Your Reputation

Your home affords in a large measure the basis on which your reputation is built.

If a man has pride in his home he proves it by maintaining the good appearance of that home.

In order that a dwelling be kept up well and the family be comfortable and protected during summer months it is most important that the home be well screened throughout.

Your home deserves screens made according to absolute standards—standards as to size, material and workmanship.

Transfer the comfort and health of your family to your bed-rooms. Screens are indispensable to health insurance.

We are manufacturers of Screens of all kinds—stock sizes or made to order.

EDITORS WILL MEET HERE

1923 CONVENTION BEGINS FRIDAY
Oregon Newspaper Folk to Banquet at the Columbia Forge Hotel—Will Join
Legion on Mountain Side

With a few hours after participation in the life of the tourist camps at the Columbia Forge Hotel, the Northwest's most luxurious resort hotel, members of the Oregon State Editorial Association, whose 16th annual convention will convene here Friday morning, will be transferred to the more strenuous existence of the rough and ready hiking recreationists who love the wild and mighty places of the mountains.

The sessions of the first day of the convention, ending with a banquet sponsored by the Hood River Chamber of Commerce Friday night, will be held at the Knights of Pythias Temple in the city. At a very early hour Saturday morning the newspaper folk will be escorted by automobile over the 23-mile stretch of the Valley Trunk of the Mount Hood Loop Highway, on into the Oregon National Forest section of the great scenic thoroughfare and thence to the end of a road approaching the snowfields by way of one of the highest basins of Mount Hood. The editors will be honor guests Saturday and Sunday of the Hood River Post American Legion, on the eight annual Mount Hood Climbers' Closing business sessions of the editors will be held at a mile-high altitude on the mountainside Saturday afternoon.

The editorial delegates will arrive here Friday morning, register at the Elks Temple and be presented with the official badges. They will be escorted on tours of inspection through cold storage plants of the Apple Growers Association and other fruit shipping concerns and see the plants of the Hood River Apple Vinegar Co. and the Hood River Canning Co. Those interested in hydro-electrical development will be taken to the new plant of the Pacific Power & Light Co. Just completed on Hood river immediately south of the city at a cost of $1,250,000.

The full program of the association follows:

Friday afternoon—
"Building Better Newspapers."
1. Editorials, Claude E. Ingalls, Corvallis Gazette-Times.
2. News, Joe D. Thomson, Hood River Glacier.
3. Features, Ben R. Latta, The Dalles Chronicle.

Resolved, That the Oregon State Editorial Association endorse the Plan of Country Newspapers, Inc., George A. Cook, Ontario Argus, Administrator.

E. A. Koch, Dalles Observer, Negative.
"The Advertising Outlook," W. F. G. Thatcher, professor in advertising in school of Journalism, University of Oregon.

"Recollections of Early Days," S. F. Blythe, pioneer newspaper man of Hood River.
The afternoon session will close with a round table discussion of advertising problems.

Saturday afternoon—
Resolved, That we endorse Senate Bill No. 33 as presented to the 1923 legislative session for the printing of voters' information in newspapers instead of pamphlets. Elbert Bede, president of the association.

"Making a Big Profit from a Little Newspaper," Lord W. Adams, publisher of The Standard, Redding, Ida. and vice president for Idaho of the National Editorial Association.

"Questioning Your Subscribers," Henry Fowler, Bend Bulletin.
The morning session of Oregon from the Reader's Point of View, Levi P. Pennington, president of Pacific College, Newberg.

"How to Cooperate with Your Association and What Your Association Should Do for Its Members," G. Lansing Hurd, Corvallis Gazette-Times.

The session will end with reports of committees, the election of officers and the meeting of the executive committee with the new president.

Friday afternoon the wives of the editors and members of their families will be entertained with an automobile ride to the Devils Punch Bowls. They will return to the ranch place of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Moe for refreshments and travel thence on the way back to town to the Oak Grove golf links of the Hood River Country Club. Mrs. Moe will be assisted in entertaining the visiting women by Mrs. C. H. Cantner, Mrs. H. G. Ball, Mrs. Roger W. Moe and Mrs. Forrest L. Moe.

Saturday afternoon the women of the editorial party will be entertained by the Wyeast Club, a mountaineering organization of Hood River, who will escort them on tours of the glacial fields and flowered meadows.

Speakers at the Friday evening banquet will be: Hon. E. E. Brodie, ex-president of the Oregon and National Editorial Associations, "Twelve Thousand Miles Away" Capt. Geo. R. Wilson, commander of the department of Oregon, American Legion, "Campaigning, Military and Otherwise," Judge Fred W. Wilson, president of the Oregon State Bar Association, "Blackstone and Ben Franklin," Hon. J. Adam Bede, former congressman from Minnesota, "Why Adam Ate the Apple," Hon. N. J. Sinnott, representative in Congress from the Eastern Oregon District, "Down the Potomac," and Claude E. Ingalls, former president of the Oregon Editorial Association, "Paragraphs."

Judge A. Derby, member of the local bar, will be toastmaster. Mr. Bede, however, will be introduced by his son, President Bede, of the editorial association.

The Hood River Chamber of Commerce committee is composed of H. G. Ball, C. A. Bell, C. J. Calkins, C. C. Crew, Earl Frazz, J. H. Fredrick, A. S. Kolstad, S. J. Moore, B. B. Perigo, James Strathairn, Joe D. Thomson, C. H. Vaughan and Earl Weber.

Members of the Mount Hood Climbers' committee of the American Legion Post are: Kent Shoemaker, Geo. E. Wilson, Harold Krenner, B. L. Font and Edward W. Van Horn.

A musical program will be arranged for the banquet by Mrs. C. H. Sletton,

RAIN BENEFITS OFFSET DAMAGES

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good and the weather fairly precipitation that prevailed Thursday and Friday over the mid-Columbia, taking a heavy toll of late varieties of cherries, cane berries and hay fields, was a boon to orchardists, truck gardeners and dairy owners. The benefits, according to ranchers, will be far greater in Hood River county than the damage, although in instance individuals will suffer a severe loss from cracked cherries.

The heavy rain will result in a crop of peaches and apricots of fine quality in Wasco county, said R. H. Weber of The Dalles. While the injury will be heavy on hay fields and cherry orchards, it will be more than offset by the benefits to the fruit.

Apple growers of Mosier and sections of Skamania and Elberta counties, Washington, where tracts are not irrigated, declare that the heavy rain will be of incalculable benefit. The apple crops of these sections this fall, on a scale of size and excellent quality. The cool, damp weather will also keep down codling moth damage. But few days this season have been warm enough for development of the worms.

The heavy precipitation washed the accumulation of dust from orchards, and the tracts of the mid-Columbia now have one of the most physical appearances in the history of the valley.

Upper Valley had
FINE BERRY CROP

J. F. Thompson, Upper Valley rancher, here Monday on business, declared that the strawberry crop of that district had been better than that of any other section. Practically all growers, he said, sold their berries to cannery. The bulk of the fruit went to the Dalles, McCall and Long Beach of the Dalles. The Hood River Cannery packed as much of the product as it could care for.

"We received eight cents per pound for our strawberries," he said, "and that this year, said Mr. Thompson, "we expect that this year we will receive 12.50 per crate, deducting the cost of cultivation and all other growing charges. The canners furnish us with crates and at harvest time our only cost is for the packing. The net returns on Upper Valley berries this year run close to 2000 per acre on an average."

The district and the berries probably result in this year in the future. Mr. Thompson says that considerable injury was done by the heavy rains of last week. The precipitation, however, brought more benefits than injury to ranchers of the section.

MOORE NAMED ON BANK COMMITTEE

S. J. Moore has accepted appointment by E. H. Senneker, Portland banker and president of the Oregon State Bankers' Association, to the agricultural committee of the association. Other members of the committee, according to a letter just received from Mr. Moore from Mr. Senneker, are:

Kenneth Powell, vice president of the Bank of Woodburn, chairman; E. H. Senneker, Portland banker and president of the Oregon State Bankers' Association, to the agricultural committee of the association. Other members of the committee, according to a letter just received from Mr. Moore from Mr. Senneker, are:

George A. Cook, Ontario Argus, Administrator; E. A. Koch, Dalles Observer, Negative; "The Advertising Outlook," W. F. G. Thatcher, professor in advertising in school of Journalism, University of Oregon.

PORTLAND PLANNING REFRIGERATED SPACE

At the instance of A. F. B. Steele, general manager of the Apple Growers Association, who recently conferred with the Portland Dock Commission, it is considered likely that a unit of Terminal No. 4, where apple shipments are assembled, will be equipped with cold storage. While no definite information was at present available, it was declared that members of the Portland commission are of the opinion that refrigeration data will be rushed and that the cold storage unit will be ready to handle Hood River apples in time for the coming harvest. The plant will have a capacity for 100,000 boxes.

Mr. Steele stated that the Apple Growers Association would take space for handling at least 300,000 boxes of apples. If the refrigerated space is made available.

The Portland Dock Commission has increased the wharfage charges on inter-coastal traffic, but handling charges were decreased, placing Portland on a parity with Seattle, Wash.

K. P. BAND TO GIVE CONCERT TOMORROW

The K. P. Band will give the season's first downtown concert tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. The musical organization will assemble at the corner of Second street and Cascade avenue.

Omaha Man Praises Valley

Declaring the Columbia River Highway had won his heart on a former visit Robert Rosenwald, head of the Drexel Shoe Co., which operates the largest retail store west of the Mississippi river at Omaha, Neb., arrived last week with Mrs. Rosenwald to spend a month at the Columbia Gorge Hotel. Mr. Rosenwald declared that he had never found a place more pleasant for summer atmosphere of Oregon.

HEAVY RAIN CLEAR SKIES

CLIMB CONDITIONS WILL BE GOOD
Smoke Goes and Part of Mountain
Banks Laid—Lighter Post Ready for Annual Party

As a result of the rain of last week, mountaineering conditions the latter part of this week will be ideal, according to a delegation of the Hood River Post, American Legion, who in preparation for the Third Annual Mount Hood Climbers' Closing business sessions, visited the snow line and forested slopes of the peak Sunday. The men, accompanied by Mark Weygant, veteran Mount Hood climber, declare that they never saw the atmosphere clearer. The heavy rain, the legionnaires say, insured against any forest fires for some time to come. Provided the skies are without clouds, those who participate in this year's Legion party will have an opportunity of obtaining rare landscape views from the summit of the peak.

Mr. Weygant, who has ascended to the top of Hood 517 times and who has escorted more men and women to the summit of a snow peak than any other Northwestern guide, says that the snow that fell on the mountains last week will make climbing better. Through some peculiar freak the last winter the snowfall on the glacial and snow fields was far short, and already ice fields were being formed. Weygant had feared that the climbing over the bare ice would be extremely difficult. He says he welcomes the new snow, which will make the steep journey to the mountaineering party easier.

Legionnaires on the tour of inspection were: Kent Shoemaker, chairman; Geo. E. Wilson, commander of the department of Oregon, American Legion, and E. H. Senneker, member of the Mount Hood Climbers' committee and W. W. Cochran, Hans Theissen and Earl Dunbar.

A second party will leave at once for the mountain to arrange for an 8-ounce mountain party for 1923.

The trail leading down a spur to the top of the peak from the 7th and 8th streets, from the end of the road to the top camp, will be closed and the climbing over the snow will be postponed until the snow has melted and the mountain is clear. The climbing will be postponed until the snow has melted and the mountain is clear.

George A. White, a member of the Oregon State Bankers' Association, was accompanied by the legionnaires on the tour of inspection.
