THIS YEAR BRINGS A REVUE

Chautauqua Keeps Up-to-the-Minute in Entertainment Features

The 1927 Chautauqua is bringing a 1927 program. One of the outstanding features of the entertainment world in the past two years has been the increasing popularity of what is known as a Revue. This year's Chautauqua will bring a Revue as a part of the program.

when his show is on Broadway it is generally harder to get seats for it than any other theatre in town. Miss Elmore has learned just how to build a program of the Stone type which is sparkling in its comedy, swift moving in its action and thoroughly above criticism in every respect.

white and pink were there in profusion, a gift to the class from Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Smith on the River road near Summit.

The Student Body picnic was enjoyed by practically the entire high school Thursday of last week at Multnomah Falls.

Stuart Wheeler, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Jakku, had rather a dangerous experience one day last week while experimenting with a truck. The house is situated on quite a hill and fortunately the truck was standing so that it ran back toward the house instead of down the road.

Another notable member of the Revue is Stewart Churchill whose Marimba playing has been a sensation wherever this young wizard has appeared. The present tour is his first trip to the far Western States. Western audiences have seen some good Marimba people in their time, but unless all predictions fail, Churchill's playing will be remembered for many a day.

Chris Egger expects to leave Thursday, today, for Lawrence, Kas., where he will visit his brother, Henry Egger. The high school auditorium was packed last Friday evening for the high school commencement exercises.

Clipped Here and There

When it was learned that a group of Union Pacific officials would be glad to visit Hood River, and that such a visit might result in interesting them in the enterprise of building a new tourist hotel at that point, the Portland men who are interested in the project thought despatching of the mountain of snow that block the Camps Spur road and failed to see how the trip could be accomplished.

It wouldn't have been accomplished, if it had not been for the indefatigable Grog Rats of Hood River. They phoned to the telephone call the service on this occasion just as they did when the search was on for Jackie Strong and White and Brownies.

While Portland admires Mount Hood from a safe and comfortable distance and its public spirited citizens talk eloquently at luncheon clubs about the value of the mountain as a tourist attraction, the Grog Rats are more direct. They save their breath for climbing snow and convince the visitor by the unanswerable argument of putting him on the mountain to see for himself.

The Vets recently urged young men, professional and business men, to join their local chambers of commerce and other organizations that promote means of making desirable citizens and that offer opportunities for advancement in citizenship.

Word was received here in a letter from Al Kader, trustee of the Shrine Shrine to William Lewis, secretary of the local commandery of Knights Templar, of the death in Los Angeles on June 4 of J. M. Wright, formerly mayor of this city. Mr. Wright had been the Marshfield, where he had his own firm engaged as general contractor several years before the family removed to southern California.
