

WRESTLING MATCH NEXT WEDNESDAY

This shows some of the holds utilized by Frankie Burns, who will meet Fred Mortensen on the mat at the K. P. Hall.

This is the Championship Belt now held by Theodore Thye. Fred Mortensen says he has made up his mind to possess it. If he wins next Wednesday's bout, and he says he will, he will get another early try at the belt.

MERRY MORAINE

(By Will S. Bates) Uh Huh! Sure, this world is full of trouble, I ain't said it ain't. Lord! I've had enough, and double, Reason for complaint. Rain and storm have come to fret me, Skies are often gray. Thorns and thistles have beset me On the road—but say, Ain't it fine today? —Gopher Arcanagram.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The following resolutions were adopted at the convention: Realizing that the work of the W. C. T. U. has never been more important than at the present time, we consecrate ourselves anew to the task of educating the youth of our state in the principles for which we stand. Recognizing that there is a dangerous crime wave sweeping over our country and believing that the W. C. T. U. is always active in creating public sentiment which is necessary to combat the danger which is a menace to our free institutions. Therefore, Be it Resolved, That this convention go on record as believing all pictures should be excluded from the screens that depict crime and incite wrong ideals of life in our young people and be it further resolved, that we ask our papers, local and state, to exclude from their columns the details of crime, believing that constant familiarity creates desire to imitate and that they refrain from large headlines and first page place to the same. Resolved, That the convention go on record as offering anew our unqualified endorsement of God's Holy Book and that we raise our voice in disapproval and deplore any line of teaching in the name of Christ and His Church that will undermine confidence and faith in the literal inspiration of the infallible Word of God. Whereas, much thought by high purpose officials and legislators has been given to enact just, proper and wise enforcement laws, and to place the same upon the statute books of our state and. Whereas, the forces of evil are persistent in breaking and defying many laws, especially the so called Dry Laws, and. Whereas, such open defiance to our laws is largely responsible for defeating the purposes and work of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and. Whereas, it is the duty of the National standard, therefore, be it Resolved, that the Women's Christian Temperance Union go on record endorsing the strict enforcement of all laws that touch on the moral conduct of our people. We especially endorse the present campaign of Dry Law Enforcement as crystallized in the actions of General Andrews. Whereas, the advertising of cigarettes on the billboard and in public places is a nuisance to our highways and a detriment to the best interests of our children, we recommend to the legislative superintendent of the W. C. T. U. that she cooperate with other organizations to steps that will lead to the enactment of a law that will forbid the depicting of the cigarette when by law minors are forbidden the use of the same. Whereas, in the recent conference of representatives of the great powers of the world at Locarno, Switzerland, a pact was signed providing for peace in the Rhine district. Whereas, no peace can exist apart from a change of heart and conduct on the part of the signatory powers, be it Resolved, that the W. C. T. U. of Oregon declare heartily in accord with such a pact and urge fervent prayer that love and good will prevail in the hearts and councils of said nations to the end that real peace be established and recommended to American statesmen the furthering of the spirit and purpose of said treaties wherever and wherever possible. Further be it Resolved, that in view of the fact that the resolution now pending in the United States into the World Court with the Harding-Hughes reservation is to be voted on December 17, we place ourselves on record in favor of this measure as an important step toward world peace and urge our constituency to promote its passage by letters from organizations and individuals to Senator Borah, chairman, and to our own senators. That we express our heartfelt thanks to Hood River unions, also to Odell and Pine Grove unions and to all who have so hospitably opened their homes to the transportation committee, to the ladies of the churches for the splendid meals so conveniently served in the church, to the board of the Assembly Methodist church for the use of their beautiful building, to the Chamber of Commerce and the Apple Growers Association for courtesies shown us to speakers, to musicians, and to Mrs. Nellie Glouwe, our convention speaker, who has won the hearts of the convention by the wonderful spiritual uplift she has given us. Mrs. Elsie B. Tobie, Mrs. E. B. Andrews, Mrs. J. E. Ferguson.

Fire at Mrs. Parker's Home The fire department was called to the home of Mrs. Pearl Parker at First and State streets Monday when the residence caught fire from a defective stovepipe. The fire was stopped with chemicals after burning a hole in a wall and causing damage from smoke.

BOOKS

One Increasing Purpose—A. S. M. Hutchinson From all reports Hutchinson's latest book is making a wonderful impression. Some say that it is the greatest book they have ever read. Well, it is a good book and worthy of time and effort. To say it is the greatest novel ever written remains to be seen. Time is a great leveler. It is the best book from the hand and brain of the author of "If Winter Comes" and "This Freedom." We are not told how long it took him to write the former two, but we do know that three years elapsed ere "One Increasing Purpose" was given to the public. The author occupies the role of novel-preacher, and his sermon is timely and telling. The questions he faces and strives to answer are uppermost in the minds of men and women today. Hutchinson is not a pessimist, and he will not popularize pessimism. This book does not close with the blighting of hope in a wild and stormy sunset. The belief that life for all its effort is but tragedy, that the world is hurrying forward to the dark, that man is the powerless instrument of fate, a helpless pawn on the chessboard of the universe—this thought, subtly and stealthily, is finding its way into the hearts of thousands in the leisure hours they give to reading. What are some questions of the novel? Why are we here? Why does God make us live in a world where materialism grows fat and strong while the creative life of the spirit is crushed? Does He have some purpose for us? Why, then, does He not speak and tell us what it is? The years are passing and we are growing old; Lord, if you want us to go anywhere, do anything, show us the way. But keep us not in darkness and in silence. The principal character of this novel is Sim Paris, and Sim throughout the story struggles with the questions which come to us daily. The author, like Charles Dickens in his "David Copperfield" seems to be writing down his own spiritual experience. The characters in the story are mighty true to life. Sim has three brothers. Andrew, the oldest of the family, is married to a "dear, sweet thing" with gold dust on her wings, and he loves her shape. His love is hardly spiritual, rather mildly sensual. Charles, the second brother, inherits a burdensome business which he struggles with. He is married to a woman who is a greater burden than his business. He craves a cottage in the vale far from the strife of tongues, and misses the quest. The conflicting passions, the clashing economic ideas, the changing standards in home and business, and ever growing materialism of the age—these are the currents that have caught us, too. They sweep us on, but like Sim Paris, we must find a purpose in it, or, in the words of a noted preacher, "be hurled to hell." Sim finds the guiding hand, and leads others into the light. Read the book!

A Walk in the Hills Oh green were the forests, as I walked on my way, Bright were morning dews as blossoms in May, And dark were the sycamore's leaf to behold, The oak's tender leaf was of emerald and gold. The thrush from the tree, the lark from the cloud, Their chorus of rapture sang jovial and loud. From the green azure sky to the soft grassy ground, There was beauty above us, beneath and around. The mild southern breeze brought a shower from the hill, And yet though it left me all dripping and chill, I felt a new pleasure, as onward I sped, To gaze where the rainbow gleamed broad overhead. Oh, such be life's journey, let us make it our skill, To lose in its blessing the sense of all ill; Through sunshine and shower may our progress be even, And our tears add a link to the prospect of heaven. —Georgiana R.

Apple Men Protest Rate Alleging that the railroads have "perverted" the order of the Interstate Commerce commission that discrimination be removed in the adjustment of rates between Oregon and California, the Apple Growers Association, joining with Jacobs, Malcolm & Burt, San Francisco dealers, has filed a brief with the commission in opposition to increases on apples carried by the railroad schedules. "Instead of removing discrimination by reducing branch line rates, says the brief, the San Francisco group rate was increased, resulting in a 63-cent rate in place of 53 cents from Hood River to San Francisco and a like 10-cent increase from Parkdale, Dee and Van Horn. This apple increase arises from alignment to preserve existing relationships, it is stated, and avoid fourth section violation, without proper regard to the rates themselves. In substantiation of the importance of the business moving from the Hood River valley to California, it is pointed out that 449 cars of apples were shipped in 1923 and 304 in 1924, and California is in particular a market for Yellow Newtown, but in competition with California's grown fruit. Mr. Boyce Off to Florida J. E. Boyce and C. E. Kramer, the latter of Underwood, left here Monday on an automobile trip to Lakewood, Fla. They will go to California and travel thence across the southern United States to Texas. The men expect to go north and proceed down through Tennessee and Georgia to Florida. Mr. Kramer owns property at Lakewood. He will spend the winter in Florida disposing of his interests. The journey is being made in a new Willys-Knight sedan, just purchased from J. A. Carr. Isenberg Operates Restaurant Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Isenberg are now operating the restaurant in the building formerly occupied by the Hood River Market. They are giving an all night service at both lunch counter and at tables. Mr. and Mrs. Isenberg are featuring Sunday chicken dinners. The service at the new restaurant has aroused compliments from local folk and tourists.
