BOYS HEALTHY AT CAMP LIMBERLOST

The Boy Scouts at Camp Limberlost at Lost lake have been enjoying the best of health. Seventy-four per cent of the boys have gained in weight. Twelve per cent showed no change and 14 per cent lost weight. Philip Bower showed the largest individual gain, a gain of 6 pounds. Rudy Prail, who was three pounds overweight, lost that much. Other details of physical condition of the boys follow:

Average gain in group with increased weight, 2.4 pounds; average gain in all camp, 1.5 pounds for two weeks or an average gain per day of 1.7 ounces. If such gain could be maintained throughout the summer the whole gain would reach 9 pounds per boy.

Average loss in group which lost the weight, 1.6 pounds. In all camp the average is a gain of 1.5 pounds.

The group which did not change in weight or lost some still is overweight per individual, in average, 1.5 pounds.

Legion Visitors Call Here

A. L. Mallery, editor of the Tillamook Headlight and president of the Oregon State Editorial Association, spent Tuesday night here while enroute to La Grande to attend the state American Legion convention. He was accompanied by Mrs. Mallery and their son and daughter. Mr. Mallery will return by way of Ontario and central Oregon, visiting newspaper men at all points and endeavoring to stimulate an interest in the annual editorial convention, which will be held at Roseburg August 5 and 6.

James W. Mott, state legislator from Astoria, and Mrs. Mott, spent Tuesday night here, breaking their journey to La Grande. Mr. Mott announced that he will be a candidate at the primaries next year, seeking Republican nomination for congress in opposition to Representative Hawley.

Farm Pointers

Far too little pasture grass seed is grown in the Pacific northwest, according to G. R. Hyslop, professor of farm crops at the Oregon experiment station. Growers have sent perfectly good money year after year to the east or abroad for pasture seed when it might well have been grown here. They could produce enough white clover, an expensive item of mixture, to supply all local needs and to ship out a surplus.

In so far as sugar content and yield of Oregon sugar beets is concerned numerous places in the state from the coast to Snake river will grow sugar beets of yield and quality good enough for the factory, reports the Oregon experiment station after nearly 40 years of trial. But more than soil and climate are necessary to agricultural production of sugar beets. For successful manufacture there must be an assured volume of raw materials every season.

Motorists who wish to take a long scenic drive and still avoid the summer dust will enjoy the Mount Hood loop, via Portland, Mt. Hood, Hood River, The Dalles, Redmond and Springfield. Pavement or oiled highways are found practically all the way with the exception of the McKenzie highway to Walterville, according to Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Maxey, who made the trip during the Fourth of July vacation.

Thousands of cars went around the Mt. Hood loop during the Fourth. The road is oiled all the way and easy grades carry one over the Barlow and Bennett passes, both over 4200 feet elevation. It is down hill through the orchards over excellent oiled road to Hood River. From Hood River to The Dalles the Columbia River highway is followed and the The Dalles-California to the junction of the McKenzie highway at Redmond. The McKenzie highway is in good condition but one notices the dust after traveling on pavement or oiled highways.

The wheat and other grain crops in central Oregon along the highway appear to be a fine yield. Heavy rains have supplied sufficient moistnre to the hill lands, making a bumper crop. Harvesting is about ready to start.—Springfield News.
