ELKS INVITE EVERY CHILD

CHRISTMAS PARTY WILL BE MERRY

Hood River Lodge, B. P. O. E., Will Be Hosts at Free Picture Show at Rialto Saturday Morning

Every child in the territory surrounding Hood River is invited to be the guest of Hood River Lodge, 1507, B. P. O. E., Saturday morning at 10:30, to attend the annual free Christmas show and tree put on by the Elks. Several committees are hard at work attending to every detail to make this tree even a bigger success than last year. At 10:30 in the morning Rin-Tin-Tin will be shown in "The Lighthouse" by the Sea. The children will be seated through the rear stage door and will then be met by a committee which will distribute light refreshments to them. This will avoid all the crowding and confusion of last year when the kiddies were taken to the Elks temple to be fed.

John Baker, whose phone number at his office is 1831, urges every Elk who owns a car to get in touch with him in regard to the transportation of kiddies in that certain Elk's neighborhood and for all persons desiring transportation to notify him at once, and they will be taken care of. The kiddies were so well taken care of last year that it is up to the Elks to see that not a child in their vicinity is disappointed.

Boy Scout Troop No. 2 under Geo. Y. Morrison spent Monday evening sacking the candy and nuts and took a great load off of the entertainment committee's hands. The tree will be all in readiness for the big event and direct communication with Santa gives us the assurance that he will be here in person again this year. Children will be well taken care of as a big committee of Elks will be on hand to see that they are orderly and that nothing happens to their fun.

Last year trouble was experienced with adults occupying seats that the kiddies should have, so the committee this year asks that the adults, as many as possible, send their kiddies with the Elks so that there will be no shortage of seats for the little people.

Everyone is invited, all kiddies from White Salmon and Washington points Mosier, as well as every kiddie in Hood River county. Elks look around in your neighborhood and see that you bring a load of kiddies. Notify John Baker, so in case you have overlooked one or two he may notify you before you start.

CANBY CORPS ENTERS TAINS GRAND ARMY

(By S. F. Blythe)

Canby Corps, W. R. C., gave its annual dinner party to comrades of Canby Post and their wives last Saturday. All comrades of the post living in the vicinity were hunted up and given transportation by auto to and from the banquet hall. Comrades E. D. Calkins, H. B. Leonard and James B. Calkins were found to be too feeble to attend. Past Department President Jennie Bentley was instrumental in locating the veterans and Rev. Schuyler Pratt kindly loaned his auto and services in helping to get the guests to the hall.

The dinner was up to the standard of excellence always expected when such a past master in the culinary art as Mrs. Bentley has charge. At the table for the guests were seated Rev. Schuyler Pratt, overseas veteran and pastor of the Episcopal church; Simpson Oopple, commander of Canby post, and wife; Geo. L. Aggers, commander-elect; George J. Costner, past department commander, and wife; R. F. Frasier and wife; Sanford Smith; S. F. Blythe, past department commander, and wife; Jonathan Johnson and wife, Thomas Goss and wife, C. C. Courtright, and James M. King and wife. Comrade and Mrs. King are the parents of Mrs. Schuyler Pratt, now on a visit here from their home in New Jersey.

The monogram of the Grand Army of the Republic was tastily imprinted in the national colors upon the face of the ice cream, the work of the Hood River Creamery at the suggestion of Mrs. Bentley. The children Christmas tree held prizes for the comrades, each one receiving a necktie and handkerchief. Streamers running from the presents under the tree pointed to the officers of the regiment. An address by Rev. Pratt was well received. He paid high tribute to the soldiers of the Union armies, calling them "Saviors of our country." Excellent music was provided by Miss Charlotte Brodie playing the violin and Miss Lucille Ferguson at the piano.

Canby Corps, W. R. C., is flourishing. It is one of the strong and influential auxiliaries of the state. Two of its members, Mrs. Jennie Bentley and Mrs. Ida Scobee, are past department presidents. Under the able management of Mrs. H. J. Frederick, president during the past year, 30 new members have joined Canby Corps. The membership of the corps now numbers 185. Mrs. William Foss is president-elect for the coming year. Joint installation of officers by post and corps will take place Saturday, January 8, 1927.

EULOGIES PAID TO JOE H. STEINHARDT

Apple growers and market men who pioneered in the apple game here were heard invariably last week, when news of the sudden passing of Joe H. Steinhardt was received, to express sincere regret.

The entire Pacific northwest boxed apple industry is indebted to Joe Steinhardt," said H. F. Davidson, all-district's first arborist apple distributor who is now sales adviser for the Apple Growers Association. "Mr. Steinhardt did more than any other individual to stimulate the planting of apple or-

FORUM HEARS OF CHRISTMAS

REV. SCHUYLER PRATT GIVES TALK

Chamber of Commerce, Johnson Body Learning Development of Birthdays Celebration

When the luncheon of the chamber of commerce forum ended Tuesday there was a rush of members to congratulate and felicitate Rev. Schuyler Pratt on his address, telling of the development of the Christian celebration of Christmas.

"The roots of the Christmas sentiments lie deep in the stuff of our human nature, and gain their meaning from the life of Jesus whose birthday we celebrate. The promise that after the misery and danger of winter, a new spring would return, was of vital interest to primitive people, and received its fitting recognition in the celebration of the winter solstice, on December 25th, according to the Julian calendar. The Christians of the third and fourth centuries, after winning a place of respected power in the world by the value of their Puritan standards in personal and public living, took over the occasion for earlier celebrations, and gave them a Christian character. In place of the beastly vice which was let loose, as when in the Saturnalia at Rome, Nero as master of the revels ordered the murder of his mother-in-law, the festival set free the highest motives. In place of the return of the physical sun, now the coming of the Son of Righteousness gave the key note.

"In northern lands, the Yule log had shown from ancient days the vitality of the vegetative life, as in the evergreens of the forest. Burned upon the hearth in festival, this life was released for service in the coming spring. The bear's head of the feast represented the spirit of the corn, being passed from the dead body of the last sheaf to the sowers and the seed of the spring planting. Christians have not been ashamed to enlarge these ancient ideas, to emphasize that all life depends not upon its physical basis but upon its spiritual, sometimes unrealized essence; and that, we know through Christ. They have been ashamed to understand that the plenty of God's earth comes with the plenty of His spirit; and thus to insure their receipt of physical harvest through their welcoming His spiritual Son.

"The early Christianity, expressing the national character of the Greeks, emphasized Christmas as showing that humanity could support the abundant life which they had learned to believe was a possibility. They had caught hints of this life through the dance and the drama of the fifth century before Christ, and their problem was how common mortals could make it captive. The incarnation, or embodiment, of this divine life, in Jesus, showed them the way; and Christmas became its great festival. The Romans were not so much interested in what a man was, as in how he behaved, his character; so celebrated the acts of Jesus, and the Easter festival as the supreme expression of the self-sacrificing spirit. But they made the pure birth of Jesus the support for the personal purity of life which their women have successfully maintained.

"In the details of the events of the first Christmas we have pointed counsel. The inn-keeper acted like a human being, beyond any standard of a business man. He did the best he could, whatever the effect upon his reputation might be. The shepherds, though trained in an occupation most closely bound to the practical, kept their eyes and ears open to see and hear phenomena beyond their comprehension, and acted upon them, with success. The students from the East used the best science of their day—though it was only astrology—and followed where their understanding of the truth led them, although it meant going out of their native lands, out of their ancestral religions. We cannot be less bold in following where our best guidance in truth may lead."

TOM RAY WILL MEET ED FARNUM

Tom Ray, light heavyweight wrestler, who is now located in Hood River, will meet Ed Farnum, of Kansas City, Mo., at the Rialto theatre Wednesday evening, December 29. Farnum comes to the west highly recommended by Billy Edwards, the Kansas City butcher boy, so this match should be a dandy.

Ray originally hails from Omaha, Neb., where for 10 years he was wrestling instructor for the Y. M. C. A. During the war he was wrestling instructor at Fort Omaha. Ray in addition to his wrestling is an all around athlete, having played half back for two years with Graceland College at Lamoni, Iowa. In 1912 Ray ran 100 yards in 10 seconds, two-fifths of a second slower than the world's record, for which feat he was presented with a gold medal and acknowledged at that time to be the fastest man in Iowa.

Ray is rapidly making many friends in Hood River and in his workouts at Art Le Chapel's gymnasium is displaying real class. He takes his wrestling as a business and bars no one in his daily workouts. The public is invited to attend the workouts at any time in the basement of the gymnasium building. Mr. Ray states that in every match in which he appears he wants it distinctly understood that at any time any patron figures that they have not gotten their money's worth they are at perfect liberty to ask for a refund at the box office.

At the last match Ray challenged Alley, and after making a display of very poor sportsmanship Alley did not accept the challenge as he claimed he would be wrestling elsewhere on that date. As yet this mythical match has not been located, neither Promoter Hamlin, of Portland, nor anyone else with the possible exception of Alley, being able to give any information as to its whereabouts.

Ray offered to take Alley on a winner take all basis and if the Missouri (Continued on back page)

Midnight Mass Friday

St. Mary's church will have the usual midnight mass Friday evening at 11:45. The choir, under the direction of H. E. Falt, will render the following program: "Silent Night, Holy Night," by M. Hayden; "Battman's Mass in F"; "Adeste Fideles," offertory; "Benedictus," by Concone; "All Hail to Thee, O Jesu Christ."

The singers are as follows: Mrs. Maher, Rose Beuregard, Arieta Beuregard, and Anne Hickey, sopranos; Margaret Rice and Mrs. Adams, altos; Joe McDonald, baritone; A. A. Mohr and P. J. Mohr, bass, and Cecil Hickey and E. P. Dresser, tenor. Marie Dresser is organist.

The general public is invited to this mass, which is characterized by the excellence of the music.

Country Club Dance

One of the best dances of the year will be held Monday evening, December 27, at the K. P. hall, when the Hood River Country club will entertain for the members and their friends. Guests are expected from White Salmon, Parkdale and Portland, and a special invitation is extended to all college students home for the holidays. L. E. Taft and his committee are planning some special features which should insure an enjoyable evening for those who attend. Bud's Aces will play for the dance.

Christmas

Once each year is not too often for us to put aside the sordid things of life and deal for a day in ideals. We can't all get "Under the Holly Bough" as Charles Mackay would have us assemble, but his lines are good to read and the sentiment is what makes Christmas.

"Ye who have scorned each other,
Or injured friend or brother,
In this fast fading year;
Ye who by word or deed,
Have made a kind heart bleed,
Come gather here.

Let slanders against and slanders,
Forget their strife's beginning,
And join in friendship now;
Be links no longer broken,
Be sweet forgiveness spoken,
Under the Holly Bough."

TABERNACLE TOPICS

Continuing the reply to those who say:
"TO MUCH TO GIVE UP: COMPANIONS!"
If you have companions who would not want you to do what your conscience prompts you to do, the sooner you lose them the better! Remember, they may laugh you into Hell, but they cannot laugh you out. You cannot afford to keep company with those who would hinder the best interests of your life and keep you out of heaven. (Prov. 29:25.) "The fear of man bringeth a snare but whose trusteth in the Lord shall be safe."

Prov. 13:20. "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise; but a companion of fools shall be destroyed."

Fig. 1-1. "Blessed is the man that walketh, not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful."
We can afford to give up Any companions or All companions, for the sake of fellowship with The Lord. (Read 1 John. 1:3-7.)
