ASSOCIATION BUYS IN ENORMOUS VOLUME

(By A. G. Lewis) The heavy crop of all fruits the past season entailed the purchase and handling of a correspondingly large volume of supplies for the growing and harvesting of the crop. Most fruit growers fully realize that to produce a maximum tonnage per acre they cannot safely neglect providing fertilization, cultivation and proper attention and care; all of which require an adequate amount of supplies. The Association undertakes to furnish the necessary supplies for its members at the least possible cost and with the greatest protection and service possible. Supplies are usually purchased for cash and in the largest volume possible; thereby enabling us to demand and secure the lowest price on the commodity purchased. Supplies are billed to members at cost plus a nominal handling and carrying charge and to cover any market variations. Any surplus at the close of the year after deducting actual costs is refunded to members on a percentage basis. Wherever possible the price of each commodity is pooled for the season, thereby insuring a uniform price to all members at all times. The volume handled for the past year is the greatest of any year in the history of the Association and will aggregate approximately $1,000,000 in value. The tonnage is always handled in carloads divided as follows: 400 cars box shooks, 51 cars fertilizer, 11 cars every material, 47 cars paper, 15 cars miscellanous. The foundation of any successful cooperative organization is confidence, and because of confidence and cooperative effort between officials, employees and individual members has our organization increased in service and value to the growers of the Hood River Valley.

Deputy Glenn Sloat and Joe P. Wendling, who were called to McGlynn, a lumber camp out from Albany, with the former's pair of blood hounds to aid in search for Harry Crawford, 25, who was lost in the forest, have returned home with a story of hardship while they followed the trail of Crawford with a posse of 15. The local men received the call from Eugene Friday night. They left here at 11:30 p. m. At 9 p. m. the next day they were at McGlynn, whence they left at once. The trail was hard to follow because of brush. Mr. Sloat says, and several times it was lost, only to be picked up again further along a deep canyon. The hunters spent Saturday night camped in the canyon. They went for two days without food. The dogs followed the trail to the mouth of Wolf creek, where they discovered that Crawford had emerged from the wilderness about five hours earlier. Crawford, it was said, was in far better physical condition than his hunters. An expert woodsman, he had conserved his strength.

About 300 cubic feet of rock remained on the highway Monday.
