THE DALLES BIG FIRE IS RECALLED

The Astoria fire called to the minds of a number of local citizens, former residents of The Dalles, the big fire of that city, which occurred some 20 years ago when 20 blocks of business houses and residences were destroyed.

"The fire started about 1 p. m.," says C. N. Clarke, who grew to manhood in the Wasco capital. "By sundown it had burned itself out, and a desolate sight I have never seen. The flames were stopped at the edge of the block in which our home was located."

"Those days every household in The Dalles had a cow. The animals wandered away to pasture on Columbia lowlands in the day time. I was returning home at dusk the night of the fire. I met the herd coming in. I thought I would cut our cow out and take her into the alley and milk her. I shall never forget the confusion of all of those cows as they sought their familiar night time haunts that evening after the fire. Such a bawling I never heard. I started back up the street with our cow and all the drove took after me, bawling at my heels. I looked like a 20th century Pied Piper."

Pledges for Anti-Japanese Bill

Enough votes have been pledged by members of the 1923 session of the Oregon legislature to make certain the passage of the American Legion's Anti-Asian Land Law, which failed to secure the required number of signatures to place it upon the ballot November 7 due to lack of time to obtain names, according to George R. Wilbur. The carefully drawn bill, which in effect prevents further acquisition of agricultural lands of the state by any person not a citizen and ineligible to become a citizen, protects all present ownership and treaty rights. Commander Wilbur says the Legion is in earnest and wants Oregon to follow at this late date, the lead of California and Washington in such legislation. Two legislatures have rejected this legislation due, according to Legion leaders, to a combination of ignorance of the situation and purpose, politics, and vicious selfish interest.

LEROY CHILDS IS BACK FROM VISIT

Leroy Childs, who returned last week from a tour of the middle west, says that the low price for apples this season will have the natural effect of causing growers in various parts of the nation to grow lax in the fight against disease and insect pests. As a result, he says, it will mean the elimination of many acres of orchards as a commercial factor.

Mr. Childs went to the middle west primarily to attend the annual convention of the American Pomological Society at Council Bluffs, Ia. where he delivered an address on spray equipment and the application of sprays in the control of pests and diseases. He says he finds that the Northwestern people growers are far ahead of growers of the middle west in using up to date machinery.

The session was attended by apple growers and scientists from all parts of the United States and Canada. Mr. Childs says that some very fine apples were exhibited from all points of the east and south. Apple men from all parts of the United States and Canada, he says, are finding that there is a greater need for cooperation among various national organizations, in order that some markets may not be oversupplied, while other centers go without.

Mr. Childs says he was particularly interested in exhibits of Golden Delicious apples, which have been heavily advertised the last few years. He says he finds that they grow much better, apparently, in the middle west than in the Northwest.

While away Mr. Childs visited the Illinois state experimental station at Urbana, which he says is doing valuable work in being accomplished in the development of new breeds of apples. Over 150 acres are planted to breeding orchards there, he says, the station making an effort to find new varieties that will rank high for quality of their fruit and for hardiness. He also visited the Wisconsin Experiment Station, where, he declares, pathologic investigations and experiments on soil nutrition will result in much good the nation over.

Mr. Childs, while away, inspected shipments of many apples from various Northwestern districts. Because of the car shortage, he says, many apples have arrived at their destination in a soft and mealy condition that is resulting in a decreased consumption of fruit.

Notice to War Stamp Savers

"It is to be hoped that every person who can do so will exchange War Savings Stamps, soon to fall due, for Treasury savings certificates," said Postmaster F. R. Rexius. "The large amount of money invested and the great number of persons who purchased war savings stamps showed that the people of this country could save money as well as help the government in the prosecution of the war and buy Treasury savings certificates, they will demonstrate that the thrift lessons of the war have not been without effect. The holders of war savings stamps have seen investments of about $25 grow to $25 in five years, and larger amounts in the same proportion. They can see the same thing repeated if they reinvest in Treasury savings certificates. Interest accumulates at the rate of four per cent each year, compounded semi-annually. These savings certificates are exempt from the normal federal income tax, and from all state and local taxation, except estate and inheritance taxes, and may be held to the amount of $5,000, maturity value, for each issue, by every member of a family. They are backed by the credit of the United States government and afford an easy and sure method of saving."

Miss McCrea In Honolulu

Hood River friends have just received word from Miss Bess McCrea, who had been engaged in library work in Los Angeles, announcing that she had left for Honolulu, where she will be head of the Island Department of the Library of Hawaii.

"Mrs. McCrea," writes Miss McCrea, "will be Honolulu but as there will be more or less traveling around to be done, I am looking forward to an interesting time."

Miss McCrea was formerly in the Portland library. During the war she was engaged in library work with the expeditionary army in France. She is a sister of Fred F. McCrea, rancher of Prineville. The family resided here a number of years, having been engaged in orcharding.

J. R. NUNAMAKER IS NOW APPLE KING

Following a record orchard deal of last week, J. R. Nunamaker now controls by far the largest acreage of orchard of any man in the mid-Columbia. Mr. Nunamaker, with whom is associated his sons, Floyd, Don and Neal, purchased from H. F. Davidson and the Davidson Fruit Co. 240 acres of property in the Willow Flat district. A hundred and sixty acres are in adult bearing trees of standard commercial varieties. Simultaneously Mr. Nunamaker took over the 27-acre tract of the J. H. Day estate on the Neal Creek road. This property has been in control of Mr. Davidson for some time. Mr. Nunamaker now has an approximate 500 acres of orchard land.

The Davidson interests at the same time they sold to Mr. Nunamaker the big Willow Flat holdings, disposed of an 80-acre West Side orchard place to C. King Benton. Both Mr. Benton and Mr. Nunamaker are directors of the Apple Growers Association. The new purchase of the former lies just across the county road from a tract purchased several years ago from Lake & Wilson. Mr. Benton now owns about 140 acres of bearing orchard.

Mr. Davidson, a pioneer grower and shipper, who was up from Portland to close the deal, has been devoting his time almost exclusively the past two years to canning interests and to development of export business. He has taken charge of the Rupert canning interests and last summer, working with big Washington apple interests became the president of the Fruit Export Corporation, which plans on handling huge blocks of boxed apples in the United Kingdom and other European countries.

While the consideration for the deal was not divulged, it is understood that the total of all the tracts exceeded $200,000.

The Hood River Fruit Co., operating warehouses here and at Odell, which formerly was the selling agency for the Davidson Fruit Company's apples, will continue to be in fact in local marketing. It will be owned and operated by C. H. Castner and W. H. Chipping.

The Benton deal was negotiated by R. E. Scott.

Jarvis' Apple House Burns

H. E. Jarvis, Willow Flat orchardist, last Thursday night lost his apple house, which contained 2,200 boxes of fruit. The fire was supposed to have started from an overheated stove. The total loss will reach about $5,000. Mr. Jarvis, until he arrived in the city, thought that his insurance on his apples had lapsed the day before.

Houses in lot adjoining the apple house were saved.
