GETTING AHEAD

It is the individual who is master and not the slave of money who gets ahead.

Careless management tends to "keep one's nose constantly to the grindstone."

Careful management aims to systematize spending and facilitate saving.

The use of a check-book instead of the pocketbook evidences careful management.

This Institution cordially invites business, household and personal Checking Accounts.

Only Half The Story

Save by all means, but its just as well to occasionally think through a little farther.

Without in any way detracting from anything we have printed about thrift and saving it is only fair to say that it is just as important to SPEND WISELY as it is to SAVE. If you are not getting along as well as you think you should, possibly you can find the reason by looking through your cancelled checks.

A definite plan of SAVING with a determination to SPEND WISELY will surely bring gratifying results.

LUNCH CLUB VISITS SCHOOL

MEAL IS SERVED BY SCHOOL GIRLS

American Education Week Is Observed—
Capt. Wilbur Addresses Assembly
Musical Program Rendered

The Tuesday Lunch Club this week observed American Education Week by a visit to the high school, where luncheon was served to the members of the organization by the students of the domestic science department. Following the luncheon an assembly program was rendered as follows: Singing of "Star Spangled Banner" by the students and guests; salute to the flag; song by entire audience; songs, girls' freshman glee club; piano solo, Harry Iversen; reading of President Harding's proclamation, City School Superintendent Cannon; songs, boys' glee club; reading of American's Creed and an appeal to patriotism by National Commander Owsley, of the American Legion, J. W. Crites, principal of the high school, who was chairman of the day for the Lunch Club; contralto solo, Miss Prudence Anderson; address by Capt. Geo. R. Wilbur, commander of the Oregon department, American Legion.

Capt. Wilbur emphasized the need of education for Americans, in order that the government might properly function. He cited the big things of the program of the American Legion, the main one of which was to bring about the spirit of Americans among the children of who bear merely the stamp of American citizens. He quoted from Nicholas Murray Butler, former president of Columbia University who said, "The difficulties of a democracy are the opportunities of education." "Americanism," said Capt. Wilbur, "is not real just because it is stamped on a man's back, as it were. It is a thing of the spirit, and men and women must be made to sense it by feeling it in mind and body. We have lots of the kind of Americans we do not want, but we must endeavor to educate them and bring their trend of mind in accord with our own."

Capt. Wilbur declared that elementary education was an absolute need. He cited the announcement of the program as scheduled for Tuesday of Education Week, a day to be devoted to patriotism. The program called for an emphasis of the devotion to one flag expressed in one language. Capt. Wilbur declared that any child who decided to give up his education before reaching the high school was discounting his opportunities of being a real, useful American.

Capt. Wilbur declared that he hated war. He expressed the hope that the boys and girls of the high school would not have to face any such contingencies as the current generation in meeting the emergency of the great war. He declared a confidence, however, that in case of war the young men of the school, backed by the young women, would be ready. His declaration brought a spontaneous applause from the students.

"I like to see the man or woman," he stated, "who expresses a hatred of war as he or she hates sickness. I do not like that kind of citizen who declares such a hatred of war that he or she is ready to declare an unmodified opposition to all war. It is not a true spirit of Americanism that so decries war as not to be willing to make the sacrifices of a righteous war."

The session was not without its facetious moments. During the luncheon one of the young women handed to Superintendent Cannon a jar, asking him to open the jam and pass it. With his mouth watering for a taste of the delicacy, he uncorked the top. Suddenly a huge green snake leaped across the table. The young women had lined the inside of the jar with real strawberry jam. Oiled paper was placed over the lining of sweets, and the snake, built on springs like that in a jack-in-the-box, was squeezed into the jar. The incident led lunch club members to ask Mr. Cannon if the school taught the art of camouflage.

Officers of the lunch club elected for the ensuing term were: E. Acheson, president; E. C. Smith, vice-president, and W. M. Sylvester, secretary-treasurer. The club's only guest for the day was Willis Stewart, former grain dealer of Saakatchewan, here with his family seeking a location.

The lunch club members by unanimous vote expressed their appreciation of the luncheon served by the young women.

NEW POWER PLANT NEAR COMPLETION

The Pacific Power & Light Company, with operating headquarters in Portland, is rapidly bringing to completion its new power plant on Hood River, where the installed generating capacity will be 9,000 h. p. This plant is located adjacent to the city limits of Hood River and within sight of the Columbia River Highway bridge. It will be a first-class, modern power plant in every respect, and the ground for its construction has been so arranged as to make an attractive showing. The plant when completed will cost about $1,250,000. It not only will serve the rapidly growing districts adjacent to the Dalles-Hood River-White Salmon territory but also considerable power will be sold wholesale in Portland. It is expected that this plant will be ready for service in March. As many as 600 men have been employed at one time on construction. The plant is fed through a wood slave pipe line 100 inches in diameter and two miles long.

The Pacific Power & Light Company annually spends for new plants and service extensions on an average of $250,000. This is in addition to money spent in new power development, such as the one on Hood River and the proposed new Deschutes development at the reclamation power site, a permit for which has been granted to the Pacific Company.

The Pacific Power & Light Company recently opened a new preferred stock selling campaign. Last spring during a similar campaign about 1,250 shares of preferred stock were sold to light and power customers of the Pacific Power & Light Company. These stock sales were all made by the regular employees of the company and not through solicitors and brokers.

The Pacific company has just completed the largest washing machine campaign for cylinder type washing machines ever held in this part of the country. Three hundred and fifty-five washing machines were sold during the month of October. The first prize for the largest number of machines sold went to the Kennewick district.

AXTELLE AGAIN IS TEACHERS' HEAD

Officers of the Hood River County Teachers' Association have been elected for the ensuing year as follows: Geo. Axtelle, principal of the Parkside grade school, president, and Mrs. Vanne Wheeler, principal of the Otell grade school, secretary.

Supt. Gibson states that Hood River teachers have affiliated 100 per cent with the State Teachers' Association. About 60 per cent have joined the county association. The program was varied and some part about it has been of interest and value to every teacher. Out of town speakers brought messages from different state schools and organizations. Dr. Estelle Warner, representing the State Board of Health, spoke to the teachers concerning the health education program of the board. Mrs. Bertha Hill, from the State Parent-Teacher Association, emphasized the importance of cooperation between home and school and outlined the policy of a successful association. Frank Shepherd, from O. A. C., explained the scope of rehabilitation which is being carried on at O. A. C. and other Oregon schools, and urged upon teachers the importance of teaching safety first. Mrs. Richardson, from Extension Division of U. of O., substituting for Earl Kilpatrick, spoke on the importance of standard tests for all subjects taught, and also presented the plan known as the 6-4-4 plan whereby we should have 6-year grade school, 4-year junior high school, and 4-year junior college.

Several local speakers added to the success of the institute. Rev. W. H. Boddy gave an inspiring address on "The Theory of Progress." Capt. G. R. Wilbur explained the attitude of the American Legion on American education, and Miss Elizabeth Hopper renewed every body's interest in the health program. "Our Profession," and called attention to some of the outstanding criticisms of teachers. Miss Elmer Hettinger talked on "The Human Touch in the Teaching Profession." Round table discussions for grade teachers were led by Mrs. E. E. Miller, Mrs. Steele, and Rev. W. S. Gleiser; for the high school group, by Miss Bertha Hunter, Dr. Warner and J. W. Crites.

Miss Ruth Young sang two pleasing solos and Mrs. Belle Henney led the assembly singing of some institute favorites, such as "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Christs" and "The Ball Frog on the Bank." A group of Frankton children performed their physical exercises to the direction and music of phonograph records. The machine was loaned by Kresse Drug Co.

Monday afternoon was given over to the County Teachers' Association. The address of the afternoon was given by Charles McKinley, professor of political science at Reed College. Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: Geo. Axtelle, president; A. M. Cannon, vice-president, and Mrs. Wheeler, secretary-treasurer. The president appointed committees for the several activities of the association.

Bright and early Wednesday morning the teachers motored to The Dalles to join the Wasco teachers in the last day sessions. The speakers there were E. J. Klemme, from Bellingham Normal, and State Superintendent J. A. Churchill. Mrs. Belle Henney sang two beautiful solos. J. W. Crites extended to the Wasco county teachers the Hood River teachers' invitation to a social evening later in the year and Mr. Acheson accepted for the teachers there. After luncheon Mr. Cannon voiced the hearty appreciation of the visiting teachers for the delicious repast served by The Dalles domestic science department.

A very successful institute closed at 2:30 Wednesday and the teachers hastened home for Thanksgiving.

BISHOP PADDOCK TO WED IN SPRING

Friends of Bishop Paddock, formerly of the eastern Oregon diocese of the church, whose resignation at the recent Portland convention of the church aroused statewide interest, have just received letters from Bishop Paddock, who announces his engagement to Miss Jean Aitken, of New York City. The wedding will occur in the early spring, when Bishop Paddock and his bride will leave for Europe on a honeymoon tour.

Miss Aitken was an enthusiastic worker in a parish of Bishop Paddock in New York City 15 years ago. The engagement is the culmination of a romance of years' standing.

Bishop Paddock, who formerly made his home here, left about a year ago for New York City. His resignation followed criticism directed at him because of alleged informality.

MOUNT HOOD STORE BURNED FRIDAY

The Mount Hood store burned to the ground at 4 a. m. Friday. The cause of the fire was not determined. The adjoining residence of Harry Hilt, who with W. J. Wyatt owned the store, was also destroyed. The entire contents of the store and practically all of the household effects of Mr. and Mrs. Hilt were burned. The store had just completed hauling its winter supply of goods, and the loss was estimated at more than $15,000 partly insured.

OPERAS HALT EVENING MEETINGS

THE COUNCIL POSTPONES ELECTION

American Legion Delays Election in Order That Members May See "Bohemian Girl" and "Martha"

The presentation of "The Bohemian Girl" Monday night and "Martha" Tuesday night by the American Light Opera Company completely demoralized evening professional and business engagements. Citizens were not willing to forego the privilege of seeing productions usually witnessed only in metropolitan centers, and meetings scheduled for the nights were postponed.

Monday night, when City Recorder Howe prepared at 7 o'clock for the session of the city council, he was greeted by the arrival of the city fathers. About 8 o'clock Councilmen Cameron and Davenport appeared. Mr. Howe finally made use of the telephone to learn that Mayor Sobbe had gone to the show. The mayor had informed other members of the council that the council meeting would be postponed because of the show. Later Councilman Walters arrived. It was then decided that the city body would not meet before last night, as the three members who failed to witness "The Bohemian Girl" Monday night decided that they would see "Martha" Tuesday night. The annual budget was scheduled for adoption last night.

HUELAT AT MEETING WITH EDITORS

C. O. Huelat, on the executive committee of the Oregon Retail Business Men's Association, was in Portland Sunday to meet a committee of the Oregon Editorial Association. The problems with which the publishers and the retail men have to deal were discussed with a view to promoting a better understanding on the part of the members of the two associations.

The newspaper men's organization was represented by the other members of the committee, S. C. Morton, of the St. Helena Post; Paul Robinson, of Vernonia, and Hal E. Hoss, of the Oregon City Enterprise, who is secretary of the Oregon State Editorial Association.

The belief was expressed, following the gathering, that the conference would result in benefit, not only to the newspapers and retail men, but to the public generally, through the cooperation to be fostered looking to the general betterment of the state's business and commercial enterprises.

IMPROVEMENTS NOTED AT COLUMBIA GORGE

Visitors over the Columbia River Highway the past several weeks have noted the vast improvement at the grounds of the Columbia Gorge Hotel. A crew of artistic Italian stone masons has been engaged throughout the autumn months in quarrying native material and cutting it for bridges, walls and an entrance gate. Appealing parapets have been constructed from cut stones along the brink of the precipitous canyonside.

A new stone bridge has been constructed over Phelps creek, and rail walls of the cut stone have been placed along the driveway to the hotelery from the Highway. The entrance gate will be the most attractive along the entire scenic thoroughfare. Massive but handsome stone columns on either side of the entrance will be surmounted by an iron grille work.

A large tract just east of the hotelery was purchased last summer. Here workmen have been clearing away rock and debris and making preparation for a great playground for adults and children. A swimming pool will be constructed, and every form of recreational amusement for old and young will be provided.

OPEN HOUSE AT ALL SCHOOLS TOMORROW

In celebration of American Education Week, all the schools of the city will keep open house tomorrow, and City School Superintendent Cannon has invited all residents of the city to visit class rooms. Guests will be welcome to come and go at will throughout the school day.

At an assembly at the high school Tuesday Capt. Wilbur declared that he felt ashamed of himself for not knowing more of the work of the city schools. "We too often think our part is done," he said, "when we pay our part of the taxes to keep the schools in operation."

BOY SCOUTS WILL SELL XMAS SEALS

Saturday the Boy Scout Troop of Hood River will aid in the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals of the Oregon Tuberculosis Association. The boys will canvass every home in the city. Mrs. R. B. Perigo, chairman of the Red Cross Seal campaign, states that booths will be opened at downtown stores, where the seals will be placed on sale from now until Christmas.
