Livestock Raising - A Business

If one plays at livestock raising, he pays. If he makes a business of it, he prospers. And it is a business that requires hard work and deep study. Starting the herd, building it up and cashing in on it cannot succeed by guesswork. Yet, livestock raising will go a long way in this community toward solving the farmer's economic problems. Furthermore, we are only too glad to lend a helping hand along business-like lines.

It is fortunate that the farmers in this vicinity have the opportunity to visit and profit by the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland. This year, Oct. 30-Nov. 6, the exhibits will outstrip any previous livestock show in all America.

HOOD RIVER HOSPITALITY LAUDED

Success of Local Irrigation and Application of Scientific Farming Impresses Delegates

The delegates to the 16th annual Oregon Reclamation congress, in session here last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, left singing high praise for Hood River folk for their hospitality. The success of this valley's irrigation projects and the point to which local folk have carried intensive horticulture and cooperative methods of marketing made a deep impress on the visitors.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was the Mount Hood program arranged for Thursday evening under auspices of the Guide Ski Club. Paul Hoeftlein, president, and presented Miss Dorothy Anderson in Charleston dance. She was accompanied by an electric Victrola. T. Raymond Conway made new friends in presenting pictures of winter recreation on Mount Hood and Mount Rainier. He also told the story of the climb of Mount Hood by the fastest woman ever to reach so high an altitude. Miss Hoeftlein appeared, wearing the winter garb of a ski runner and carrying his mountain pack. He gave a piano solo, despite his burdens, which was much appreciated.

The valley motor jaunt of Friday afternoon was arranged by the Guides, with A. L. Anderson as chairman of the committee providing transportation. Both Leroy Childs and Gordon G. Brown delivered addresses Friday afternoon.

A. F. Steele presided at the banquet served Friday night at the parlors of Asbury Methodist church by the Woman's club. The excellent dinner left the visitors in just as excellent spirits.

The following resolution expressed the appreciation of the visitors: "Whereas, this session of the Reclamation Congress has been the recipient of the most cordial hospitality on the part of Hood River, its mayor, Mr. Bennett, and the Hood River Chamber of Commerce, and its officers and members, and have enjoyed and profited by the trip afforded those attending the congress over the national bureau in land undertakings in this vicinity through the courtesy and kindness of the citizens of Hood River, and particularly have enjoyed the bounteous banquet prepared for us at the church last night by the ladies of Hood River.

"Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved: That the most hearty thanks and expressions of appreciation be extended to each congress member and every one of the courtesies extended to us while here assembled."

Saturday morning Mr. Steele occupied an important place on the program, speaking on "Credits and Debts."

While a scholarly preparation, spoken from the standpoint of an orthodox economist with a national viewpoint, the address of Dr. Richard T. Ely, in charge of the national bureau in land economics and public utilities and professor of economy at Northwestern university, might well have been taken as a warning Thursday by delegates to the 16th Oregon Irrigation congress, who assembled here from all parts of the state, against an overproduction of projects brought into being for increasing cultivated land.

Dr. Ely's talk, the opening gun of the cooperation, emphasized the fact that the ill of the farmer have come from an overabundance of cultivated land. Quoting Adam Smith, the noted Scotch economist, Dr. Ely declared that the farmer's ill is not the lack of land, but the lack of a market for his products.

APPLE DROP

VALLEY'S LOSS 250,000 BOXES

The Drop of Newtows Less Than Other Varieties—Fruit Will Not Be Picked

Ideal weather conditions since Sunday have allowed orchardists to complete their picking. Only in rare instances do growers still have fruit remaining on the trees.

A check of the entire district reveals that more than 250,000 boxes of apples were lost through the heavy drop that occurred during a week of almost continual rain. Practically none of these apples will be salvaged. In most instances they will be a total loss, for growers will make no effort to salvage them even for the cooker grade. Orchardists find it a problem to dispose of the cull apples removed from the commercial pack at sorting tables. Canners filled their requirements early in the season, and the vinegar factory will not be able to take anywhere near all the cull tonnage. Growers with hogs will dispose of some of their cull stocks as swine food. The hog population, however, will be unable to consume but a fraction of the fruit.

The damage of commercially packed apples will be reduced here this season also as a result of strict application of grading rules and a trend on the part of many growers to save expense by leaving out a portion of C-grade. A box short of developed tonnage was under way, when it was discovered that the actual yield would be far in excess of pre-harvest estimates.

The drop affected all varieties of apples far more than the standard varieties. Growers had given their attention to their Spitzburgers, leaving the red old varieties. Newtows were less affected by the drop than any other fruit, and the percentage of the Newtows pack will be above the normal annual average. The Newtows is a long keeper and a staple variety on both domestic and export markets. Because of the Newtows tonnage, which will reach 60 per cent of the total yield, Hood River, according to shipping interests, may expect to benefit by a late season stiffening of the apple market following consumption of the earlier fruit, which must move rapidly this season, as it was brought to unusual maturity by the early low temperatures.

The movement of apples continues in record volume. The Apple Growers Association made a record Tuesday in shipping 27 cars from 7 a. m. until 6 p. m. from the berry tracks of the local G. W. yards.

D. L. NEWELL HAS JOINED TOP SHOP

B. L. Newell, for 14 years deputy county auditor at Caldwell, Ida., and Mrs. Newell have arrived here to make their home with their son, F. E. Newell, and family. Mr. Newell has joined his son in the Newell Auto Top & Paint Shop. A number of additional features of service to automobile owners has been added to the shop. A fender and body straightening machine is being added and the company is engaged in upholstering and the manufacture of winter tops. Scores of local folk are having their touring cars converted into closed cars at the local shop.

The company is now engaged in the manufacture of an auto top contour which is finding a ready sale.

Mr. and Mrs. Newell were given a largely attended and unique reception. Regrets at their leaving the city were expressed generally. The following dispatch from Caldwell was printed in the Idaho Daily Statesman:

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Newell, who left Friday for Hood River, Ore., where they will live their home, were lightly surprised by employees and attaches of the court house Wednesday evening. Mrs. Newell, upon being summoned to the court house, found her husband under arrest, on charges of conspiring to leave the county, and of having given two dollars worth of service for one dollar's worth of pay. A large table, decorated with an illuminated oval, seated the guests. Mr. Newell, after a farrowed speech of appreciation, presented Mr. and Mrs. Newell with a Pendleton auto robe.

WRESTLERS WILL VIE SATURDAY NIGHT

Arthur La Chapelle, wiry little Frenchman, former Canadian champion for his weight, whose vocation is the cutting and sale of wood, is bringing about a revival of wrestling in Hood River. Under auspices of the Knights of Pythias band, La Chapelle, who is always a star performer, is staging semi-monthly mat contests here this season.

Next Saturday night La Chapelle, whose weight is 140, will meet Jack Reynolds, of Portland, weight 142. The two will go a full two hours to a finish of the best two out of three falls.

Another finish match is scheduled between George Lester, Hood River 145-pounder versus Billy Stevens, 147-pounder of Portland, who trained with Robin Reed, Johnny Maurus, Joe Manning and Ganson Steele.

The 30-minute preliminary Saturday night will be between Kenneth Mallory, Odell youth, and George Salmon, young wrestler, of Fargo, N. D.

La Chapelle won the big audience two weeks ago when he was an easy victor over Rollie Woodruff, of Portland, in a match he never met. While Woodruff is an expert at the mat game he was outpointed at every move by the little Frenchman.

Loop Again Open

The Mount Hood Loop highway was re-opened to traffic Tuesday night. Crews, however, are still at work, making permanent repairs to the White river bridge, damaged Saturday by flood waters. Crews, too, are busy retaining debris from the highway in the vicinity of Horsehead meadow, where East Fork of Hood river overflowed.
