

Insist on ZEROLENE even if it does COST LESS

Where are the SUPERSTITIONS OF YESTERYEAR?

Superstitions don't last long, especially when it costs money to believe in them. For example, the majority of western motorists have long since stopped paying tribute to the superstition that there is something mysteriously "better" about "eastern" motor oils merely because they cost more and are made in the East.

Zerolene is First Choice of Western Motorists
Zerolene lubricates more motor cars in the Pacific Coast states—high and low priced cars alike—than any other oil made. Six out of the seven trophies in the 1924 Yosemite Economy Run were won by Zerolene-lubricated cars. The "anti-western" oil bogie simply doesn't hold up. Zerolene increases gasoline mileage, reduces upkeep costs and lengthens engine life, in high priced cars and motor trucks alike.

Why pay tribute to a superstition? Insist on Zerolene even if it does cost less.

FUGITIVES ESCAPE HOOD RIVER POSSES

Stories toward apprehending Bob Jones, ex-Klamath Falls politician, and Mrs. Helen Bair, young blond actress and escaped prisoner, were scattered from this county to Portland last Thursday night.

Jones, who testified District Attorney Moore, of Deschutes county, who was escorting the girl to the state industrial school for girls at Salem, secured her escape in his automobile, and the girl Thursday night called at the Willow Flat home of J. O. Cameron. Claiming they had eaten nothing since officers began looking for them Tuesday afternoon, they persuaded women of the household to prepare a meal. After eating Mrs. Bair signed a check, declaring that she was seized with pains in her stomach, due she thought to the long fast and over-eating. The woman may have been ill. If not she was an excellent actor, and the family of Mr. Cameron, noting her paroxysms, permitted Jack Cameron, aged 23 to drive her here, supposedly for medical attention.

As soon, however, as the party reached the Mount Hood Loop Highway, Jones drew a revolver and ordered Cameron to obey his instructions. The car was stopped at Hux's service station and the gasoline tank was filled. Then at the bidding of Jones, young Cameron drove the two to Portland, leaving at the first car line on the Base Line road.

The elder Mr. Cameron attempted to telephone local authorities, as soon as his son had departed for Hood River. The phone was not working, however, and an hour had elapsed before he finally roused Sheriff Edick. The latter, who had spent the previous two nights with posse searching the valley for the fugitives, had just retired. The sheriff tried vainly to telephone a deputy at Cascade Locks, but the exchange there closed at 6 p. m., and long distance was unable to arouse the highway town. Sheriff Edick then dispatched a motorcycle on the highway, but it was there too late.

Jones' car had been discovered late Wednesday in a cove in the Middle Valley. Officers thought that the fugitives were bottled up in a wooded section of this district, and a cord of deputies was on guard to prevent their escape. The man and woman, however, slipped through lines, and walked over Booth hill, a distance of several miles, to the Cameron home.

District Attorney Moore and Mrs. Helen Y. Johnson, police mistress, who was aiding in escorting the Bair woman, recently convicted on a liquor charge, to Salem, left early Friday for Portland. They had photographs of the two which to provide Portland authorities.

GREAT POETS
Geoffrey Chaucer, 1340-1400
Chaucer, the first great English poet, was born about 1340, son of a London vintner. English literature is divided into two main divisions—the time before and the time after Chaucer. The dividing line is in the fourteenth century, the date of Chaucer's birth being approximately 1340. In the fourteenth century a new spirit of nationalism arose in England. During the time following the Norman Conquest there were English folk who held stubbornly to the English language, and by the early part of the fourteenth century the victory had been won over the Norman-French tongue. In 1350 English took the place of French in the schools, and in 1352 an act was passed by Parliament requiring that pleadings in law courts should henceforth be in English.

The fourteenth century was one of transition. Old doors were being closed and new ones opened. It was the age of Dante and Petrarch and Boccaccio, of Cimabue and Giotto, and also of Thomas Aquinas and Thomas à Kempis. In England we have Chaucer—the first warbler, whose sweet breath preluded those melodious bursts that filled the spacious times of great Elizabeth. Chaucer was a poet of nature. We see him going out in the morning and kneeling down to meet the day. The things which appealed to his were:

the brightness of the morning, the song of the birds, the gay life and color of the river valley. The open sky, the sunny road, the green hedges, the meadows, and many more all the people-smiling faces of Chaucer's all these things Chaucer has abundantly named; and his humor, his fine feeling for the life and sentiment for human life, both withstanding their humble surroundings, are fully contagious. The stories of Chaucer's pen leads us out into the beauty of God's world.

"When that April with his showery swoots
The drought of March hath perced to the roote."
He is full of joyous exuberance, as if the very youth of the world had obtained an incarnation in him. Until the coming of Tennyson no one knew so well as Chaucer how to listen to the song of the birds.

Chaucer's poetry is religious. It is true that his passion for nature carried him out-of-door, yet he was not lacking in worship in the out-of-door church. On his simple sincerity he often held up to ridicule some religious practice, nevertheless, was he truly reverent toward all that was real and genuine in religion. He recognized the divine touch in everything. When he set forth his pilgrims with all their jollity, the real bond of fellowship was a religious bond. It is the undercurrent of their thought. The setting of the Canterbury Tales is religious. Realizing the limitations imposed upon men and women on this earth the poet argues for immortality.

FOLLENIUS TO GO WITH TOURNAMENT

Victor C. Follenius, recreational director for Hood River, has been secured to assist with the fourth annual Hood River county tennis championships to be held here from June 8 to June 23, inclusive, on the Benedict and Clab tennis courts. Mrs. John E. Burton and J. R. Johnson comprise the special committee in charge. With Mr. Follenius' assistance this tournament, which promises to be the largest ever held in this county, should be pulled off in record time with a minimum of mix-ups.

Entries for this tournament will be opened Thursday, today, and will close Thursday, May 21. Girls' singles, boys' singles, doubles, girls' doubles, boys' doubles and consolation for both boys' and girls' singles will be included in this year's event.

All girls and women residing in this county are eligible for entry in the women's events. All boys residing in this county who were 15 years or under January 1, 1925, are eligible for entry in the boys' events.

Anyone may enter these tournaments for a fee of $1.00. The following are eligible to enter: Misses Stansbury and Gordon Hansen, in charge of entries at the high school; Oliver Samuelson in charge of entries for the Oak Grove district; Elizabeth Derby and Russell Johnson, who will take entries at the junior high school; barn handricks and John Bacon, Cascade Locks. Anyone living outside these districts may enter by sending their names to Mrs. J. H. Norton.

Entry fees, to cover expenses of the tournament are: Singles, 25 cents, and all doubles matches, 15 cents per person. Prizes in the events are: Girls' singles, Kress cup; boys' singles, Kelly cup; mixed doubles, Frans cup; boys' doubles, Hamilton cup, and girls' doubles, Blair cup.

Strong Liquor Given to Boys
When he evinced a peevish attitude at court and at boys involved because of the testimony of the latter, Marie Perkins, 20-year-old Middle Valley boy, was sentenced to 30 days in jail Monday by Justice of the Peace Blagg on a liquor charge. Justice Blagg had already assessed Perkins $100 in fines. According to Fred Dick, Delbert Swick and Johnny Kroeger, Odell high school boys, each aged 16, Perkins last Sunday supplied them with moonshine liquor.

According to the boys Perkins secured Kroeger and his automobile to take the party to the cached liquor, which had been placed in a cove near the country place of William A. Sunday. When they arrived at the rendezvous all partook of the fiery quid, which on test Monday proved to contain 75 per cent alcohol. The liquor knocked the youngsters out. They were found in varying states of unconsciousness along an Odell side road. Young Dick was lying across a railroad track.

It was feared that the liquor was poisonous. A physician was called early Sunday evening. It again became necessary for young Dick to have medical attention Monday morning.

HOMESTEAD INN TO BE OPENED SOON

J. O. Hensam, en route Saturday from Portland to the mountain hotel, announced that Homestead Inn will be opened for the season May 15. Mr. Hensam, who constructed the building, a unique log structure, before the Mount Hood Loop Highway was built, will manage the resort himself this season. He plans on having a crew busy between now and the time the resort opens on numerous improvements.

Orchardists Buy Machine
Horticultural inspector Ains, of Stamaia county, with the aid of several of the orchardists of the Underwood district has purchased a thermograph for use in the orchards of the country. This machine keeps an accurate record of the rise and fall of the temperature and by knowing this the inspector can keep closer watch of the orchard pests and advise the growers when to spray. The machine cost about $100.

Mr. and Mrs. Hovey Buy Place
Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hovey, of Eagle Point, last week purchased the B. E. Heller six-acre Belmont orchard place. Mr. Hovey for a number of years has been manager of the big Alta Vista orchard at Eagle Point, one of the largest tracts of the Hood River district. He will resign his position at Eagle Point and come here after November 1 to make his home.
