Free Auto Show
The Hood River Garage is giving Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings a lecture, display and motion pictures. No matter what make of car you may own, Mr. Fenton will explain during his lecture the best means for taking care of an automobile. The motion pictures are new and cover a trip made to Government Camp last month by a Buick four through five feet of snow on a test made of four-wheel brakes for the Portland police and fire departments. One of our most uncanny displays is a Buick four set on a pedestal. This motor has many of the working parts cut away and it still runs under its own power. The front axle with 4-wheel brakes is mounted on a display stand so that car owners can see the principle of this type without getting under a car for this inspection.

Mr. Fenton, who by this time is known to a great part of the car owners of this state due to his Portland Auto Show fame, will give, as usual, not a lecture but a talk. This talk embraces Buick cars but Mr. Fenton's fame lies in the fact that he has given everyone who has ever heard him and more real information on the care of cars in general than most instruction books.

Buick is the largest producer of Quality Automobiles. See for yourself at the Auto Show at the Hood River Garage. Lectures, displays and motion pictures Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The W. C. T. U. will meet Tuesday at 2.30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. M. S. Crowell. After a short business meeting there will be a mother's meeting. Mrs. Edgington has charge of the program. Everyone is invited. The membership drive is coming on swimmingly. Both the team captains will report new members at the meeting.

The members of the L. T. L. biked out to Koberg's beach Saturday and report a wonderful time. After lunch they held their regular meeting. The party consisted of 26 members and the superintendent, Mrs. Ames. The leaders were Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Groff and Mrs. Mockley. They will meet Saturday at 2.30 p. m. in the Methodist Sunday school room. Everyone come.

The Pine Grove Union met at the home of Mrs. Herbert Vannier last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Jeffries, vice president, presided, Mrs. A. I. Mason, the president, being ill. Among the many things discussed was a reception for new members to be held March 20 at Pine Grove. A motion was carried that the union subscribe for the Union Signal and Young Crusader for the Hood River library. Each member answered roll call with some current event, making the meeting very interesting. Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Southwell and Mrs. Schmitz, members of the Hood River union, attended the meeting. After the meeting Mrs. Vannier and Mrs. Kliner served refreshments.

The world's prohibition barometer indicates dry weather ahead. With a local option measure a leading issue in Czechoslovakia, the Italian Medical Congress endorsing a government program for restricted consumption of alcohol, the parliament of Latvia adopting a law for the teaching of scientific temperance in schools, Austria putting a prohibition plank in the platform of one of its parties, Switzerland preparing for a campaign for local option, and the return of eight avowed temperance advocates to the English house of commons, it is safe to assert that the anti-alcohol sentiment is moving at no small pace in Europe.

Many believe that the former saloon keepers of the nation are no longer making an organized fight against prohibition. But they are alive and planning for the greatest campaign they have ever made between now and spring. This may be seen in the resolution passed at the fourth annual convention of the Retail Matt Beer and Dealers Association when it met in Chicago recently, when they gave their president and executive committee power and instruction to use every effort to elect men to the state legislature and national congress who favor such legislation as will permit the manufacture and sale of good, wholesome wine and beer. Ernest Kunde is president of the organization.

United States Senator James E. Watson says, "Every man elected to an executive office anywhere in this country takes oath to obey the constitution of the United States and the laws enacted in connection therewith and if they will all steadfastly enforce that oath and as vigorously enforce the prohibition law as they do every other law, enforcement will come to pass within a reasonably short time."

Du Pont Company Aids Students
How one of the country's oldest and richest corporations is aiding deserving students at the University of Washington to pursue their studies is revealed in the announcement that Melville T. Perkins of Tacoma has been awarded the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. fellowship in chemistry for the second time and is now engaged in a fundamental study of the chemical reactions occurring around the electric arc.

Since 1918 the du Pont concern has offered each year a fellowship in chemistry that has enabled students to pursue graduate work and conduct important industrial researches along chemical lines. According to P. E. Doremus, manager of the western division of the company, his concern sometimes suggests subjects upon which the students may work but such subjects are not obligatory. The subjects suggested are for the general benefit of the public and not for the du Pont concern or the explosive industry in which it is largely engaged.

William A. Hardy, of Seattle, received the first fellowship offered and conducted an extensive research on the subject, "The Nitrogen-Hydrogen Gas Cell."

The following year the award went to William C. McIndoe, of Portland. He carried on an extensive study of "The Composition and Properties of the Resin Found in Utah Coal."

Mr. Perkins has been awarded the fellowship for the last two years, his first year's work being on the "Are Method of Nitrogen Fixation."

The fellowship is open to seniors or graduate students in chemistry and chemical engineering who show creative ability in chemical research. The award is made on recommendation of the staff of the University of Washington chemistry department.

The University of Washington is one of the 20 largest representative universities in the United States in which du Pont fellowships are offered to students.

"Our company feels that the University of Washington, located as it is in this rapidly developing country, is especially well adapted for graduating students who will take a keen interest in industrial and chemical research," said Mr. Doremus. "We feel that these young men and women accomplish remarkable results for the public in general through their research efforts. There are many problems to be solved and it may be that we may uncover a new Edison here in the Pacific Northwest."
