MID-COLUMBIA IS LURE OF TOURISTS

As the mid-Columbia orchard sections attain the lure that is theirs when the apple blossoms perfume the valley waysides, motoring conditions are becoming ideal. Hood River county road crews have been busy scraping and otherwise improving the lateral roads that penetrate districts of pastoral charm. The Mount Hood Loop Highway, which, as the season advances, will no doubt have its macadam surface "washboarded" by the heavy traffic of motor cars, is now in perfect condition, and the visitor who desires may penetrate as far as the Mount Hood National Forest, where snowbanks still shine among the firs.

The waysides are now a glory of bloom of wild flowers. The delicate pink of wild current shrubs greet the traveler from copees along the Columbia River Highway, and the golden blooms of Oregon grape are everywhere. The new growth of poison ivy, while uninviting to one who has been afflicted with the rash it leaves when grown familiar with, has a serpentine beauty.

The great bare hillsides that one views along the Columbia River Highway between here and The Dalles are now at their best. They are verdant, and the green of the short lichens and grass, that will soon wither away and become brown, shimmers in the sunlight. They remind one of a Kentucky thoroughbred that has shed his winter coat.

The new interstate bridge opens new fields to mid-Columbia motorists. The North Bank Highway, in the vicinity of Carson, has been cleared of slides, and those who have negotiated the road lately report it in excellent shape. Many who come out from Portland this season will return by the North Bank Highway, catching the wonderful panorama of the Hood River valley from Underwood mountain.

MERRIMENT WILL RULE AT FESTIVAL

Pent up merriment and devilry of the entire Northwest will have its opportunity for freedom Friday, June 19, the carnival day of Portland's 1925 Rose Festival. A parade which will include every comic feature it is possible to devise is planned.

Men dressed like pieces of pie, huge crawling crabs, dodo birds, animated billikens, mammoth walking apples, fire eating dragons, man-sized babies, founding mermaids and walking sticks that walk are within the range of grotesque figure possibilities to be seen in the afternoon parade.

The Grants Pass Cave Men, the Coos Bay Pirates, the Ashland Athletes, the Medford Craters, the Seaside Lava Bears, the Seaside Cheviots, the Vancouver Prunarians, the Seaside Promenaders, the Newberg Berrians, the Eugene Radiators, the Bandon Beach Combers, the Hood River Guides and other booster organizations will be invited to act ridiculous in the procession.

Other sections of the parade will be for civic clubs, fraternal organizations, high schools, railroad and steamship lines, industrial groups, theaters and film exchanges and nationally groups. A section for advertising floats is being considered.

Reverend Oregon, the king who ruled the annual Rose Festival up to 12 years ago, when the Queen of Honor became ruler, will be brought back to reign on this day. A contest to name this part of the festival celebration is under way.

The grotesque parade will be entirely apart from the Rose Festival formal parade, in which advertising or comic features will not be permitted.

Oregon Highways Delight

The mid-Columbia has won the heart of Mrs. O. W. Melton, of Tappanish, who with her three children has been here for a visit with her sister, Mrs. R. E. Steele, and family. The party made a motor trip over the Columbia River Highway to Portland and toured up the Mount Hood Loop Highway where snow drifts six feet deep in places were found. Mrs. Melton declared that she had never seen such highways.

Mr. Steele and family motored to Goldendale to meet Mrs. Melton and children and they proceeded to Hood River by way of The Dalles. Last Sunday they returned them to Goldendale by way of the interstate bridge.

Oregon Apples in Egypt
Oregon apples have now become well known in the principal cities and villages of Egypt. Popular brands of both Oregon and Washington fruit have established an enviable reputation there because of superior quality and packing, writes Richard A. May, the American trade commissioner at Alexandria.

American apple trade with Egypt has grown steadily, having climbed from 360 boxes in 1920 to a total of 24,000 boxes in 1924. The development of the Egyptian market has been in a large measure brought about by the shipping facilities available between New York and Alexandria. Steamers plying direct to Alexandria with special facilities for carrying fresh apples, can effect delivery within three weeks from the date of shipment from New York. Besides the regular lines the large tourist ships from New York during the winter and early spring seasons offer additional services, making the voyage ordinarily within three weeks.

Port to Add to Storage
The Port of Portland has informed local apple shippers that additional cold storage facilities will be installed at once at Terminal No. 4. The Port now has refrigerated space for an approximate 100,000 boxes of apples. Shippers stated that the additional space is badly needed in order to hold apple stocks ready for boat lines plying between Portland and English ports through the Panama canal.

Bentley Starts Bridge Work
L. M. Bentley, local contractor, has started a crew of men on construction of a new bridge over the West Fork of Hood river at Camp Overall, replacing the old wooden structure recently condemned. The new bridge will cost an approximate $4,000. It is a link of the Lost Lake Highway. In addition to the bridge, the road will be changed on the approach, a bad curve being eliminated.
