulate the students of the Hood River high school on the business success of this year's Masco. In former years student had issued the publication only by dint of much indebtedness. This year, we are told, the annual will just about pay for itself. Enthusiasm of youth overlooks the responsibilities of business. To Mr. Cannon and others who have charge of the students of Hood River and the boys and girls, themselves, owe thanks. We think most of all the business folk of the city have noted this trend of the students toward accepting business responsibilities and meeting them. It is a good preparation for the game of life.

A portion of Lost Lake lies in the Bull Run watershed. This is ridiculous, and a campaign for correcting the absurdity should be pushed steadily to successful conclusion.

Late News Briefs

William Schweitzer, owner of a four-acre strawberry tract at Underwood, was here yesterday seeking pickers. The fruit of the Underwood section, on the south slope of the Columbia gorge, is a week earlier than that of Hood River valley. Mr. Schweitzer says that the White Salmon Growers Warehouse, of White Salmon, will begin routing carlot shipments of the berries the latter part of next week.

Headed by President McMullin and Secretary Kreese, a party of 30 members of the Hood River Shrine Club will motor to Portland Monday for a ceremonial. Several candidates for initiation will be escorted to Portland by the local delegation.

The Pacific Power & Light Co., which will begin work of constructing a dam next week, two and a half miles of flume and a 7,500-horsepower hydroelectric plant on Hood River just south of the city, has begun to construct a camp at the Powderdam, where a plant of the company is at present located. J. E. Shinn has arrived here to take general supervision of the work.

While the crews now engaged are small and Mr. Shinn is unable to tell at present just what the maximum strength of the labor will be, it is anticipated that the number employed will set a new record for Hood River valley construction work. About 300 men are now engaged in road work in the valley. The power plant crews are expected to equal this number. The cost of the new plant will reach $1,250,000.

To the surprise of local observers, the Columbia, which has been rising rapidly for several days, fell slightly Tuesday night. At a standpoint throughout the day it began to rise slowly late yesterday afternoon.

John Koberg, inundated when levees broke last year, says the levee alarm that he felt the first of the week has been lessened by the failure of the river, apparently, to respond to the warm weather that has prevailed over the headwaters for the past week. "I have been studying the charts for the past 20 years," said Mr. Koberg, "and I believe the present condition warrants us to expect no serious flood stage. Anyhow, we are going ahead with our planting and cultivation."

Boy Accidentally Shot

George, 12-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer, who reside at the west edge of the city, suffered a bullet wound in the shoulder Monday night while trying to extract a cartridge from a 22-caliber rifle. The wound was not dangerous.

Neighbor boys had been trying to shoot a crow. Young Palmer is an expert with a rifle, and when they jammed their gun they went in him for aid.

An X-ray photograph was made yesterday to locate the bullet.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our thanks and appreciation to our many friends and the members of the American Legion for their kindness and sympathy, also the many floral offerings in the death of Carl, our loved one. Mary J. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Berry and family.

Association Issues Bonds

The Apple Growers Association has authorized an issue of $50,000 in bonds for the purchase of the storage warehouse bought for this sum recently from the Davidson Fruit Co. The bonds, which will bear seven per cent, will run for two, three and five years. It is anticipated that the issue will be oversubscribed locally.

MACMILLAN'S DAD IS REMARKABLE MAN

Dr. Finlay MacMillan, father of N. H. MacMillan, manager of the Grange Co-operative store, is characterized by a Nova Scotia newspaper as one of the most remarkable men of the province. Although in his eightieth year, Dr. MacMillan is still an active practitioner. He recently participated in a celebration at Dalhousie Medical School in honor of the 50th anniversary of his graduation. The following is reprinted from the Nova Scotia paper:

"I have come here to study and learn, not to criticize," said Dr. Finlay MacMillan, of Sheet Harbor, the oldest living graduate of the Dalhousie Medical College, when he visited the old Admiralty House yesterday morning to see the newest development of modern science, the Health Centre. Then he added, "But had I come to criticize I would have nothing but praise for it, it is a splendid thing altogether."

Of an erect, almost military carriage, a light, wiry, boyish figure, and vibrant personality, Dr. MacMillan, seen at the Health Centre by an Evening Echo reporter yesterday, looked to be in the prime of life, yet he was 79 on Christmas Day and graduated from the Dalhousie Medical College 50 years ago. He is still in active practice and feels as well as he ever did, he declares, despite a country practice which has kept him busy since he graduated.

Dr. MacMillan was particularly interested in Nutrition Classes at the Health Centre as he looks upon it as an outstandingly important branch of medical practice. "The fishermen of Nova Scotia do not live their days out," he said, asserting that this was because many did not understand the proper way of taking nourishment and were ignorant of hygiene in many cases. There was a sameness about their food, and they did not get nearly enough fruit as orchards were rare along the coast. He felt that the Health Centre could do a big thing by spreading their knowledge throughout the province and creating interest in preventive measures like proper nourishment. Many families also drank a great deal of tea and gave it to their children instead of the wholesome milk they should get. This practice would pass away when knowledge was properly dispersed.

In regard to the Dental Clinics Dr. MacMillan said that he was glad to see such progress in this line. He could not but recall the days when unskilled men went through the country places pulling teeth and lacerating gums horribly. He had many a case as a result of treatment of that sort. Dental work, in his opinion, indicated a lack of nutrition as improper teeth conditions were a great menace to health. "There is as much difference between medicine and surgery as they were when I started out and they are today, as there is between daylight and dark," said Dr. MacMillan, and went on to explain that the preventive measures which were so strongly emphasized in the health center ideas were then practically unknown and when epidemic threatened, few precautions were taken to prevent its spread. He recalled a flu epidemic at Sheet Harbor in his early days and it was very bad, indeed. In one house every bed was occupied by ill patients and he himself had to sleep on the floor. Dr. MacMillan also spoke of the great loss of life in the cities when appendicitis was known as inflammation of the bowels. This was but one of the many diseases that had been overcome in the past 50 years. The herb treatment of women doctors had been prevalent in the old days and a hot foment with turpentine on it was looked upon as a regular panacea. Some of these women had been very clever in many ways though, Dr. MacMillan pointed out. He saw in the Health Centre, he said, an unmeasured advance in the health direction and hoped that it would long continue in its work of educating the public to better preventive measures.

Before concluding the interview the reporter asked Dr. MacMillan his opinion of country practice and was informed that while cities beckoned to the young doctor and money was scarce in country districts, nevertheless, a country doctor was thrown more on his own resources and had more incentive to study when he knew he could not get other doctors in on consultation in an emergency. In many ways he had to act on his own initiative and this in itself was a good thing for him.

VALLEY CHANGES CONFUSE PIONEER

John Ettinger, pioneer orchardist of the West Side, whose place is now owned by G. H. Wollam, got lost Memorial Day while trying to motor with family and friends to view his oldtime surroundings. A number of road changes have been made since Mr. Ettinger, who now lives at St. Johns, resided here, and many forested areas have become thriving orchards. The visitor drove for an hour before he found his goal. Mr. Ettinger was so confused over the changes made here that he became entirely disorientated. When he started home he headed east toward Mosier. The party had traveled several miles before it was discovered that they were on an unfamiliar section of the Columbia River Highway. The visitors were guests while here of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kerr, old friends of the Frankton district. They bought along a bountiful picnic lunch. Mrs. Kerr made coffee, and a sumptuous banquet was eaten at the Kerr home.

C. O. HUELAT'S MOTHER PASSES AT SALEM

C. O. Huelat was called to Salem Saturday by the death of his mother, Mrs. S. E. Huelat, aged 83 years, a pioneer of Marion county. Mrs. Huelat crossed the plains with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Belt, by way of the Oregon trail in 1850. Another son, A. B. Huelat, merchant of Seattle, survives. An only daughter, Mrs. W. A. Morris, lives at Oakland, Calif. Funeral services were held from the Episcopal church at Salem Monday afternoon, interment occurring at the family plot in a Salem cemetery.

Two Speeders Arrested

H. C. Hoffman, of Chehalis, Wash., and J. L. Clark, of Portland, were arrested Tuesday by Traffic Officer Murray for speeding on the Highway. Mr. Murray stated that the former was making a rate of 38 miles an hour, while Mr. Clark was traveling 42 miles an hour when overhauled by the motorcycle officer.

GOODYEAR OFFERS CROSS-RIB CORD

Addition of a complete new line of cord tires to sell at popular prices, has been announced by D. W. Sanford, manager of the Portland branch of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of California.

The new line will be called the Cross-Rib Cord, on account of the cross-rib tread design. It will not supplant the well known All-Weather Tread tire of the company, but will be a companion line to it. The new tire will be marketed through Goodyear tire stations only and will sell at 20 to 25 per cent less than the All-Weather Tread tires. It has been in course of development and testing for a number of months and will be ready for general distribution in June.

"There are two reasons for bringing out the new line," says the Goodyear statement. "One is to give our dealers a tire to meet the needs of customers to whom the cost is an important factor. The other is to give the dealer a tire for so-called commercial accounts, meaning firms who have a number of trucks and buy them in quantity."

"Two changes only in the construction of the tire as compared to the All-Weather Tread tire has been made in order to effect lower prices. The tire, however, should give as high a mileage as the All-Weather tread. The Cross-Rib Cord tire is one-cure tire, as against the two-cure process used on All-Weather tread tires. Second, the design used is a mild tread, rather than the All-Weather tread. The tread rubber in the Cross-Rib Cord, however, is a tough, slow wearing stock that should give excellent mileage to users."

The cord fabric used in the new tire will be made of the same quality of long staple Arizona Pima cotton as the All-Weather tread and the rubber will be of the same grade exactly, except in the tread. The tire will be the same full size as the All-Weather tread except in the 30x3 1/2 size.

Forest Fires Across Columbia

While a forest fire in Klickitat county, Washington, the smoke and flames of which attracted attention here Monday night, burned out Tuesday, smoke rising in Skamania county north of the Underwood district last night indicated that the latter fire has made considerable progress. The fire Tuesday reached orchard sections, endangering tracts of trees.

The weather is unusually hot and dry for spring, ideal for the spread of forest fires. Maximum temperature here Tuesday and yesterday was 88 degrees.
