

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR FALL BUSINESS

(By Courtesy First National Bank) Reduction of income taxes, reduction in discount rate to a world-wide low figure, and rebounding of both bonds and stocks to the year's highest level have given rise to a new feeling of optimism and the conviction that business this fall is going to be far better than recently expected. Chain store sales show substantial increases over a year ago, so also do bank clearings, building, life insurance sales and both gasoline production and consumption.

The outstanding feature of the reverse side of the picture of current conditions is the unprecedented slowing down in the steel industry. Pig-iron output was cut almost as fast in percentage of decrease as in the great steel strike of 1919. Unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation are the lowest on record since the war, thus giving optimistic reflection of the manner in which buyers have hesitated about placing new forward orders.

Hand-to-mouth buying has been practically universal with the result that most inventories are at a minimum. Just as the business world is more sensitive to indicated decreased activity, so it is more sensitive to increased activity.

Today we are in a critical condition because of the growing breach between the people of the cities and the people on the farms of the country. We have failed to look upon agriculture as a business and the majority of people do not realize that it is the greatest business in the world. It is a big business, but in comparison with other businesses it is not a profitable one.

Business men of the cities must see to it that the 45,000,000 people on the farms have an even break with city people. Rural children should have the same facilities for education, recreation and health as city children.

We in the cities have been forming every kind of an organization to protect business and labor, but we have not had sense enough to help organize the very institution that is the basis of all prosperity. We need to rehabilitate the farmer, get farmers in all civic groups and secure the cooperation necessary to make for balanced prosperity.

The Standard Lumber Company, which closed down for the week of the Fourth for repairs, started again Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Weaver left for Portland Monday of last week. Mr. Weaver had been working at Horn Bros' mill.

OAK GROVE

News was received Monday of the death of B. F. Eadie, who moved from here about a year and a half ago. He had a long and happy life and has a host of friends who regret to hear of his death.

Miss Lemp Hukari and her house guests, Helen Gronholm and John Reith, of Astoria, also Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rowling, Gus Matson, Atto Annala and Arne Hukari camped at the head of the finished Loop highway Saturday and Sunday.

All of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fenwick were home over the Fourth. Besides the ones at home were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Leveque and three children and Bill Fenwick, all of Longview, and Mr. and Mrs. Errol Holmsted and daughter, Nanette, and Frank Fenwick, all of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hukari journeyed to Corvallis one day last week to bring home their daughter, Vienna, and Irma Annala, who were attending summer school for club work at O. A. C. They visited friends in Eugene en route.

A crowd of Oak Grove young men went buckberrying last Sunday near Green Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Teivo Annala have moved into the house recently vacated by the C. E. Graves family.

Mr. and Mrs. Silla, of Cold Creek, Wash., spent the Fourth with the John Edstrom family.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Horn and son, Glen, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bailey and daughter, Jerry, went for a fishing trip to the Deschutes last week. They report that mosquitoes bite better than fish up there.

Hella Annala, who has been visiting in Portland, returned home Thursday of last week with the A. L. Upson. The Upsons were at Upton Oak over the week end.

Today, July 10, is the day set aside for the examination of Oak Grove children by Dr. Estelle Ford-Warner. It will be held in the basement of the library in the health room from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

KROLL'S BAKERY NOW IN OLD CITY HALL

E. C. Kroll, whose bakery plant was gutted week before last, has leased the old city hall and has installed a new electric oven and other modern bakery equipment. He turned out his first bread and pastries Monday night. The old city hall property, unoccupied except for storing materials since the city completed a new municipal building several years ago, and for a short time utilized as a plumbing shop, has been improved considerably by Mr. Kroll, who declares he will establish a bakery second to none in the state.

Mr. Kroll appeared before the city council Monday night and asked that the city join in aiding him with the renovation of the old building. He made an offer of $2,000 for the purchase of the structure.

A. W. Outhank appeared for A. A. Schneck, owner of the old bakery property, and asked the city to make recommendations toward the repair of the structure, if it will be allowed.

Mr. Kroll has leased the building formerly occupied by the Electric Bakery and in August will start a retail store there. All residents of the city are invited by Mr. Kroll to stop at any time at his new bakery and inspect it.

We are going to endeavor to maintain one of the highest class bakeries in Oregon," he says, "and we want the people to come and get acquainted with us and offer constructive criticism."

The hot weather of last week caused the Middle and East Forks of Hood river to become decidedly milky and fishing in these streams was reported poor. Anglers, however, who visited West Fork and Lake Branch over the week end reported fair catches.

Commercial fishermen report that the run of salmon is on the increase and many big ones have been landed the past several days. The low water has resulted in the catching of fish wheels, but nets are taking a rich harvest. A chinook that weighed 73 pounds was caught in traps just east of Stevenson.

Mrs. Georgia French and young cousin, Allen McLane, recently witnessed a battle royal between an adult silver gray squirrel and a cock robin. The squirrel had evidently attempted to molest the nest of the robin's mate.

The infuriated bird pursued the squirrel to the lawn from the branches of a tree and the animal was driven to bay and forced to protect its eyes with its front paws. The chattering brought Mrs. French from her home. The squirrel snatched a nut to a pine tree and chewed up a cone. The bird, with ruffled feathers, stood watching, angrily chirping at intervals. It renewed the attack as soon as the squirrel left the pine cone. The fight continued until both seemed entirely exhausted.

One of the best lots of mountain trout caught in the mid-Columbia during the past several weeks was landed Tuesday by Frank Moore, of the Hood River Drug Co. Mr. Moore delighted a number of friends with gifts of the fine trout.

DEVELOPMENTS OF CODLING MOTH GIVEN

(By Leroy Childs) Moths of the second brood of codling moths are just beginning to appear in the station cages. Because of this development, growers should prepare to apply their first cover spray for the second brood for the week beginning with July 15. More specific information will be sent out through circular letters but all information seems to point to the fact that this date will be approximately the correct time.

Because of intermittent hot and cold weather during early summer, the first brood of worms was badly broken up, there being three distinct groups of activity. The moths that will soon be hatching are the progeny of the first group and which were quite numerous in many orchards of the Lower Valley. This first activity is not very important in the higher sections, such as Willow Flat, Oak Grove and in the Upper Valley.

If growers feel that their orchards in these sections are free from worms and contemplate missing any of the sprayings, this appears to be the logical time to do so. Later development will probably be more extensive than would be true in the near future. Growers, however, throughout the Lower Valley, who have had trouble in the past controlling worms and those who have found worms in numbers this season, can hardly afford to allow their orchards to go unprotected.

NEW BUTLER BANK NEAR COMPLETION

The exterior of the new stone home of the Butler Banking Co. has been completed and staging is being removed. The interior of the building, which is being constructed by Hammond & Cline, a Portland firm, will be finished by September 1, when the bank will enter the new structure.

The walls of the new building, which will cost an approximate $75,000, are of a sandstone utilized in the executive buildings of the state of Washington at Olympia. The interior is finished in a white marble. It is declared the handsomest banking building in eastern Oregon.

Coopers Spur Lateral Progresses W. I. Kirby, contractor working on the Mount Hood Loop highway, here yesterday announced that he had established a new camp along the old Cloud Cap Inn toll road. It was necessary to lay two miles of pipe to convey water from the Tilly Jane creek to Mr. Kirby's camp. He will work on a mile unit of the road lying east of the Tilly Jane.

Mr. Kirby says there is no doubt of the 11 miles of lateral road being completed by this fall. Mr. Kirby and members of his family and road crew participated in a picnic on the mountain over the Fourth at Cloud Cap Inn. They climbed to Coopers Spur. About 50 enjoyed the pleasant party.
