M. L. Emry was a visitor to the auto show in Portland the first of the week. He declares the show the best he ever attended.

The home of M. E. Esselstyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Esselstyn, whose wife is a teacher in the local schools, was burglarized last week in The Dalles.

Miss Josephine Smith, accompanied by a girl friend, was up over the week from St. Helen's hall in Portland visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Trafford E. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Copple journeyed to Portland last Saturday with their daughter. The latter was taken to Portland for an operation, having her tonsils removed.

Mrs. J. W. Ingalls spent last week in Portland with friends. Her son, Ronald, joined her Saturday, returning home Sunday evening with his mother.

August Guignard and son, John, who have been on a tour of the deciduous fruit belt of California, have left for southern California, where they will visit the citrus belt.

Howard's Aces, Rockford, Feb. 18.

Allyn C. Button, who has made his temporary headquarters at the Mount Hood Motor Co., is now representing the Benefit Savings & Loan Association in Hood River.

C. G. Cameron, associated with month in Portland studying again with George Wilbur Reed. Mr. Reed has been abroad since last June coaching under famous masters of music in Italy and England.

Audiences increasing at each service at the Valley Christian church. There has been added an orchestra of five pieces with 22 young people in chorus. Extra seats were provided for last Sunday and all filled.

The following Hood River folk motored to The Dalles to attend the funeral of W. A. Johnston: Dr. and Mrs. V. R. Abraham, Dr. and Mrs. H. D. W. Pineo, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Castner and Leslie Butler.

That slogan, "Barrett Goes to Church," is surely getting results. The church was full at both services last Sunday. There were 22 young people in the chorus. The next problem is to provide more seating.

Howard's Aces, Rockford, Feb. 18.

The party who took silk umbrella from the Hayward porch Sunday evening, January 11, is known. If it is not returned to 614 Cascade avenue or Apple Blossom cafe within a week prosecution will be started.

H. C. Cutler and sister, Dorothea, left Tuesday for Seattle for a few weeks' visit with Dr. C. L. Tenny, their uncle, and sister, Mrs. Grover Tachell. Mr. Cutler has many friends there, as it was his home town, he having been born in Seattle.

Big time! Where? Odell Odd Fellows hall. Who? Rebekahs! When? Tuesday evening, February 10. What? Readings, vocal and instrumental music, cards, music and dancing, cafeteria lunch. Admission at the door, 25 cents. Lunch according to your appetite. All welcome.

C. W. McCullagh, Northwestern manager of Sgobel & Day, has returned to Portland after a month attending the various trade conventions of fruit men in the east, and conferring in New York with Sgobel & Day.

Walter E. Davis, at O. A. C., is practice teaching in the Corvallis high school this term. He has charge of three classes a week, and as part of his work is required to supervise the home projects of the students. Mr. Davis is a senior in agriculture.

Father Ehrenbright, member of the Dominican order in Portland, was here Sunday to officiate at services at St. Mary's Catholic church. Fr. Joe Smith, who is improving from a serious illness of more than a month, is still at St. Vincent hospital in Portland.

Howard's Aces, Rockford, Feb. 18.

Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Clark motored up from Portland for a week end visit with friends. Mr. Clark says that the aple market is making a satisfactory wind up. He and his partner, E. A. Baker, have been very active the past season in handling apple accounts of various northwestern districts.

The following party accompanied Dr. Donald Nickelsen up from Portland over the week end for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Nickelsen: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Early, Reymund B. Early and Charles Coon. The latter, whose home is in Iowa, is an uncle of Mrs. Nickelsen.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Christian church will hold their regular monthly meeting at the church Friday and have designated it as visitors' day. An attractive program has been prepared. Each member will be expected to bring a visitor.

There will be a silver tea Friday afternoon from 2.30 till 5 o'clock, given by the Missionary society of Riverside church, at the home of Mrs. C. H. Vaughan. There will be a missionary speaker and a good program. A cordial invitation is extended to all women of the community.

The young people's chorus of 25 voices, together with a 6-piece orchestra, is proving quite an attraction at the Valley Christian church, the result being a crowded house at every service. This is part of the campaign of the young people in their efforts to see that "Barrett Goes to Church."

Local friends have just learned of the birth in Portland four weeks ago of a son to Dr. and Mrs. Walter D. Tuttle. Mrs. Tuttle, formerly Miss Dorothy Baker, spent her girlhood here. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Baker. Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle have two daughters. Mrs. Tuttle and the children are spending the winter in Portland with her parents. They will return in the summer to Honolulu, where Mr. Tuttle is civilian commander of the Pearl Harbor navy yard.

WATER CONCERNS TO GET EXTENSIONS

The six irrigation districts and companies covering the orchard sections of the Hood River valley and drawing their water from Hood river or tributaries yesterday received a notice from State Engineer Luper granting them a two-year extension in reclaiming lands and completing improvements in their systems. The State Water Board, which several years ago completed a survey of the watershed preliminary to a complete adjudication of water rights, originally limited the time for requiring inchoate rights to January 1, 1925.

"Considering the conditions which have existed as to agricultural development," says the order of State Engineer Luper, "and the fact that the rights of most of the applicants have been involved in litigation before the supreme court, good cause has been shown for an extension until October 1, 1927."

The water concerns involved are the East Fork Irrigation District, Middle Fork Irrigation District, Mt. Hood Water Co., Farmers Irrigating Co., Hood River Irrigation District and Glacier Irrigation Company.

RED CROSS VERY ACTIVE PAST YEAR

The Hood River Red Cross chapter Tuesday elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: Chairman, S. J. Moore; vice chairman, Leslie Butler; secretary, Mrs. J. W. Ingalls, and treasurer, Harold Hershner. The executive committee for the ensuing year will consist of H. E. Baker, C. A. Richards, Mrs. A. G. Lewis, Mrs. N. H. MacMillan and Dr. J. W. Sifton.

The annual report displayed that the chapter had been active in relief work the past year. Numerous transient families here for apple harvest were cared for. The climax of accomplishments, however, resulted from a swimming school conducted one week last summer at Koberg's beach on the Columbia, when the daily average attendance reached 200. Fourteen junior life saving certificates were issued to Boy Scouts.

PINE GROVE GRANGE TO GIVE MASQUERADE

The members of the Pine Grove grange will stage one of the biggest dancing parties of the season next Thursday evening—a masquerade ball. The proceeds will be applied to the grange debt. The grangers recently have made themselves popular in aiding in every way the raising of funds for the free lunch fund of the school. The fund has been augmented to a point that will insure the success of the free lunch plans for the year.

Howard's Aces of Melody will play for the masquerade of next Thursday evening. Numerous people are already working out plans for unique costumes. Pine Grove parties have become popular with many city people, and it is anticipated that the city attendance will be larger than ever next Thursday night.

SECOND BOUTS AT MT. HOOD TUESDAY

Next Tuesday night the second of a series of boxing and wrestling matches scheduled for the winter will be staged at the Mt. Hood Community hall. The wrestling bouts will be as follows: Hoots Howell, of Parkdale, versus Kenneth Malloy, of Odell; Pate Hutson, of Parkdale, against Harry Sonniksen, of Hood River. The boxing cards will include: Tuffy Holman, of Odell, versus Elton Buel, of Dee; Fred DeHart, of Hood River, against Wayne Rogers, of Mt. Hood, and James Fenemore, former Canadian army champion, versus Fred Smith, of Oak Grove.

The first of the bouts, held two weeks ago, proved popular, drawing those interested in sports from all sections of the valley, and it is anticipated that a large crowd will journey from here and other mid-Columbia towns next Tuesday. The bouts will begin promptly at 8.30 o'clock.

Taleakwa Camp Fire Notes

A monthly ceremonial was held at the home of Inez Young Saturday, January 24. In appreciation of the former guardian, Mrs. Brune, who has retired from Camp Fire activities, the Camp Fire presented her with a lovely guardian's pin. Miss Ethel A. Swarts, of the home economics department of the high school, has accepted the position as guardian. Miss Swarts will be assisted by Miss Margaret Harding and Miss Gladys Wilson, also teachers of Hood River high school. Elenor Whitely became a member of Taleakwa and will strive to follow the seven points of law.

Many things of importance were discussed at the ceremonial, after which dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Young. The girls ended the evening by initiating the new members, guardian and assistants. It was decided to turn over a new leaf and work harder to obey the three great laws of Camp Fire, which are Work, Health and Love.

January 30 the Taleakwa Camp Fire group held its first weekly meeting under the supervision of the new guardian, Miss Swarts. Helen Richards was accepted as a new member, and will officially become a member at the next ceremonial. At the close of the meeting the new guardian gave the girls some very helpful hints in regard to the development of Camp Fire.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kind aid and sympathy extended us during our bereavement attendant on the death and burial of our baby boy. Especially do we wish to thank those who brought floral tributes. Their ministrations will be held in sacred memory.
Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Keizur.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy, during the illness, and at the death of our beloved wife and mother. Also for the beautiful floral offering at the time of her burial.

DISCUSSION OF TOURIST HOTELS

(By T. H. Martin, manager of tourist resorts of Rainier National Park).

You should have a very carefully considered plan that will care for 650 people, at least 75 per cent of your rooms with bath, 315 to 320 rooms. If you are not prepared to face that situation from that standpoint, stay out of it entirely. I do not mean by that that a complete hotel of that size must go up to begin with, but you should have your plans to provide that many accommodations when complete. You could start with 50 or 60 rooms and then arrange for temporary partitions so that when completed what is used as a kitchen and a dining room can all be thrown into the kitchen, and the office and lobby be turned into the larger lobby that the completed unit would call for. I would not advise a larger unit than that to start with. That will not take care of a good many of the groups of people that travel—large parties of 120 to 150 (and the Northwest is going to see a lot of these during the next summer). They are not your most valuable asset. The type of people you want to care for particularly this year, the type which will be of the most value to you, and the character of accommodations they must have, are the moneyed people of the east who want suite accommodations for three, four, five, or at the most six people. This class of visitor does not come with the tourist agencies. They come in small family parties, and they want nice accommodations.

We started out in a very meager way financially. When I first approached Chester Thorne to talk the proposition over with him, and sort of prepare him for Mr. Mather's visit, the very best I could get from him was a promise to try to raise $10,000. He was very honest about it, but that was all he would put up. After Mr. Mather had spent a week end at Mr. Thorne's country home he raised his ante to $100,000. Mr. Mather was able to do that in his enthusiasm over the prospects. But that was not raised in cash. When we started on the work at Paradise valley we had less than $20,000 in real money. When we started to build Paradise that was all the money we had, but we had a bigger asset than money; we had a man back of the proposition who believed in it and was enthusiastic over it. When Mr. Thorne was once won over to that thing he gave to it all of his enthusiasm and support, and when we started our construction our estimated cost was over 100,000, and Mr. Thorne said, "Martin, go ahead, and when you run out of funds come to me and I will see that you get what you need." So I would come down to him and he would sign a note, and when we were through Mr. Thorne had endorsed notes to the extent of $87,000, and Mr. Thorne never whimpered.

To some degree that is what you are facing here in Portland today. The worthiness and the worthwhileness of tourist travel is boundless. It is the only plan of community development that pays its own way as it goes along. You cannot be anything out, but you must get into the hearts and the understanding of a few men here in Portland. There are two underlying facts upon which you have to build, because whatever we thought in the beginning, we know those two things now, and we have learned them through mistakes and through experience. First, the community needs the revenue which these tourist travelers bring, for the sake of the revenue, but they need it far more because of the understanding of these men we have to approach, which cannot be reached without first bringing them here.

If that is not so, if the economic value of tourist travel is not what we think it is, then it is not worth your while; but if it is, that means it is vital to Portland, and it is the duty of the people here to interest themselves in its development.

Don't go into this with the idea that you are going to corner a great financial opportunity on Mount Hood, because if you look at it from that standpoint you are doomed to disappointment. The federal government in all its branches recognizes the importance of the development of these great national parks, but they have not the money to do the work themselves and must get local people interested in it; but at the same time they are not going to let any small group of people get a cinch on the proposition. These national parks and these forest reserves are public domains. They belong to all the people, and no branch of the government is ever going to lose sight of that fact, no matter what sort of development you undertake. I have not always thought as I do today. Six or eight years of experience have led me to where I find it necessary to keep constantly before me the rights of the public in these parks and the possibilities of our return. Your development must be undertaken from the standpoint of community welfare, and I believe there are enough men here, as there were in Seattle, to take hold of it in the right way.

We have 167 stockholders, and they are all prominent business men, and they are interested primarily in the development of Rainier National Park. I have been the executive of the board of directors—a group of about 20 business men—ever since the inception of the company, and the only thought they have ever voiced has been, "Let's do this because the community needs the development. Let's do it for the public good." Whatever their thought might have been in the beginning, they have come to believe in it as a region.

We have always made money. We make no secret of that fact. Our annual reports show it in detail, and copies of our reports have been sent to the press of Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Portland, for whatever use they care to make of them. When we were first organized we gave some little stock certificates. People did not pay much attention to them, and a good many of them did not even keep them, but later, when we began to make money and pay dividends, they began writing in that the certificates had been lost or destroyed because they did not think they were ever going to get anything for them.

Don't try to cover anything up and don't try to fool the government. They have no objection to your making money. They want you to make money, and they want the development work to prosper. Some years we have made a net return of 10 per cent. We don't try to hide it. The government doesn't even want you to pass a dividend, and our board of directors has decided that we will not pass any more dividends. We are capitalized for about $515,000, and quite a large part of that is made up of earnings that have been put back into the development work. Our concession from the government provides for a certain division of the earnings on a percentage basis, but the government has said they will not ask for a division of the profits until we have paid all of our stockholders in full six per cent on their investments since the date they are made. The government is not asking for anything until all of those who have made themselves responsible for the development work have had a fair return on their investment.

In America the tourist season is regulated by the school holiday, and you cannot alter that fact. There is not a resort in the country which makes money until the first of July, and for the duration of that holiday you must be equipped to take care of your people in the way they want to be accommodated, but you can make money on these hotels.

The following discussion was developed in the open meeting after Mr. Martin's address:

"What is the entrance charge for automobiles?"

Two dollars and 50 cents for the season; that includes the winter season.

"Have you developed winter sports at Rainier?"

Yes, to a limited extent, and for the first time last year and this year we have added greatly to our facilities. This year we have as good a toboggan slide as there is to be had. We sent a man to Alaska last summer to pick out a team of dogs. We have a whole room full of skiis. Our chief drawback is that the hotel is not built for winter service. That is something for you to obviate in your very first building. At least one unit should be built with protected plumbing. We have kept open at Paradise Valley this year, and the local organization, the S. O. Y. P. (Socks Outside Your Pants) go in and have a wonderful time, and there is scarcely a day but what someone tramps in on snow shoes. You do not make any money on your winter sports, but it goes big with the local people and will get you some nice publicity. The unit where you plan to have your winter sports will have to be built lower down, but there is nothing you can do that will quicken the pulse of your local people and keep them interested in the development work you are doing like the winter sports.

"How large should the first unit be?"

Our first unit was 32 rooms and 100 tents.

"You are 100 miles or more from Tacoma, aren't you?"

We are 75 miles from Tacoma and 110 miles from Seattle.

"How did you start out with your first unit? Was it full?"

No, it was not. We could have filled it if we had had the accommodations people wanted. We had literally hundreds come there, look it over, and go away.

"What is your week end business now?"

Just what we can provide in the way of accommodations. There is no limit to it. All the business you can handle is there, but we are always fair and open with the people. We tell them just what we have, and have it arranged with the offices in Seattle and Tacoma now so that they know all the time what we have, and those who want accommodations do not come if they cannot get them. We have made it a rule that what accommodations we have go first to outside people, visitors. Our local people have been very nice about it. If they come and cannot be accommodated, they have been very nice about it; they can go away and come again some other time. But the visitor, the man who has come from a distance, must be provided for.

"What stage of development would you say we must reach before the public could be invited to visit the park?"

I would be perfectly frank with the people at all times. Tell them just what you have to offer, and if they want it let them come. If they do not, they will not be disappointed by making a trip and not finding what they want. It is too late now for you to get any hotel accommodations ready for this year, but you could have your camps in and your tents just as soon as the road is in.

"Then you would not book eastern people this year?"

You could not do it. They simply will not book if they cannot get the accommodations.

"How many units as you describe would you advise on such a place as Mount Hood?"

I don't know just how much space you have up there, so it would be pretty hard to say off hand. We contemplate three groups. We don't count Longmier; that is really just a stopping place for tourists to come and get a meal, but for real tourist development Paradise, and in the White river corner, and over on Carbon river would be the third place for development. I would never advise having any one unit larger than 320 rooms. At Paradise we cannot increase our camp any more; we have reached the limit which the space affords. We may have to increase our service building. We have increased steadily at the rate of 50 tents a year. We do not try to sell these people anything. Let them do as they like. Many of them come in with all their own equipment, intending to camp and provide for themselves, but they see an inviting looking camp and they take a tent and come into the service building and get their meals. We never even attempt to influence them. It is "do as you please" and we find in the long run it pays.

"About where, on Mount Hood, is the logical place for a hotel? The approach from the north is through the Hood River valley; what would your opinion be as to the proper place to locate the first unit?"

High Altitudes Bare of Snow

Unless later snows prevail the highland forests will be as bare of snow the coming season as last year, according to E. C. Wolfe, who was here yesterday from the upper West Fork of Hood river, where he is in charge of a logging camp of the Oregon Lumber Co. Mr. Wolfe reported that the ground is bare, where in the average season the snow is from three to five feet deep. Heavy rains are prevailing in the highlands, Mr. Wolfe reported, the total precipitation for the past two weeks having been estimated at eight inches.

The packed drifts of the highland forests, which are usually many feet deep at this season, are absent this year, Mr. Wolfe said, and he anticipates another dry season in the woods, unless late snows prevail.

Liquor Party Brings Fines

Justice of the Peace Blagg Monday fined Jack Hailey $300 on a liquor charge. Fines of $50 were assessed W. C. Vensel, James Pifer and Dean Hatch. All were taken Sunday night when Sheriff Edick, City Marshal Hart and deputies raided the home of Hailey, where a party was in progress.

With the jail filled with prisoners awaiting the grand jury session and serving out liquor sentences, the men could not be held and were released on their own recognizance. R. L. Nichol, of Mosier, failed to appear. Officers, armed with a bench warrant, visited the neighboring town Monday, but were unable to find him.

Hatch, when discovered by officers, was unconscious in a bedroom. A physician was called to resuscitate him.

Cascade Ferry Road Protested

McGowan & Sons, who own property just east of Cascade Locks, filed a remonstrance with the county court yesterday against a petition of C. T. Smith, who operates the Cascade Locks-Stevenson ferry, for a county road across their property. It was alleged that Mr. Smith, a resident of Stevenson, can utilize the proposed road but two to four weeks annually during the period of extreme high water, and that the opening of the way will be for his private benefit instead of public good.
