STAGE AND SCREEN

"A Hero of the Big Snows," the Warner picture starring Rik-Tin-Tin and coming to the Rialto theatre Friday and Saturday, is truly a "dog picture." There are more animal players than humans, and these canine actors and actresses are seeking laurels in the picture world.

Rinty and his mate Nanette are the stars, there is a clever and carefully trained dog team, and a wolf pack as well in the roles of extras. Herman Raymaker directed this Ewart Adamson story, which is said to be the famous dog star's most thrilling production. Alice Calhoun has the leading feminine role. Don Alvarado is the hero, Leo Mills the villain, and Mary Jane Milliken the baby sister.

In the filming of "Broken Hearts of Hollywood," the Warner Brothers film which comes to the Rialto theatre Sunday and which is a dramatic version of all that is a part of Filmtown, Barbara Worth plays the role of Mollie, just "one of the extras."

In one of the sequences she is shown alone in her little bare room, penniless and hungry. Across the street from her window flashes an electric restaurant sign reading, "Eat." The continual flashing of the sign causes her much mental stress in her hungered condition, and in portraying this action, Miss Worth really felt the pangs of hunger, for she had been working in various scenes during the day until much past her dinner hour.

However, Lloyd Bacon, who directed "Broken Hearts of Hollywood," relented after seeing her "natural hungry expression" and everybody was allowed to go to a late dinner. Such is the penalty of hard work and a part of the life of the studios.

"Broken Hearts of Hollywood" is portrayed by a stellar cast including Patsy Ruth Miller, Louise Dresser, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Stuart Holmes, Barbara Worth, Emile Chautard and others.

Several unique features will be seen in the Educational-MGM comedy, "On Edge," which will be at the Rialto theatre Sunday.

"Pete," the clown bulldog, pronounced the only natural canine comedian in the world, will have a prominent role in support of Lige Collier. This is the funny bulldog with the circle about his eye who has delighted comedy lovers in so many pictures.

Supporting Colley will be seen Estelle Bradley, "Miss Atlanta," and a cast consisting of Stanley Blystone, Jack Lloyd and Eddie Boland.

The direction has been very capably handled by Norman Taurog.

Real tears were shed by the screen character specialists who played in "The Unknown Soldier," the Renaud Hoffman war classic which comes to the Rialto next Monday and Tuesday. Even seasoned cameramen and technicians joined with the players and directors in weeping during the emotional scenes of the silent war drama as they were filmed at the Metropolitan studios.

The title role is played by Charles Besset Mack, and the charming war bride is Marguerite De La Motte. Henry B. Walthall, Claire McDowell, George Cooper and other noted film artists are included in the cast of this powerful war picture.

Anne Cornwall was thrilled over the role she plays in "The Splendid Crime," the new Paramount picture to be at the Rialto next Wednesday and Thursday, for more reasons than one.

The chief reason for her joy, however, was the fact that it did not require her to cry. It happens that for the several months preceding her appearance in this William de Mille production, Miss Cornwall had played only parts which showed her weeping in almost every reel. Being possessed of a naturally sunny disposition, she appreciated the change.

Miss Cornwall, Nell Hamilton and Anthony Jovitt are the featured players appearing in support of Bebe Daniels in "The Splendid Crime," which is a novel crook story. Mr. de Mille is the author-director of the picture. Violet Clark adapted his story for screen use.

The effect that one Russian countess has on staid, convention-restricted New York society will be shown at the Liberty theatre Sunday, where the Warner picture of Edith Wharton's popular novel, "The Age of Innocence," will be shown.

If the photoplay is at all like Miss Wharton's book, which was chosen as the best literary work in 1922 and awarded the Pulitzer prize, movie audiences will be more than fascinated by the devastating confusion that follows the arrival of Countess Olenska in the sacred circles of "the best people," as exemplified by the Archer and Mingott families of New York. Because the countess has decided to live apart from her good-for-nothing Russian spouse, the arbiters of New York society look at her askance and when she turns the head of their most cherished young kinsman, the trouble begins.

The Warner cast, which usually means an excellent lineup of capable players, is headed by a trio of well-known stars—Beverly Bayne, Elliott Dexter and Willard Louis. The balance of the cast is composed of such favorites as Edith Roberts, Fred Huntly, Stuart Holmes, Rosa Rosanova, Maxine Elliott Hicks, Gertrude Norman, Mrs. Chas. G. Graig, and the noted dancer, Juan de Mora.

The adaptation of Miss Wharton's novel, "The Age of Innocence," was prepared by Olga Printzlau, and re-adapted on the screen by Director Wesley Ruggles.

As an indication of how laughable are the antics of Charlie Murray in "The Ladies' Lady," the new Robert Kane First National picture, coming next Wednesday and Thursday to the Liberty theatre, it is reported that 200 "extras" who watched him do his stuff at the First National studios in New York burst into hearty applause when he finished.

No Ranger Examination

This year, for the first time, no examination will be held by the U. S. forest service for the position of forest ranger. This announcement has just been made by the district forester at Portland, giving as the reason that there are still 375 names on the U. S. civil service list of eligibles left over from the 1924 and 1925 lists. There are 39 names remaining on the Oregon list and 24 on the list for Washington.

Ordinarily an examination for forest ranger is held in October each year from which a list of men who pass the tests is drawn up. From this list, forest supervisors select names to fill any ranger vacancies which may occur. This new ruling of the U. S. civil service commission means, forest officers say, that the period of eligibility of men on the list will be extended for one year from the date of the certification of their passing.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS GUESTS OF RIALTO

Monday and Tuesday, September 27 and 28, the Rialto theatre will present one of the screen's supreme achievements, Renaud Hoffman's "The Unknown Soldier" with Chas. Emmett Mack, Marguerite De La Motte and Henry B. Walthall. This magnificent screen drama will go down in motion picture history as one of the classics of the screen handling as it does a subject dear to the heart of every man, woman and child in America.

On Monday matinee and evening all gold star mothers are invited to be guests of the Rialto theatre for the viewing of this great picture.

The "Unknown Soldier" was first made as originally written with a logical and sad ending but after trying the picture out before the public the producers found that the picture for all its power, drama, and artistry would be a "dop," as it is called in the show business, so in order to give the public what it wants a so-called happy ending was made and the picture released with this second ending.

The Rialto management previewed the picture before the newer ending was used and in order to satisfy every one of the Rialto patrons has decided to show the picture in this way. "The Unknown Soldier" will be shown at the Rialto as it was originally made—a great dramatic triumph with a sad and logical ending. Then every matinee and evening between shows the new and so-called happy ending that seems so necessary to the success of a picture will be shown, giving the public an opportunity to see which way they like the picture best. This is rather an unusual procedure but the Rialto was so impressed with the real "Unknown Soldier" that Rialto patrons will have a chance to peep behind the scenes and see how many a picture is made and then must be ruined in order to be a financial success for the producers.
