DR. SIFTON TELLS OF GREAT CLINIC

An outstanding feature of the International medical and surgical clinic, recently held at Cleveland, O., according to Dr. J. W. Sifton, just back from the sessions, was the use of moving pictures in showing methods of operations.
 The clinic had the biggest attendance of a meeting of physicians and surgeons on record, according to Dr. Sifton. More than 6,000, from all parts of the globe, were present. When an operation is performed before a clinic only a few can see the work of the surgeon. The moving picture made it possible for the entire assembly to witness the surgeon's work on unusual operations.
 Dr. Sifton went to Philadelphia as a delegate from the department of Oregon, American Legion, for the national convention. He stopped at the Cleveland clinic on the way home. Famed surgeons were present from Berlin and Vienna as well as other European capitals. Noted doctors attended from South American cities. The clinic is the first of its kind held since the great war. Next year's meeting will be held at Kansas City.
 The lecturers at the clinic also used the microphone and thousands not present at the meetings heard their lectures.
 Boyce Field $1,000 boxes
 J. B. Boyce, who has completed his apple harvest from West Side places, has had a remarkable tonnage. From 90 acres Mr. Boyce picked 51,000 boxes. Newtowns form two-thirds of the tonnage.

HOOD RIVER SEES RUMANIAN QUEEN

Hood River was on dress parade yesterday afternoon to greet Queen Marie, each waving an American flag. Hood River Mayor Bennett and Secretary Baker, of the Chamber of Commerce, rushed Rumanian flags from Portland for decorating Oak street, which carried the royal party across town on their westward trip from The Dalles over the Columbia River highway.
 Schools were dismissed and children, each waving an American flag, lined Oak street. The Hood River Guides, garbed in their Swiss Alpine uniforms, headed by the American Legion drum and bugle corps, met the royal motor cortege at the bridge across Hood river and escorted it across the city. The party stopped 10 minutes at the intersection of Oak and Third streets, where her majesty addressed the populace.
 Sheriff Edick and his corps of county traffic officers cooperate with State Traffic Officers Saltzman and Banks in patrolling the highway.
 Oak street, from the Fashion garage to the west edge of town was crowded like the streets of the line of march of a Rose Festival parade. At 12:45 the crowd had begun to assemble. The royal party, however, was late, and it was after 2 o'clock before the Queen, who rode beside Sam Hill, appeared. Her majesty was in gracious mood, as was Mr. Hill. She waved and smiled at Hood River folk, most of whom were beholding royalty for the first time. Mr. Hill bowed to the right and to the left. His dress had come true. He was presenting to his American fellow citizens his royal friend of Europe. His internationalism had been dedicated, and he was happy. He looked happy.
 The drum and bugle corps and the Guides won rounds of snappy applause as they marched up the street. Indeed, they were the most impressive part of the parade through Hood River.
 Queen Marie was presented with a basket of the valley's finest apples. Fred W. Donnerberg presented her with a hand colored picture of Mount Hood and the valley at blossoming time.

VISIT CLOUD CAP IS URGE OF SIGNS

"To Cloud Cap on High," such is the advice of large posterlike signboards that have been placed at strategic points by the chamber of commerce. The signs, painted by F. L. Manser, are colorful and attractive. They present a picture, with their striking outlines of mountain and valley and the well worded suggestions. The motor tourist, at a sight of the big signs, the treat that awaits him at Cloud Cap, which he may reach with ease. From the heights he can see Edinier, St. Helens and Adams.
 One of the signs has been completed at the intersection of the Loop and Columbia River highways. Mr. Manser is finishing another on State street at the head of Second. The city will be asked to increase the candlepower of the street light at the State-Second intersection, in order that the sign may be as effective at nighttime as during the day.
 Hoerlein Bros. Win Blue Ribbon
 Hans and Paul Hoerlein, who have gained the habit of securing first awards at the Pacific International Livestock show on their apples, again brought home a blue ribbon on their Spitzburgers. Local folk who saw the fine display, which won a $25 cash prize, expressed a pride in the local fruit.
 Lunch Club Quies
 The election Tuesday resulted in a small attendance at the Tuesday Lunch club. A. F. S. Steele and S. E. Bartmew were the only speakers. The former discussed National Apple Week plans.

 Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McDonald, of Marshfield, arrived last week for a visit with Mr. McDonald's mother, Mrs. Nancy McDonald, and sister, Mrs. E. O. Blanchard, and Mr. Blanchard. Thursday the visitors were taken on a motor trip over the Loop highway.
 Miss Irene Downing is about ready now to board the vessel which will take her to South America, where she will be the missionary of the local Gospel tabernacle. A large number of her friends are helping her get her equipment, together, and if any others who did not know about this wish to have a part in this fine work, it is still time to lend a hand or make a contribution. Miss Downing deserves all the encouragement Hood River folk can render, for it is a rare courage she is displaying.
 S. Bloom, manager of the civic auditorium at The Dalles, was here last week, making preparations for the campaign on the winter shows to be given in the neighborhood city. With the Columbia River highway open, the attendance of local people at the high class road shows that play at The Dalles has shown a steady increase. On November 11 the civic auditorium will present the Valentine Comie Opera company in "The Bohemian Girl." Later, according to Mr. Bloom, who motored here with Robert Bradshaw, other high class shows will be presented.
