ONE FLAW

While one of the longest, most detailed and most complete documents ever read before the city council, the agreement between the city and C. O. Huelat, whereby the latter is employed on a share lease basis to operate the municipal auto park, has one serious flaw.

It doesn't take a prophet to foresee somewhat of a hullabaloo raised over this matter of the park sales concessions.

THE OLD ORDER PASSES

The other day, before the cold snap came on, while a west wind, of near gale proportions was blowing, we noticed somebody's Sunday Oregonian whipping madly around a telephone pole.

Today you never see a teamster, extremely and excitedly busy trying to hold a team of snorting steeds while a piece of wrapping paper blows down the street.

A TRAFFIC WARNING

Motorists traveling down from the Heights are advised to take Thirteenth street, as the frozen surface of Ninth street has rendered that thoroughfare hard to negotiate.

THE WEATHER

As late as last Sunday we were boasting about our spring-like weather. It was fatal, for Sunday night the unheralded blizzard swept down on western Oregon, and by the next day it was beginning to snow in Hood River.

SINCE WHEN?

Journalistic errors are not infrequent. The best, however, that we have seen of late days was in the current Better Fruit. It was: Visiting in Portland a few days ago, A. I. Mason, president of the Hood River Apple Growers Association, protested over the quality of apples being served in the city's hotels and restaurants.

A BRIDGE APPROACH

It was apparent to everyone who traveled to The Bridge on the day of the opening that something must be done by the county at an early date to eliminate the danger of the blind turn beneath the O. W. R. & N.

traverse beside Hood river. Citizens and county authorities might well employ some of the winter days giving the matter of the Bridge road a thorough survey. It behooves the county to act early, in order to avoid the possible consequences of a serious accident at the blind turn above mentioned.

EASY TO BRIDGET

Pat—I don't see how th' devil they lifted them spans onto them stones across the Klumbly river on the new bridge to Hood River. Their asswey assell! His Bitter Half—Pat, yurra phool. They wory floated up the stream on barges, n' histed by roo-mattick pressure!

A MAJOR PROJECT

The major project for Hood River and Portland the coming year will be the launching of some plan that will bring about adequate hotel facilities on the Coopers Spur lateral of the Loop highway.

NAME SUGGESTION CROSSES CONTINENT

One suggestion for a name for the bread of the Hood River Bakery traveled almost all the way across the continent. It came from Mrs. Geo. Rader, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio. Her letter to the bakery company follows: "As we take the Glacier I take pleasure in dropping you a line to suggest a name for your bread. We have a good bakery here in Upper Sandusky, and on the wrapper appears the words, 'Eat More Bread.' There a delivery truck carries a big picture of a fine looking little boy eating a piece of the delicious bread. I suggest the name, 'Eat More Bread.' A granddaughter of mine, Miss Irene Bower, lives in Hood River. It has been six years since I have been there. We think Oregon is one of the best home places on the globe."

The majority of cooling moth worms spend the winter under the scaly bark of the tree. Take a dull hoe or have a blacksmith fashion you a hander scraper and carefully remove the rough scaly bark from the trunk and limbs. Pay particular attention to the crotches of the trees, advises the state college experiment station.

Proper circulation of air is necessary to continued good health of the flock in the winter season. Poultry are susceptible to colds at this season, so draughts are to be avoided. The Oregon experiment station secures ventilation by leaving the front of the house open. Draughts are avoided by keeping all windows and other openings closed.
