NEWSPAPERS FORM COAST CONFERENCE

Recommendations to be submitted at conventions of coast and inter-mountain press associations were drawn up Saturday in Portland at the closing session of the Pacific Slope Newspaper conference, which was held at the Chamber of Commerce. Newspapers outside the larger cities were represented.

State associations of Oregon, California, Washington, Idaho, Montana, and British Columbia were urged to affiliate with the conference, which will be composed of the president and secretary of each affiliated organization.

The purpose of the conference is to serve as a clearing house for better methods of newspaper conduct, and to stimulate high ideals of journalism.

Recommendations follow:

That every effort be made to make advertising rates, service considered, as nearly uniform as possible. To this end a liberal exchange of advertising rate cards is urged.

That respective member organizations study the Oregon plan of publishing a directory of weekly newspapers and rates, which will facilitate standardization and stabilization of rates.

That encouragement be given in respective states to the enactment of legislation that will purify advertising and protect the public from fraudulent advertising of all kinds.

That schools of journalism collect rate data as soon as possible.

That the question be brought before future conferences of adding to codes of ethics the proposal for a declaration of adherence by each publisher to his published rate schedule, to the end that all patrons may pay alike for similar service.

That as rapidly as possible a uniform system be adopted, with the suggestion that rates be based upon the per-hundred-words system of computation.

That the differential between political and other transient advertising rates be removed.

That there should be a closer relationship with advertising agencies.

That all proposals designed to give protection to capital honestly invested and legitimately operated be aided as a means of encouraging further investment and promoting a spirit of constructiveness.

That the conference offer its coordinated efforts toward promoting the success of forest conservation and renewal.

That all transient advertising salesmen or special representatives be required to obtain the approval of state associations before they are permitted to operate in communities served by association members.

Schools of journalism on the Pacific slope were lauded for efficiency in training and developing newspaper workers, and the conference pledged its encouragement to efforts to establish such schools as graduate institutions.

Conferences will be held annually. Hal E. Hoss, editor of the Oregon City Morning Enterprise, is president.

The Boy—An Appreciation

This is world-wide Boys' Week, an international event at which time we may well dedicate our thoughts anew to the youth of the world, to the young of the nation and to the boys of our own firesides. Amongst all the weeks set aside for certain reminders of our duties in a busy age this is perhaps the most significant, for it inspires in us reflection upon a topic of utmost interest; it bids us take stock of our attitude toward youth, of our duty to give our boyhood every opportunity for self-development and self-expression of those latent qualities within. Happy is the nation and happy the home that shelters sturdy, eager, budding manhood.

Boyhood is the period of growth—the "green apple" stage—when characteristics are formed soon to ripen into a personality of maturity, and the capacity to assume a proper citizenship and a position of usefulness in the economic structure of society. Are we giving our boys all the opportunities to which they are entitled; are we developing their character, their intelligence, their physique and safeguarding their environment to the full in these days of modern thought, modern methods and modern facilities?

To the glory of our time can it be said that our boys come to an age far different than has been the privilege of boys of other days? Their nature in the raw may not have changed, but what a different world is theirs in which to work and live and play! A broader conception of education confronts them; the environment and resourcefulness of a marvelous period surround them, opportunities a hundred-fold multiplied have opened to them. All that remains is to give them the right equipment, the "glad hand" and the proper impulse and we shall have a wonderful human product of a wonderful age.

If it is true that as the twig is bent so will the tree incline, it is also true that as our boys are trained and developed so will our nation be—so will be the world. It is opportune, therefore, that during this week we should give special attention to the "Back to School" campaign, which carries with it the challenge as to whether we are doing our fullest in backing our educational institutions; whether we are heeding the necessity for augmenting our educational facilities and safeguarding the quality and the temperament of the teaching staff. Only by interesting ourselves in our educational agencies can we feel assured that boyhood will be given every possible chance for development in order that sturdy bodies, fertile minds and moral worth may be created. Thus and thus only do these agencies become an institution for the promotion of progress and the establishment of international good will.

Apple Exports Over

The apple exporting season is now over and the cold storage plant in Portland is empty, and is being put in condition to handle products needing this facility such as peanuts from the Orient, and, in the next two months the local products which are to be shipped from Portland. During the past season the movement of apples for export from Portland amounted to 1,176,110 boxes of which more than 1,100,000 boxes were delivered to the United Kingdom. Approximately 100,000 boxes were shipped by water to California and a small shipment of 800 boxes was made to the Atlantic coast cities. This is the largest apple shipping season Portland has ever had and establishes its right to be known as the second largest apple shipping port in the United States.

STREET PAVING ORDINANCE NOT PASSED

The city council had a very quiet meeting Monday evening. The ordinance providing for paving of Cascade avenue passed second reading. All councilmen voted for it with the exception of James Stranahan, who explained that in his opinion the assessment plans for street paving will fail. Mr. Stranahan has proposed that the council initiate plans calling for street improvement through the application of general funds and assessment combined.

The council heard a petition from the Hood River Pythian Band, which asked for concessions for a street carnival being presented this week. It was cited that the council can make no concessions from the ordinance, but the band will be given a rebate to the extent of the licenses charged for the shows.

C. O. Huelat again presented the council with bills for printing 10,000 tags, to be used in the city automobile park, and for the construction of an automobile trailer. The matter of payment was referred to committees. The total bills amount to $76.50.

About Bill No. 413

Editor Glacier: From the first bond issue for public roads the maintenance commenced from light motor traffic to the onslaught of ponderous freight constructed motor tandems, till the road bed has been jarred loose from the lowest aggregate to the uppermost thin coat or smooth crust breaking away the shoulders for about three feet on each side of the paved strip. The construction of state roads by highway engineering forces cannot cope with the magnitude of manufacturing industries producing the type of motor vehicles to use our highway in proportion to railroads, and the intent and purposes of this Bill No. 413 is to regulate and license by tax the necessary rerictions whereby we may have our highways used in a conservative manner, and the referendum which has been promoted by a few truck owners and bus corporations which have undertaken to set forth this referendum for a special purpose of a few interested in their line of business should be defeated at once and not allowed to interfere with the law which has been enacted to provide a way that we may still have our highways without impairing them. President,

Oregon State County Judges Association.

F. M. Slavens' Mother Passes

After an eight-year illness, Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Slavens, 83, early Oregon resident, died Sunday at her home in Portland. The funeral was held yesterday at Warren and interment took place in the Warren cemetery.

Mrs. Slavens and her husband, Amos Slavens, who died 12 years ago, came to Oregon in 1866, settling at Warren. They had resided in Oregon ever since and Mrs. Slavens had been a resident of Portland for 13 years.

Surviving here are five sons, Amos R., Bainel, John M., L. Mae and F. M. Slavens, all of Portland, and five daughters, Mrs. J. Traynor, Mrs. E. Oafield and Mrs. Margaret Cassidy, of Portland, Mrs. Maud Geoghegan, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. M. J. Scott, of Kalama, Wash.

South Africa Hears of Clint Mooney

Judging the future from the past experiences of C. L. Mooney, he is due to receive proposals of marriage from South Africa. Last fall fellow packers of Mr. Mooney with a propensity toward practical joking placed his name in a box of Newtown apples, announcing thhat he was a local orchardist, who wished a wife. Almost as soon as the box of apples was opened in Lincolnshire, England, Mr. Mooney began receiving replies. To date his letters have exceeded 3,500.

The other day Dr. V. R. Abraham received a letter from his brother, R. L. Abraham, a missionary at Natal, South Africa, who enclosed a clipping from "The Mercury," of that city, telling of the matrimonial advertisement in the apple box.

LEGION NOTES

"Oregon is ready to hear the appeal of the American Legion for two classes of sufferers of the World war—the disabled men and the orphans of fallen veterans," declared George P. Griffith, commander of the Oregon department of the Legion.

The American Legion campaign for a $5,000,000 endowment fund for rehabilitation and child welfare, which has been going on in several states, is now under way in Oregon. It will culminate in an intesive drive probably about the last of May.

"The American Legion wants the American public to have the opportunity of helping the Legion help the disabled veterans and the children of men who gave up their lives as a result of their service to the country," Commander Griffith said. "Rehabilitation and child welfare are the two greatest post-war problems. They are so closely related that they are almost one. What disabled father has not looked down upon the faces of dependent children with terror lest they suffer the pangs of privation which his restoration to health alone can prevent? Does not his mental anguish over the fate of little children erect a material bar to his own reconstruction?

"There are 35,000 war orphans, and many times more sick, ailing and disabled ex-service men whose lives the war blighted. We cannot do too much for them—our debt can never be fully repaid. The American Legion has assumed the obligation of seeing that these two consequences of the war receive a full measure of justice, but we need the public's assistance to the limit.

"Everywhere the endowment movement has spread, it has met with a hearty reception. I know it will meet with the same response in Oregon."

President Coolidge is chairman of the national honorary committee for the endowment fund and all members of his cabinet have endorsed it. Leading men and women of the country in all lines of endeavor are members of the national endowment fund committee.

Already the work of organizing state and local endowment fund committees has begun. These committees will contain the names of prominent citizens and members of the legion and legion auxiliary, Commander Griffith said.

Oldest Indian Passes

Indian Jim, oldest member of the colony of Hood River Indians, was buried in the K. P. cemetery here Tuesday, following funeral services conducted by Sam Williams, Indian minister, who administers to the spiritual needs of mid-Columbia Indians, at the Bartmess chapel. Jim had been ailing for some months. The old Indian lost the last of his family more than eight years ago, and the Indian preacher who officiated at his funeral took him in his home and cared for him as though he had been his own father.

TAX DEBATE IS SET FOR SUNDAY NIGHT

Attorney L. B. Smith, of Portland, representing Senator Dennis, and J. H. Haslett, Hood River county's representative in the last legislature, will debate the proposed Dennis measure, providing for a constitutional amendment that will eliminate the income and inheritance tax in Oregon until 1940, at the Pine Grove Methodist church next Sunday evening. The debate will be held under auspices of the Pine Grove forum, a newly organized body for the discussion of timely topics.

SOCIAL PROBLEM TO BE SERMON TOPIC

"The Social Problem" will be the sermon subject next Sunday morning of Dr. James A. Fraser at Riverside church. The sermon will be more in the form of a lecture, and Dr. Fraser will suggest forms of church activity and the needs of human conduct to bring about a solution of this all absorbing problem of the times. It is anticipated that the sermon will attract many who are not regular church attendants at Riverside.

Frost Causes No Damage

While temperatures of valley fruit sections ranged from 34 to 28 and a heavy frost prevailed in the Upper Valley Monday night, orchardists reported Tuesday that they expected no damage to fruit crops. In the Lower Valley no frost was apparent, due to the prevalence of a wind throughout the night. A skim of ice formed on still water in the Upper Valley, where cherries and pears are in bloom, but in former years fruit crops have escaped injury there with the temperature several degrees lower.

Dr. Peterson Installs New X-Ray

Dr. S. L. Peterson has just installed in his office in the Franz building the latest word in dental X-Ray machines. The apparatus, manufactured by the Victor Co., is known as a "CDX" machine. It is referred to as "foolproof," meaning that the operator or the patient may handle it at will without fear of a shock.

The new machine fits in admirably with the equipment already installed in Dr. Peterson's office.
