Happy Lovers Yet in less than an hour HE WAS TO DIE... RIALTO THEATRE... Happy Lovers... Yet in less than an hour HE WAS TO DIE... RIALTO THEATRE... Happy Lovers... Yet in less than an hour HE WAS TO DIE...

THRILLS, mystery, romance, melodrama follow one another in this big story that reveals the heart of a crook who tries manfully to redeem his shabby past—a most absorbing human and appealing photoplay.

The early action transpires in the underworld of a big eastern city, then switches to a country town in the middle west and finally back into the prison where scenes of remarkable thrill transpire.

"Silence" is the heart story of a crook and of his burning love for his daughter whom he has never seen and whose love he craves. He dares everything to meet this girl and when fate brings them together and bitter tragedy links their lives, he assumes responsibility for a crime he did not commit, because in doing so he insured her happiness, even though his silence brought him to the gallows.

NOTE—This picture is one of our biggest offerings. Positively different than anything you've ever seen.

Home Pointers (From School of Home Economics—O. A. C.) Spinach keeps its natural green color if boiled without a cover. Odorless cooking of cabbage has been done by girls in food selection and preparation classes at the Oregon Agricultural College. They put the cabbage in a generous quantity of rapidly boiling water. The cabbage was put in small bits at a time so that boiling would not for a moment be stopped. The cooking was continued for 15 or 20 minutes without a cover. The odorous gases were held in solution. Two-colored breakfast and luncheon cloths such as orchid with canary or white, green with lemon, natural linen or white with lacquer red, serve as background for simple china. The Glacier makes rubber stamps.

LOS ANGELES CONTINUES TO EXPAND

(By A. D. Moe) Los Angeles, Jan. 17, 1927.

The Glacier: Leaving Yuba City in a rainstorm, which lasted most of the forenoon, we followed the Garden highway to Sacramento, then south through the San Joaquin valley to Tulare, where we spent the night. The storm, which had been general through northern California, did not reach farther south than Fresno. The next morning we left Tulare in a heavy fog, which was worse than the rain, as it required slow and careful driving. By 9 o'clock it lifted as we entered Bakersfield, and we headed for the Tehachian mountains great banks of clouds hung low, and we anticipated a disagreeable trip over the mountains, but the fog lifted. By the time we reached the 20 miles of curves the sun came out and the grand panorama of the scenic ridge route spread out before us. About half of the curves have been widened and straightened and the work is being continued through the balance of the crooked narrow road, which makes travel and lessens the danger of accidents. We arrived in Los Angeles early Sunday afternoon.

On account of the long journey ahead of us we will carry here only long enough to visit our relatives and call on a few friends. I had a very pleasant visit with W. J. A. Baker, representative of the Apple Growers Association, this morning, and we visited a few of the dealers who are handling Hood River apples. One of the big dealers said that he regarded the Diamond brand of the Association worth ten cents a box more than any other brand of apples on the market.

Dealers are having a good deal of grief this year with all northwestern apples. On account of the peculiar growing season the fruit is not holding up, and many cars of apples are coming in full of decay, overripe, and in general bad condition. Some of the dealers are repacking Hood River apples and are suffering a loss in many cases of 25%. Some of the cars are being sorted out, selling the damaged stuff to the "buzzards" (a Los Angeles name for the peddlers). Mr. Baker says that it is now impossible to sell a car of apples until they arrive and are inspected. The market is strong for good apples, and sound, perfect apples are grabbed up quickly at advancing prices, while the fruit beginning to show decay is a drug on the market. All of the apple districts in Oregon and Washington are having the same trouble. There are in cold storage in Los Angeles at present about 200,000 boxes more than a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Franz, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Nichols are in the city visiting friends and relatives. Mr. Baker said that he was expecting Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt the latter part of the month. Los Angeles is still growing steadily, a good many large business blocks going up, and while the speculative real estate boom has quieted down, there is a steady increase in business generally. Coming in from the inland route we saw a Los Angeles city limits sign that had been moved several miles farther north than where it was last year. Automobile traffic is on the increase, but is handled very effectively. New thoroughfares are being built, which relieve the congestion in the busy section. Out on Santa Barbara avenue there is a 15-mile stretch of road standing, but it is a joke. In fact, if traffic obeyed this sign it would be blocked in two minutes. All reasonable speed limits are removed if the driver is skillful enough to get through without hitting anyone.

While Juep Slept A. C. Loftis, Jr. and E. A. Sonniksen have been enjoying life down, there is a snap, preventing the plumbing at their respective fathers' home from freezing up. Their parents are in southern California, where the weather is milder.

Three puppies, belonging to the children of M. Yasni, have made the most of a ventilator at the Guide during the cold weather. An electric fan drives warm air from the Guide kitchen through a vent opening in the street. The three pups crowd into the opening and get the benefit of the hot air.

Colonel Charles Steinhilber, down from his Upper Valley home, reported the snow 30 inches on the level. The Loop highway and other main thoroughfares, however, he reported, are in fine condition.

The temperature last Friday night, 11 below zero, was lower than at any time since December 25, 1924, when the record of 13 below was set. Thursday night the temperature dropped to 10 below. Yesterday indications pointed to a slow break up in the cold weather. The wind was switching toward the west. A chinook will soon be freeing sidewalks and streets from the covering of snow.

Under the Spreading Antlers When Fred Donnerberg, who journeyed to Portland last week with a party from the local Elk lodge to greet Grand Exalted Ruler Crandall, was introduced to the crowd, it was announced that he was a kind of hybrid animal, a member of the antlered tribe and also of the genus rodent. It was explained that Mr. Donnerberg was a member of Hood River's famous Crag Rats. The recreational organization was given a eulogy.

Harry Dobson, who recently returned from Cushman veterans' hospital at Tacoma, says that the Elk lodge there is doing many handsome things for the veterans.

L. S. Boyd, who motored to southern California with Mrs. Boyd the first of the year, has returned home.

C. Dethman, who is taking treatment from a Portland specialist, is reported much improved.

The social last Friday night was much enjoyed. Chairman Sylvester, of the committee in charge of the event, was active in providing a fine feed, and cards and dancing were enjoyed.

A committee headed by A. S. Kolstad is arranging for a smoker Friday evening, February 4. Buy only the best bee supplies, says the bee expert of the Oregon Experiment station. This is especially important when purchasing hive bodies and frames. A metal telescope cover is superior to any other particularly in the damper sections of the northwest. Supplies are ordered early to have everything ready before the rush of spring work.

ROWENA & LYLE FOLK HAVE SCARE

Alarm prevailed among the folk of Lyle, Wash., and Rowena Sunday night, when the report went forth that two men might have fallen through ice on the Columbia river while attempting to walk from the Oregon side of the stream.

R. H. Chamberlain, who lives on a promontory on the Washington side of the river, reported that he saw two men start out on the ice from the Oregon side toward mid-afternoon. About 3.30, using field glasses, he saw what he thought a bear or two heads protruding above the ice. He immediately got in touch with The Dalles and Rowena. Andy Pearson, of Rowena, says The Dalles Chronicle, was the first man to get, but he misunderstood the directions and went down the railroad track below the point where the men were supposed to be struggling. Seeing nothing, he returned home. A party from The Dalles, including Hans Blaser, Frank Heater, C. M. Zell and Cliff Allen reached Rowena shortly after 7 o'clock, and after obtaining minute directions by telephone from Chamberlain, went to the spot and combed the shore thoroughly, searched the surface of the ice with lights, and called over the frozen river. Low Riggs and two members of the section crew joined the searchers at Rowena and the shoreline was examined thoroughly for tracks, but none were found leading out on the ice. The victims, if there were such, could have gone out on the ice from some other point and paralleled the bank for some distance, however. Darkness and the treacherous character of the ice, broken into churning masses and interspersed with spaces of open water, prevented the searchers from venturing from the shore. The theory advanced was that the objects taken for human heads might have been the tops of piling, but Chamberlain declared that whatever it was he saw was not the shore when he scanned the river earlier in the day. Tracks were found leading to a boat frozen in the river at a point exactly opposite where the men were supposed to have gone down, but no footprints lead out onto the ice. It was thought possible that a person might walk out on the snow covered beach and be thought, from the Washington shore, to be a distance out on the ice. A young man was due from The Dalles in Lyle Sunday afternoon. He had planned to cross the river by ferry from Rowena. Lyle friends feared he might have attempted the hazardous crossing, but the young man, whose name was not ascertained, came on to Hood River, crossing on the bridge here. He arrived home Sunday evening.

SONNIKSEN GYM IS BUSY PLACE

In spite of the fact that the Sonniksen gym has been closed part of the week for repairs, there has been a lot of excitement with "Nalls" Gorman (a fighter who is fast making a name for himself in the boxing world) working out with the boys most of the time. The changes Mr. Sonniksen has made in the gym equipment have met with the greatest approval, especially the private lockers for each member and the new ring which is arranged so as to make it possible to have smokers. Next week is going to be a busy one with so many boys working out for the future matches. The gym will be open to non-club members who wish to see work outs. There will be several each day, and the equipment have met with the greatest approval, especially the private lockers for each member and the new ring which is arranged so as to make it possible to have smokers.

SKI CLUB MEMBERS HOERLEIN'S GUESTS

Winter sports activities the past week have been in vogue from the highland reaches of Mount Hood to the Hoerlein ranch in the Oak Grove district, where Hans and Paul Hoerlein, enthusiastic members of the Hood River Ski club arranged a long ski run which was enjoyed by many. The Hoerlein ranch is a fine place for winter sports. The Hoerlein ranch is a fine place for winter sports. The Hoerlein ranch is a fine place for winter sports.

CHAMBER PARTY VISITS IN PORTLAND

A party from the Hood River chamber of commerce visited Portland last Thursday and furnished the program for the weekly luncheon of the Progressive Business Men's Club at the Hotel Benson. The trip to the metropolis was made as a result of an invitation presented several weeks ago by Leslie Butler, member of the Portland club. Mr. Butler headed the Portland party. Rev. F. Gordon Hart made the principal speech, telling of the opportunities of service clubs and chambers of commerce in building up a better and greater Pacific northwest. C. T. Baker gave a short talk. Geo. W. Smith sang solos, and recitation numbers were given by Miss Helen Kleeb. Others who made the trip were: Victor C. Follenius and Arvo Hukari.

NEW TOURIST AUTO CAMP UNDER WAY

The first experiment in transplanting streams to the Hawaiian Islands was begun with the arrival of 20,000 chinook salmon eggs. The shipment was sent through from Seattle in refrigerated cases. The plantings will be made in the Hanalei and Waialeale streams on the island of Kauai where similar experiments with trout have been successful. Trout introduced from the Pacific northwest have adapted themselves to the warmer waters and are now plentiful in the streams of Kauai, Hawaii, Maui, and Oahu. Leighton Kelly, brother of R. W. and F. S. Kelly, is in charge of Hawaiian fisheries. Hood River folk have not had to forego their fresh fish during the recent cold weather. Indian Sam, local aborigine, has furnished local markets with huge sturgeon each week. Sam uses hooks in catching his sturgeon. He uses smelt for bait.

GOLF NEWS

A new type of golf contest will be instituted in the Hawaiian Islands when the Pol-Pounders meet the Rice-Eaters in a "lose-pay-kaukau" tournament on the Volcano course. According to the arrangement of the tourney the losers will treat the winners to a chop suey dinner. The Pol-Pounders are Hawaiians and their team name is derived from the fact that pol, the Hawaiian's staff of life, is made by pounding the root of the taro plant. The Rice-Eaters are Japanese. Team names that are unique to Hawaii are found in all the major sport leagues such as the "Cane-Tops," a member of the Barefoot Football league. District names, such as Kona-Kau Kombine, are also common in island sport circles.

ST. MARY'S CARD PARTY NEXT TUESDAY

The second of a series of card parties being given by St. Mary's church will be held next Tuesday evening at the Mt. Hood hotel dining room. F. R. Adams, in charge of the parties, states that the general public is invited. "We will try to make everybody have a good time," said Mr. Adams. "Pinochle and 500 will be played, and handsome prizes will be given for high scores. An additional door prize will be given. Lunch will be served, and a musical program will be rendered." Those who attended the initial party of the St. Mary's congregation two weeks ago, declare it a most pleasant event.

McISAAC DONATES HIS TIME FOR TOUR

R. J. McIsaac, president of the Apple Growers Association, who is now on a European tour, is donating his time investigating apple markets for the cooperative. The Association has just issued the following bulletin relative to this trip:

"For the information of our members, the board of directors of the Association has sent your president, R. J. McIsaac, on a trip to Great Britain and the Continent to study apple marketing in both the British and Continental markets. As you are well aware, we ship the great many apples to European markets each year, running into hundreds of thousands of dollars in value, without ever sending anyone to represent us in those markets to determine whether our apples are being sold to the best advantage or not. No manufacturer would think of carrying on a business the size of this in such a slipshod way. "We think our European representatives are the best in the field, but it is necessary to give your own business your personal attention, hence Mr. McIsaac's mission. We want to be sure we are getting the best service possible. "Mr. McIsaac is very well qualified to make this investigation for you. In spite of rumors to the contrary, Mr. McIsaac has generously offered to devote his time gratis to this work. The Association pays his actual expenses only. He receives no salary and he alone has his expenses paid. "It has been decided by your board that no applications for membership will be accepted after July 1."
