The faculty of the junior high school is to be commended for professional interest. All members attended the Oregon State Teachers Association meeting at Portland last week, being the only school in the city to have 100 per cent attendance. The teaching profession will take its place among the other great professions only when its members realize their professional responsibilities. Some teachers seem to have little desire for professional growth and advancement. Some of our teachers, and many from other places, were in Portland, yet did not attend any sessions of the state meeting.
