ODELL Your correspondent believed last week that the information regarding the winter schedule of the Mt. Hood R. R. was correct. While generally believed it was not official and trains on this road are on regular schedule. We are very glad to report the condition of Mrs. Ernest Grams, who is ill, as very much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Hawthorne, Mrs. J. E. Ferguson and A. W. McKeown are among those who have been ill within the past week.

Mrs. Harry Plog and Miss Marie Fletcher entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of the former, honoring Miss Mildred Jaques, a bride-to-be.

The Tacoma Daily Ledger of January 15 contains an account of Alex. B. Brody's classwork, social and all activities connected with student life at the College of Puget Sound, where he has registered for the 17th time in the past 10 years.

On account of the weather the basket lunch fund which had been announced for Monday night was postponed.

Next Wednesday night, February 2, at the Grange hall a program which includes vocal numbers by Miss Marie Fletcher and Miss Gladys Gilbert; a reading, Mrs. J. E. Ferguson, "The Telephone Cure," and "The Burglar Alarm," a comedy in one act, four female characters, time 50 minutes, will be rendered.

The entire program is planned "to drive dull care away."

Mrs. Holmes Ferris and children, of Portland, are spending the week visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Shelton.

Mrs. J. E. Ferguson will appear on the program for the Older Girls' conference to be held in Wasco beginning with luncheon Saturday evening of this week and holding sessions Sunday morning, afternoon and evening.

Earl Stafford will lead Junior church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

We have read with interest a copy of the Newberg Graphic of January 15, 1927. We find in the plan for extension of the work of the church of the M. E. church school the following young men who are well known here have been added to the large staff of the school: Second assistant superintendent, Lawrence Deuch; assistant secretary, Norman Deuch. We also find a fine address on "Dangers of Modification of the Volstead Act" by Major Elbert, associate general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, a man who knows whereof he speaks.

We were also interested in an account of a joint banquet of the Chamber of Commerce and Civic Improvement Club. Among the excellent numbers on the program we find two names well known here. H. F. Davidson spoke on "Development of the Canning Industry and the Future Outlook." W. B. Gleason's subject was "The Boy in the Hat." Rev. Gleason's handling of the subject received very favorable comment from The Graphic.

Announcements for next Sunday at the Methodist church: Sunday school 10 a. m., Allison Fletcher, Supt. At 11 o'clock, Rev. F. L. Moore, pastor, announces the theme, "The Call of the Carpenter." At 7:15 p. m., Epworth League, Bonnie Weinheimer, president. At 8 o'clock, "The Steps of the Master in North Africa," which is an interesting study of an African white race, the Berbers. The message study will be accompanied by a set of 60 slides. At the church of a cordial welcome, F. L. Moore, minister.

Last Sunday when natural flowers or greens for decorations for the church seemed impossible Japanese friends came to the rescue with beautiful roses made by Japanese women.

Friends, telephone news of interest to ODELL. Your correspondent would make ODELL notes in The Glacier as nearly representative of the entire community as can be done but this requires cooperation along the line suggested by this request.

Miss Vienna Annala went to Portland last week and is again a student at Ellison-White Conservatory of Music.

There will be preaching services at the Church of Christ, Odell, next Sunday. Morning services at 10 o'clock when the Bible school meets, followed by preaching at 11. Sermon subject, "The Greatest of These is Love." Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m. Preaching at 7:30 p. m.; sermon subject, "Is the World Wrong About Christianity and the Church?" W. F. Sutton, pastor.

Odell High School Notes (By Bonnie Weinheimer) An error was made in last week's notes which should be corrected. It was stated that the Odell high school boys had played a game of basketball against the Hood River high school team; the note should have read that the Odell boys had played against the Wahoo Club of Hood River.

Last Friday evening a double-header basketball game was played in the Odell high school gym against the teams from Parkdale high school. The Odell boys won with a score of 37 to 16, and the Parkdale girls won the girls' game with a score of 14 to 11.

The next game scheduled is to be played at Odell against the teams of White Salmon Friday evening.

The three short plays being prepared under the direction of Mrs. Gilkerson will be given February 15.

Scholarship examinations will be given from Tuesday to Thursday of next week was the announcement of Principal Byars Monday morning.

It is difficult for students of O. H. S. to become accustomed to school without Eddie Forsberg. Even since Eddie came to Odell last year, he has had a host of friends. He always had a smile and a cheery word for everyone, and now that he is gone, we miss him. In the hearts of the students at Odell no one can ever take Eddie's place.

PINE GROVE The boys' and girls' state club work is being organized with great enthusiasm. The grange was asked to be responsible for the work this year, and J. H. Kilbuck has been selected club leader. The leaders of departments to be taken up at once are Mrs. O. P. Yoder, Mrs. Vagler Vannier, Mrs. Rodney Olson, Mrs. Ralph Perry and Mrs. J. H. Kilbuck. Other leaders will be chosen as the season progresses. About 90 children have signed up, and parents are urged to help them put their best foot forward. A meeting will be held this afternoon to elect officers.

Dixie Miller, Dorothy Brock, Ruth Dresser and Geraldine Vannier are out of school with chickenpox. Miss Reynolds will have charge of Mrs. Miller's room during her quarantine.

Tuesday Mrs. Betty and Mrs. Blackman were also absent from school on account of illness. Their rooms were in charge of Mrs. Laraway and Mrs. Blackford.

The Amicus Club will meet with Mrs. A. Mohr, February 10. All members are urged to be present as important business will be transacted. The community institute has been postponed until the last week in February. Please remember the change in date.

Geo. Perkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Perkins, who has been ill for four weeks, was taken to the hospital Saturday to have his lungs tapper.

Parkdale High School News (By Sheldon Laurance) Last Friday evening the basketball team went to Odell with the intention of winning the games that they were supposed to play. The girls won their game but the boys failed to "do their stuff." The girls were about evenly matched so the contest was a fast one and it was not certain which team would win until the final whistle blew.

The Parkdale girls certainly played a classy game of basketball. The guards, especially, did well. They combined with the accurate shooting of the forwards and the splendid work of the centers won the game for them. The score was 14-11.

Something was wrong with both boys' teams. The Parkdale boys were not up to their usual form and the Odell team played better than they ever knew how. As a result we lost the game. The game is much smaller than ours and it was very slick. So were some of the Odell players; they were faster than our boys. Even at that they certainly had to work hard to get the game.

Rona Muma entered high school Monday as a freshman. Rona completed the eighth grade at the mid-year and started the new semester with us.

Saturday night Parkdale was victorious in her games. The girls were up to their usual form so they readily beat the Pine Grove team. This team has three of Hood River's first team players on it. The game was fast and hard fought but our girls pushed their way to a 30-10 victory.

The boys were to play the Wahoo Club of Hood River but owing to lack of transportation that team could not get here. Instead, a picked team of town players formed the opposition. Although they were pretty good the high school boys won the game. The score was 24-19.

The name of the opera which the high school will give is "Bets O' Balanney" an Irish story. The presentation day is Wednesday, St. Patrick's day.

Friday (tomorrow night) the Cascade Locks teams journey up here with the intention of winning a couple of basketball games. They are going to get the surprise of their lives. The memory of the game that we suffered at their hands has not been forgotten and the Parkdale hoopers are determined to even the record. There is no other game we wish to win as much as the game Friday. Weeks of practice have put the teams in condition for the climax—and here it is. No one should miss these games because there never will be as hard fought a contest in Parkdale as there will be tonight. Come out and be a rooter for the home team. The games will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

SCREEN AND STAGE If Edmund Burns, who has one of the featured roles in Zane Grey's "Forlorn River," to be at the Rialto theatre Saturday, had taken the cereal business seriously, the screen would have missed one of its most talented leading men.

Burns was born in Philadelphia and, after graduating from high school in the Quaker City, became a travelling salesman for a nationally known breakfast food. At a motion picture show in a little Maryland town one night the great decision came. Burns decided there was no future for him in the cereal business and that he would become a movie player.

His first engagement was in a picture starring Valdesa Suratt. He got the job because he said he was an actor and they believed him! Since then he has played in scores of pictures with increasing success, until today he is recognized as an actor of striking dramatic ability. His most notable Paramount role was the male lead opposite Gloria Swanson in "The Humming Bird."

In "Forlorn River" Burns is one angle of a novel triangular love affair which includes Jack Holt and Arlette Marchal. Raymond Hatton is another of the principal players, while the supporting cast includes Tom Santschi, Nola Luxford and Christian J. Frank. John Waters, who directed the film version of Zane Grey's "Born to the West," also wielded the megaphone on "Forlorn River."

To what extent is a woman dependent upon man? Is it possible for a man to exert such an influence over a woman as to make her very career hinge upon his mere presence or absence? Admitting that initial aid is sometimes a factor in the later success of a woman, is it necessary for her helper to be ever-present, Svengali-like?

That is the motif of "The Marriage Clause," the Universal-Jewel, coming to the Rialto theatre Sunday. It was adapted from "Techale," the famous story written by Dana Burnett and which ran in the Saturday Evening Post.

It is a tale of the theatre, with Frances E. Willard day will be observed by a silver tea and program at the home of Mrs. W. F. Laraway on State street.

The Apple Growers Association has donated 221 boxes of apples to the Children's Farm Home.

At the last regular meeting held in Library hall Miss May L. Scribbl, mistress of one of the cottages of the Children's Farm Home, gave details as to its management. The children are taught that it is no discredit to them to be in the home but they understand that much is being done for them and that they in turn owe something to the world.

The afternoon musical numbers were given by the W. C. T. U. glee club composed of Mesdames Olmsted, McCauly, Falkner, Peterson, Edgington, Mace Baldwin, Root, Burns, and Lulu Hunt, led by Mrs. S. G. Oxborough at the piano.

The outstanding feature of the program was an address by Mrs. Livingstone on the results of seven years under the Eighteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution which, the speaker showed, has accomplished more in the same length of time than any other of the amendments. To say that the amendment would not have carried had the boys in the service been home is an insult to the boys and to the homes from which they came.

BEST MONTHS FOR ADVERTISING

THE MERCHANT, business man or head of some industry, who wishes to put across a message, will find these weeks of the winter season ideal for his purpose. "These are dull days," some may argue, although it is faulty argument; "and why should one advertise when business is at its slackest?"

But these are the days when the home newspaper is read more intensively than any other time of the year. During these winter months, the families or rural and city residents are less actively engaged out of doors than at any other season. The home newspaper remains on the library table usually for a full week. Time after time the father, the mother, the children, glance through the home newspaper. They read it from cover to cover.

An outstanding advertisement, appearing at this season of the year will attract more attention now than at any other time. The progressive merchant and business man is not merely thinking of the goods he may sell today, this week. He is looking into the future, and this vision, this wisdom, spurs him on toward the dissemination of a message that will build him good will and cause the prospective customer to think of him when the time does arrive for buying.

No seedsman expects you to begin planting a garden now, but the wise salesman of rosebushes, bulbs, flower and vegetable seeds, is now forwarding his catalogues to prospective customers. These long winter days afford the recipients time to glance through the catalogues and dream of wonderful springtime gardens.

You do not care for a motor spin today, but the progressive motor car company has already begun telling the story of the pleasure you may derive in a new automobile when winter is gone.

Certainly, now is the time to devote some real effort on your advertising. Provide a message worth while and you will get it across during the mid-winter months.

Dairy Situation Report Released By State College Extension Service

Relatively high prices for dairy products in the United States and low and declining prices in foreign markets are significant factors in the present dairy situation, according to a report on the dairy situation recently released by the division of economics of the Oregon state college extension service. There has not been the customary seasonal advance in London or in other important foreign markets, owing largely to the British coal strike and the resultant low purchasing power of the British people, together with lack of demand in Germany even at lower prices from increasing domestic supplies.

While prices have steadily advanced in the United States, the foreign markets have remained weak, with the result that the price differential has grown wide enough to encourage exports from foreign countries into the United States in spite of a 12 cent duty. At the same time, high prices tend to reduce consumption. The domestic situation nevertheless remains in a fairly strong position, owing to lighter market receipts and a substantial movement out of storage of all important dairy products. Stocks of butter in storage in the United States on June 1 were two and a half times larger than a year previous, but they were about equal on December 1 to the previous December.

The export trade in the United States has been declining since the war years. It is fortunate for dairymen that there is not a large exportable surplus of dairy products at the present time. Whether it will be profitable to produce an exportable surplus in the future is a problematical reads the report.

Dairy animals on farms in the United States numbered fewer last January 1 than a year earlier. Of milk cows there were about 22,290,000 compared to 22,523,000 a year earlier. The figures on dairy heifers are more significant, being 3,861,000 against 4,234,000. In terms of 1920, these represent 104 per cent and 87 per cent respectively of the number then on hand. On a per capita basis the number of cows January 1 this year was 95 per cent of the number five years earlier.

The same relationship in dairy population does not hold for Oregon and other western states, however, for Oregon had 110 per cent of the 1920 dairy cow population and 112 per cent of heifers. The Pacific states had 114 and 120 per cent of cows and heifers respectively; and the Mountain states, 121 and 119.

Many other factors besides the dairy cow population bear upon the quantity of dairy products which may be produced and consumed in the country, it is stated. There is a gradual increase in production per cow resulting from better breeding and feeding practices and consumption is increasing. These tend to offset each other. In the past 20 years the number of cow-testing associations has grown from a single one to 727 or more. Bull associations have increased from the beginning to 225. The number of persons per dairy cow is now figured at 5.22 compared to 4.93 in 1920, while the per capita consumption has increased from 773 pounds fluid milk equivalent to about 1000 pounds.
