THE GLACIER OFFICE

Just another proof of Buick Economy

Hood River, Ore., Jan. 30th 1923

Hood River Garage, Hood River, Ore.

Gentlemen:

Believing you might be interested in a test I held the other day, I thought I would let you know of it.

It all came about when I made the assertion that I could run from here to Cascade Locks on a gallon of gasoline, a distance of 20 1/2 miles. There were some non-believers in the crowd, so I rigged up a gallon jar on the side of the car, disconnected my feed from the main tank, drained my vacuum and bought a measured gallon of gas from the Highway Auto Co. and started. The car stopped half a mile west of Eagle Creek, a distance by speedometer of 23.6 miles.

Upon returning to Hood River, I had the car and load weighed and it showed a total weight of 3980 lbs.

My car is a 21-45 model and has traveled over 14,000 miles. The motor part has never been off and the valves had been ground about two months previous to the time of the test. Aside from the fact that it was a cold, raw day with wet pavement, we made two stops on account of Highway trucks blocking the road and the motor was running continuously.

Hoping that this test will be of benefit to you and trusting that 1923 will be a bumper Buick year, I remain

Yours very truly

Walter W. Shay

Ask a Buick owner as to what his tire, gas and oil mileage is! He will have a real message for you.

SCHOOL NEWS

Three different assemblies were called during last week. At the regular Tuesday afternoon assembly, Rev. W. H. Body of the Riverside church, addressed the students on the subject, "Building Up Your Reserve." Through numerous examples and illustrations he showed that bringing up reserves was not only a duty, but that it is the time for providing reserves if one would have them when needed Thursday morning at 10:30 Rev. Mooley, a returned missionary from the Orient, gave a very interesting exposition of life among the Chinese and Tibetans. Friday, at 1 o'clock, Prof. E. T. Reed, of O. A. C., gave an excellent address on character building in the next 10 years. He showed that those who were successful in school were also successful in life.

Last Thursday films were shown to the high school and junior high school students during the noon hour and to Park street and Gee primary during the afternoon. The films included, first, showing the processes from sheep shearing to the finished cloth. A third was on animals and birds, and a fourth on the manufacture of soap.

The high school literary society program will be this Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Lucile Gegenheimer will have charge. Parents are invited. Miss Helen Carson, of the high school faculty, was chairman of the delegates to the State of Oregon Student Body Officers and Editors held in Eugene last week. She visited classes in the Eugene high school and the university Friday. Erin J. W. Criss was also in attendance and reported a most excellent meeting.

This, Thursday, afternoon at 1 o'clock the Hood River High School Debating Team will meet The Dalles team. The question is: "Resolved, That the Principles of the Open Shop Should Be Adopted in American Industries." Our affirmative team, Viola Colvin and Roscoe Anderson, will meet the negative team from The Dalles, in our auditorium, and our negative team, Margaret Flagg and Phillip VanLuhm, will go to The Dalles. The public is invited to attend this assembly.

Our basket ball team, which went to Goldendale and Centerville last Friday and Saturday nights, was defeated at both places. The score was 28-15 at Goldendale and 16-12 at Centerville. The Goldendale boys entertained our team after the game and luncheon was served them.

Next Saturday night the Vancouver basket ball team will meet our team in the high school gymnasium. We hope to win this game.

Children Urged to Buy Sows

O. L. Orston, Barrett orchardist, is seeking to interest school children of the valley, who wish to enter club project work in industrial school fairs, in securing registered brood sows. He declares that the valley is far short of swine. He cites that the orchardists, who have attempted the growing of hops as a sideline, are of their more predominant industry, have been successful. He will endeavor to place brood sows in various districts.

Mr. Orston has arranged with the owner of a number of brood sows at Oakdale, Wash., to furnish the animals, of a weight of 200 to 300 pounds, for $50. The registration papers will accompany each hog. The animals are of the big boned Poland China. Geo. T. Galligan, who has raised this breed of swine, declares it is a type that does extremely well in the valley.

Mrs. Ferguson Tells of Indian Myth

A large crowd was present at Riverside Community church Tuesday night to hear Mrs. J. R. Ferguson, president of the Women's Club and well known dramatic reader, give a sketch of "The Bridge of the Gods." Mrs. Ferguson, who has made a study of the book, which deals with mid-Columbia Indian mythology, has related every part of American legend to the story of the young New England minister, who leaves his homeland to become a missionary to the Indians.

CONGRESS PASSES LOCAL BRIDGE BILL

Truman Butler, chairman of the Hood River-White Salmon Columbia River Bridge and Port Association, Monday received a telegram from Representative Simeon, announcing that a bill granting permission for the Interstate franchise had just passed the House. The bill, introduced by Senator Jones, of Washington, had already passed the United States Senate.

Some question had been raised as to the attitude of the Department of Agriculture, which has declined to sanction toll bridges in case of possibility of their drawing a revenue from connection with federal-aided state roads, and proponents of the local span were fearful of delay in the congressional bill. The prompt action of Congress, it is declared, will hasten formalities of financing.

C. & M. Convention Successful

The annual convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance of the Oregon and Washington district, which ended Sunday, brought the largest crowd to the local church that ever attended there. Sunday night the church was overcrowded and many people were turned away. When a call was made for missionary offerings, the people responded with $1,500.

While the convention sessions were officially closed meetings at the Christian and Alliance church will continue until February 18, Rev. Herbert Dyke, of Oakland, district superintendent of California, being the minister. Rev. W. F. Kirk, pastor of the local church, says he has never seen a keener interest taken in local meetings.

WOMEN'S CLUB NEWS

The Scholarship Loan Fund of the Oregon State Federation of Women's Clubs will be more than $100 richer as the result of a home talent show given Wednesday night of last week by the Hood River Women's Club at the Rialto theatre. The gross proceeds of the show, entitled "The Land of Use to Be," amounted to $225. Mrs. L. L. Murphy was director.

Members of the cast of the pleasant show were: Miss Prudence Spight, Mrs. Frank Gilbert, John Carson, James Collier, Don Metzger, Lois Kneidel, Robert Perigo and Mrs. Murphy.

Complaints About Old Hall

Complaints of parents that the old Knights of Pythias hall rocked so much as to render dancers almost motionless, when as many as 50 or 60 were dancing on the floor, caused the city council, accompanied by contractors, to inspect the building Tuesday. The investigation disclosed, it was said, that the building was not constructed from a structural standpoint. The councilmen, however, say the old fraternal hall would be hazardous in case a fire should start.

Finance Church Began

The old Methodist church at Stevenson, Wash., is being razed and the new structure will be utilized in building a new structure recently completed. The old building, erected in 1890, was a structural failure. The new regular minister to occupy a church in the Hood River Valley, the Belmont Methodist church, had charge of the dedication of the pioneer house of worship.

News of the Golfers

Golfers are reported to be blooming in the Willamette Valley. And here in Hood River the desire to swing golf clubs is budding fast within the breasts of many. Judge Derby recommended C. DeHaven to try his hand at the club the other day. Mr. DeHaven after a few strokes felt that it was something that comes to every golf enthusiast, and the afternoon had waned all too fast and night was at hand. He displayed a greater interest in golf than did M. M. Hill recently, and the Hood River Golf and Country Club is stirring on a new member. Those who have been watching Mr. Hill and Mr. DeHaven, noting the fire of their club and their natural stance, say that they approach golf with a kind of sixth sense. Already tentative plans for a contest between the two pioneer orchardists is under way.

It has been suggested to J. W. West that he distribute captive golf balls and a few clubs among the crews of his West Fork logging camps this summer. The practice will keep the men interested, and further it may be that the skill can be put to utilitarian use. Geo. A. McKenzie started all this recently when he drove a captive ball across Hooded Hood river, thus reestablishing a line of communication badly needed in the Phoenix camp construction work.
