WE GREET YOU

The Glacier greets its readers and advertising patrons this week with a modest edition. We do not seek to celebrate the year's end with an elaborate issue...

Most of the New Year's editions call for a volume of special advertising. We do not, however, feel justified in calling on our advertising patrons to help carry the burden of such an issue...

We wish all of our readers and all our patrons a New Year of happiness, the joy of good health and of achievement.

THE COOS BAY TIMES

Of all the special Christmas editions of newspapers from smaller cities of the state which have come to the exchange desk of The Glacier during the past few weeks the Coos Bay Times, of Marshfield, was outstandingly the best...

It would have been an excellent thing if every Oregonian could have received a copy of the Christmas edition of the Coos Bay Times, for it told most impressively of the great resources of the southwestern Oregon empire...

CHARLES SAMUEL JACKSON

Sam Jackson, as he was more familiarly known throughout the state, has gone on. But the memory of him, because of his achievements, will last long in the memory of mankind throughout the nation...

Mr. Jackson has left as a monument to himself the Oregon Journal. The week before his death he and his family left another monument in their gift of a magnificent park to the University of Oregon Medical School...

BE TEMPERATE

We wonder how many New Year's resolutions will "go bust" today. New Year's resolutions are fine things, if they would be kept, but too frequently they are based on a penitence of the moment, and fall before the first adversity...

It is interesting to note the various opinions and views as expressed in New Year's sentiments of contributors to this issue of The Glacier. Without exception they all urge a temperance on the part of Hood River valley folk in this year of prosperity...

After seven years of faithful service as Justice of the Peace, Judge A. W. Outbank will retire from that office. He has made a good Justice of the Peace. When he took the position, his work was minor. During the past few years, however, the office of the Justice has become an important one...

Mr. Blagg, a term as well marked by a reasonable application of the laws.

While we are willing to go down the line with anyone in securing better quarters for Company C, and indeed, we would not be adverse to having Hood River county and the state join hands in the construction of an adequate armory for our military unit, we would urge some very careful investigation of conditions as they exist in other places, where such institutions have been maintained, before pledging ourselves toward a municipal auditorium. Indeed, at present we have one major plan afoot—the community hospital. Let's complete that before taking on another big task.

While it may have sounded a little rough, we cannot see that there is any call for an apology from Mr. Weber in his expressions on the needs of Hood River high school football. We wonder if the spirit that a fighting, winning football team would engender would not more than pay its way.

It takes 10 days of weather like that of recent occurrence to make us appreciate as we should the chinook wind. Its warm breath is felt again over the green forests of Oregon, and Oregonians are again normally happy.

The scarlet fever situation, we are told, shows no improvement. Parents are urged to keep their children at home during the holidays.

The chinook is rotting the slough ice. There should be no need to warn parents in keeping their boys and girls away from the river.

Junior High News

Junior high celebrated Christmas by two assemblies, one held Tuesday from 1.45 to 3.30 p. m., and the other Wednesday from 1 until 2.30 p. m. The program Tuesday was as follows: All joined in singing "Joy to the World," "The Holly" and the other of "O Holy Night" with Mrs. Henney at the piano; Ronald Ingalls recited a poem, "When All the World is Kin," which was very interesting; the four boys under the direction of Mrs. Henney sang a Christmas carol; 11 children under Mrs. Blashfield's supervision gave a very interesting monologue, which caused much laughter; Helen Jones, accompanied by Mrs. Henney at the piano, gave two selections which were greatly appreciated; Art H. of the "Birds" Christmas Song, together with a group of songs not pertaining to Christmas, were sung.

Different songs marked the opening of the Wednesday assembly. Rodney Eselstra and Mary Campbell played several selections at the piano. There was a short talk on the spirit of Christmas by Mr. Barnett. Roy Hathorn, president of the Santa Claus and Garland Osborne, as an assistant, distributed the gifts. A good time was reported by all.

Ralph Laraway Joins Mack The Portland branch of the Mack company last week announced the affiliation of Ralph Laraway, of Eugene, with the Portland organization January 1.

Mr. Laraway has been engaged in the automotive business for a number of years, the last two of which have been closely connected with the Mack company. It was this experience with the selling of new and used Macks that led Mr. Laraway to seek permanent affiliation with the Mack company.

The organization of the Portland Mack truck branch is unique in the respect that its turn-over of employees is one of the lowest of any similar organization in the northwest. The sales office and shop are all composed of members of the organization who have been with the Mack company for a number of years, some from the time that the Portland Mack branch was organized.

Man Victim of Exposure J. Pickard, transient-aged 36, a victim of the recent severe weather, who removed from the sick ward of the jail to the hospital yesterday, suffering from the result of exposure. Several nights ago, Pickard, his clothing drenched and frozen, sought to sleep in the dry at the jail. Yesterday when he was taking his leave, thanking officers for the courtesy, it was noted that he was seriously ill. He was put to bed and a physician called.

Game Association Meets January 7 President Fredrick wishes to call the attention of sportsmen to the annual meeting of the Hood River County Game Association January 7. All members are urged to attend. All citizens interested in the preservation of wild game and in the propagation of game fish are cordially invited to be present. The meeting will be held, beginning at 8 o'clock, in the Hood River club rooms over the First National Bank.

RADIO NEWS

The Apple Growers Association of Hood River, Oregon, was one of the prominent cooperative marketing associations in the United States cited as an example of successful and satisfactory undertakings in this field in a radio talk from Chicago broadcast recently from the Sears-Roebuck station WLS by G. C. Biggar, farm and market editor. Mr. Biggar, inquisitive, broad water, broad minded, deeply of the opinions of outstanding agriculturists and agricultural associations on questions of interest to farmers.

Upon this occasion the discussion hinged upon cooperative marketing and A. F. S. Steele, general manager, was quoted as saying: "This association handles about 80 per cent of the tonnage of this valley. Each year our tonnage is increased, both by more fruit coming in through more intensive cultivation methods and by new members. These growers in this valley are very loyal to this organization. We have had a fruit organization here for 30 years. It started with the Strawberry Growers Union and then became the Hood River Apple Growers Union, taking in the strawberry growers, and finally in 1913 the present organization was formed which includes all kinds of fruit, principally, however, apples, next in volume, pears, then strawberries, cherries and cane fruits. Our organization has 2,500 members. Each year we apply a fairly satisfactory price this year. We are getting a wider distribution than we have ever had in the past. This year there was an attempt made to bring into one large organization the various cooperative deciduous growers in the northwest, but the organization was not perfected, due to a number of circumstances and an attempt is being made now."

Indigestion

(By Frederick D. Stricker, M. D., collaborating epidemiologist, Oregon State Board of Health, in cooperation with the United States Public Health Service.)

Any refusal of the stomach to care for the food put into it, together with nausea, belching of gas, and pain in the pit of the stomach is usually called indigestion. If you are subjected to these symptoms you should see a competent physician. You will very likely answer, "Why! A little bit of indigestion is nothing." In a number of cases you may be right but the time when you are wrong means trouble. Indigestion may mean the beginning of serious trouble.

The most frequent cause of indigestion is improper diet. Either the amount of food is too large or the character of the food eaten is improper, or it is eaten too rapidly. It is a wonder that the human stomach is able to handle the amount of food that is put into it. The way it is abused. You overload your stomach with all manner of improper foods and then it balks and you call it indigestion. The growing of this condition is the application of common sense—regular meals, proper food, but not too much, and thorough mastication.

There are many causes of indigestion other than improper diet and it is these possible causes that demand serious consideration. Not infrequently it is the only manifestation, to yourself at least, of chronic appendicitis, ulcer and cancer of the stomach, gall stones, kidney diseases and certain nervous disorders.

Indigestion is the beginning of some serious disease, it may be that this early knowledge will make it possible to establish a cure. If, however, you elect to guess the trouble causing your indigestion is and guess diet, and you are right, you are lucky. If you guess diet and have ulcers or cancer of the stomach, you have made a mistake that you must pay for. Guess work is poor policy. It pays poor dividends in either health or comfort.

If you are having disturbances and indigestion after meals, and if regulation of your diet, such as eating regularly and cutting down the amount of food and eating well balanced meals is the beginning of some relief, lose no time in consulting your doctor. Nothing is gained by delay—everything may be lost.

Shay Moves Service Shop Walter Shay, who for three and a half years operated his automobile service shop in the Fashion garage, has moved to the Culbertson building, the old Hoop Market quarters. Just opposite the Glacier office. The new quarters are more centrally located, and Mr. Shay expects to be better able to care for his patrons.
