The taxpayers must be eternally vigilant. The legislature must be watched. Legislators must watch themselves. It is proposed by two bills, now on the table at Salem, to eliminate the office of county judge and to saddle the circuit court with juvenile and probate work.

The exact motive behind the movement is hard to fathom. Most certainly there is no need for it, nor even indication of a popular demand that it be brought about.

Just as an example, take the situation in Wasco and Hood River counties. Supposing that the bills should pass and be made into a law, what then would happen? Judge Adkinson would be made a county commissioner, and so would the county judge of Hood River county.

It would be an impossibility for Judge Wilson to assume all of this work and do justice to it.

What would eventually happen would be that another circuit judge would have to be created, and that would mean further taxation.

Next Saturday afternoon the electors of School District No. 3 will vote on the union high school proposition. It is hoped that enough interest will be taken to get a representative expression of opinion.

Fordson Demonstration Monday

With experts from the Portland assembling plant present, an interesting Fordson demonstration is scheduled for the Bartol Motor company plant Monday. A Fordson tractor will be dismantled, and then the experts will give lectures and answer questions of those present.

The Bartol Co. is creating considerable interest with the offer of a free $100 used car to go to the patron buying the largest amount of supplies for the month of February.

Baker Praises Levens

District Attorney Baker yesterday forwarded to Governor Pierce a letter congratulating him on the appointment of William S. Levens, former prosecuting attorney of Baker county, as state prohibition director.

"Mr. Levens is a man who will have the respect of all the district attorneys of the state," wrote Mr. Baker. "He will work in cooperation with the state's prosecutors and sheriffs in bringing about law enforcement."

Lunch Club Hears of Boosters

Tuesday the chief incident of the lunch club meeting was the report of Secretary Baker, of the Chamber of Commerce, on plans for a booster marching organization.

Boyce Buys Inuska Place

J. E. Boyce, already owner of a West Side orchard place, has purchased from T. K. Inuska, Japanese orchardist, a 30-acre place in the Oak Grove district, paying $12,000 for the tract.

Steinhauser Visits City

Joseph Steinhauser, formerly better known to Hood River apple growers than any big eastern apple operator, was here yesterday. He met with the directors of the Apple Growers Association yesterday afternoon.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my neighbors and friends for their aid and sympathy during my recent bereavement attendant on the death and burial of my beloved husband, especially to Dr. W. H. Smith, who brought floral offerings. Their ministrations will remain in sacred memory. Mrs. Andrew J. Turpin.

HAS HARROWING EXPERIENCE

But Rancher's Troubles End When He Gets John Deere Disc

Now that tractors are being used for orchard cultivation, the use of tractor disc harrows is practically universal, according to Beant Brothers. They say that a number of discs have been used, but that not all have been found adapted to orchard work, which requires a disc that is flexible, easily controlled, and one which will penetrate a cover crop.

Auxiliary Dance Saturday Evening

The Activities committee of the American Legion Auxiliary will give a dance at the Pine Grove Grange hall next Saturday evening. The proceeds will be appropriated for Legion activities. It is anticipated that the dance will draw a record attendance from the city.

INTERESTING RELICS ARE IN PORTLAND

Visitors to Portland will find at the museum of the Oregon Historical Society, Room C of the Public Auditorium, many interesting relics of pioneer days. Children should be taken there to see the exhibits, for they are of important historical significance.

Among other exhibits in the museum visitors will be especially interested in seeing the writing desk of Mrs. Margaret Whitman. This was brought across the plains in 1836 by Mrs. Whitman, the first white woman to come overland into the Oregon country.

The ship chest and mirror of Capt. Robert Gray, discoverer of the Columbia river, are also on exhibit. Captain Gray sailed into the "Oregon, or River of the West," Friday, May 11, 1792, anchoring a short distance from what is now known as Chinook Point, opposite Astoria. May 19 he named the river after his vessel, calling it Columbia's river.

The first printing press, brought to Portland from Massachusetts via Cape Horn in 1858, may be seen here. This was sent to Rev. Thomas Fielding Scott, D. D., the first missionary bishop in Oregon, of the Protestant Episcopal church, and was the gift of the Sunday school children of that church in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The type sent with the press was used in printing the first "Oregon Churchman" in October, 1861. The press was sold to S. A. English & Co., and was used in printing the Portland Daily News in the spring of 1866.

Size and shape of hatching eggs are characteristics of the Oregon poultryman cannot afford to ignore, says the Oregon experiment station. Texture of shell, shape, color and size of egg may be transmitted through the offspring.

Chicks need direct sunlight. Sunlight filtered through common glass does not provide the necessary elements for prevention of leg weakness. Getting the chicks out on the ground as soon as the weather permits is recommended.

Grand Jury Next Week

The grand jury will be called together next Thursday, when Judge Wilson will be here from The Dalles. District Attorney Baker has announced that he will be glad to have the residents of the city and valley who recently have expressed such knowledge of immoral incidents within the environs of the city come before the grand jury and tell all they know.

DRY ROT MENACES CITY BUILDING

Workmen Tuesday, tearing away partitions in the basement of the city hall, completed in 1920, found the structure menaced by dry rot fungus, which had completely ruined girders and were attacking heavy beams supporting the main floor. The structure, it was stated, might have collapsed with serious consequences had not the fungus been discovered attacking door framing. Beams four by six inches had rotted through and could be removed in chunks with bare hands. Ed Kreig, an expert on timber decay, is endeavoring to estimate the damage caused by the rot.

The fungus, it was declared, started because of improperly ventilating unseasoned timbers when the structure was erected.

Vinegar Company to Make Certe

While a decree was recently issued by the United States district court in Portland in favor of the Douglas-Pectin corporation of Rochester, N. Y., restraining the Hood River Apple Vinegar Co. from the manufacture of a jelly making product, which was being marketed as "Pectin," the local concern has entered a contract with the eastern corporation and will begin the manufacture of "Certe," the trade name of the nationally advertised product being marketed by the Douglas-Pectin corporation. The vinegar concern, too, was licensed to dispose of all the product it had already made and had on the market. The Rochester concern started suit last April, alleging patent infringements.

The pectin product is secured from the pulp of apples after cider has been pressed from it. It was formerly a waste. The local vinegar company next week will start its plant to turning out product for the eastern corporation.
