Radio Hints

(By H. B. Bend) The tubes in your radio set should be tested at least once a year for good results. The good, useful life of a tube runs up to five and seven years, but one bad tube in your set can make it function very poorly. The 100 and 200 are very short lived, even as low as two months. They may light and seem all right but be zero minus for results. Six months is not too often to have them tested and checked.

Radio receiving tubes have declined in price until they are down to $2.50 while some of them were as high as $12.

Radio conditions are gradually improving in the north. There are now three large stations in Seattle, one large one going into Spokane, and possibly another large one to be added to Portland's list, making two large ones for Portland. All over the country stations are increasing their power. Stations that were five watts in power have increased through the stages of 50, 100, 1000, and even up to 5000 watts.

The local Hood River station was a five-watt station three years ago, then it went to 10 watts and now holds a license for 100 watts, although it is not being operated at present. It is planned to further increase the power and commence operating in the near future.

Bring your tubes in. We will check them free. Read's Radio Shop, 41311

The flesh was torn from the arm of the woman in the crash.

Auto Park Shows Pick Up. While the municipal automobile park had shown poor returns up to July 1, reports of Custodian Huelat for July indicate that business is picking up. An average of more than 40 cars per day registered at the park in July, bringing in more than $800 in fees.
