NEW VICTOR RECORDS EVERY FRIDAY

George Washington

HE stands the noblest leader who ever was entrusted with his country's life. His patience under provocation, his calmness in danger, and lofty courage when all others despaired, his prudent delays when delay was best, and his quick and resolute blows when action was possible, his magnanimity to defamers and generosity to his foes, his ambition for his country and unselfishness for himself, his sole desire of freedom and independence for America, and his only wish to return after victory to private life, have all combined to make him, by the unanimous judgment of the world, the foremost figure of history.

CHAMBER BANQUET MONDAY

ANNUAL ELECTION IS ON SCHEDULE

Surprise Speeches Will be Delivered by Eight Members of the Public
Speaking Classes

The feature of the annual banquet and election meeting of the chamber of commerce next Monday night will be four-minute speeches by eight members of the recently organized public speaking classes. None of the speakers have appeared in talks to Hood River audiences. They have been assigned topics of general interest to the people. The identity of the speakers will not be announced until they are introduced the night of the banquet.

R. E. Scott, the president of the chamber the past year, will preside at the meeting Monday evening. The dinner will be served by the women of St. Mary's church in the dining room of the Mt. Hood hotel.

Four directors will be elected at the meeting to take the places of L. S. Boyd, who has served a part of a year; C. H. Vaughan, who has served for three years; F. A. Olmsted, who has served for nine years, and H. O. Kresse, who has served three years. The nominating committee, consisting of J. G. Vogt, O. M. Bell, F. S. Kelly, N. H. MacMillan and Roderick McKee, who stated that they would like to see others nominated from the floor, made the following nominations: L. S. Boyd, E. L. Soboc, J. W. Sifton, Roderick McKee.

The men elected, together with R. E. Scott, H. L. Shoemaker and L. A. Bennett, will constitute the board for the next year. They will elect their own officers. A full attendance at the Monday meeting, which will begin at 7 o'clock, has been urged by officers.

BASEBALL JAMBOREE PLEASANT EVENT

Last Monday night the dancing populace of Hood River Valley was pleasantly surprised and satisfied with the Hood River Baseball club's Jamboree, first annual St. Valentine's dance, which was given at the Knights of Pythias hall.

The lighting effects and decorations of the hall were unique and were considered by many as the best that Hood River has ever seen at any dance. The dance program music was furnished by the Night Hawks orchestra. Several solos, duets and special numbers were given by the orchestra which pleased the dancers exceedingly.

Unique lighting effects were produced by spotlights in each corner of the hall casting a beam of light directly across the floor of the hall. The contrast of this white beam with the soft red light from the ceiling and other decorations was unique. A windmill at one end of the hall was covered with pieces of mirror glass on which a vari-colored beam was projected as the mill revolved. The effect of this was also pleasing.

The Hood River Baseball club announces that their next benefit dance will be given on St. Patrick's day at the Pythian hall. Appropriate decorations will be used in a slightly different scheme than has heretofore been used, and more lighting effects and fixtures will be displayed. The Night Hawks orchestra will furnish the dance music.

Letter of Thanks for Cooperation
The Hood River Baseball club wishes to extend at this time its sincerest appreciation and thanks to the following individuals and business houses for their loyal cooperation in making the Jamboree a success, and one of the best dances that Hood River has ever seen.

The Baseball club expresses appreciation for the services of Taylor Cloe, Robert Clark, Deland Dreake, Gerald Barnhill, and Jake Benzel in their efforts to make the Jamboree a success; and to the following firms for their hearty and gracious cooperation with the Baseball club: Franz Hardware company, Apple City Electric company, Rita and Sons, The Shop, Pacific Power & Light company, Book & Art store, Bartol Motor company, Howell Brothers, Morse Auto Parts, Stewart Confectionery, and J. E. Volstorff.

HOOD RIVER WILL MEET CRACK TEAM

The season's best basketball game is expected here next Saturday night, when the Hood River high school team will meet the crack Milton-Freewater-McLaughlin high school team. The eastern Oregon basketballers have played 11 games, winning all of them. Hood River will make an earnest effort Saturday night to defeat the champions. The former basketball game this season, because of poor weather prevailing, have not drawn a large attendance of towns people. At the weekly chamber of commerce luncheon Tuesday, Principal F. S. Knight urged that business men and their families turn out and support the team.

"We have a good team," said Mr. Knight, "and while we are not counting overly strong on a victory, we believe that Hood River folk will be given a game that will be exceedingly interesting. We now have plenty of parking space around the school. The heating plant is working well, and we can accommodate all who see the game in the new gymnasium comfortably. We will be glad to welcome 200 or more of you to the game Saturday night."

Keat to Fight Here Soon
Irving Garabrant has announced to the fight fans of the mid-Columbia that bouts will be staged here some time between now and March 10, when Kenny Keat will be one of the main contenders.

Young Kent, who is making a name for himself in the squared ring in Portland and Seattle, formerly resided here. He has become a favorite with Pacific northwest sports writers for his gameness and success with the gloves.

AVIATION EXPERTS ENDORSE AIRPORT

L. E. Thirkelsen, Oregon member of the National Aeronautical association, and Edward Peters, Portland motor car dealer and aviation enthusiast, who came here Tuesday to discuss with the chamber of commerce committee and members of the city council the matter of a local airport, visited the proposed site of an air field just west of the city. The visitors declared that the location is an excellent one. Mr. Thirkelsen, however, declared that the limits of the field, as at present outlined, will not be adequate to care for the big cabin ships that are certain to be making the Columbia river gorge route in the early future.

The visitor said that Hood River will be able to make the landing field adequate by extending the bounds of the field some 700 feet to the west. The land is available there.

Mr. Thirkelsen gave his hearers a new insight into the importance of aviation along the Columbia gorge when he told them of plans for the coming summer. He declared that 60 ships of all kinds will pass up the Columbia about the middle of next July, bound from Portland to Spokane and thence east on the return from the annual National Aviation tour, which will start from Detroit. The flyers will cover 6000 miles. They have eliminated Seattle from their itinerary because of the hazardous passage across the Cascade range. Mr. Thirkelsen predicted that Seattle-Spokane air traffic will go by way of the gorge.

Mr. Thirkelsen declared that Hood River should provide a field that will enable airplanes of all sizes to land and take off safely.

The visitors were accompanied to the field by E. O. Blanchard, chairman of the chamber of commerce aviation committee and other chamber members and the committee of the chamber of commerce appointed to outline plans for securing an airport.

It had been planned that the visitors address the Tuesday chamber meeting. They had planned on flying from Portland but were prevented by heavy fog. They were so delayed that they did not reach here until the luncheon was over.

At the chamber meeting, with Mr. Blanchard presiding, various members of the chamber gave their ideas of the need for an airport here. Members of the city council and Mayor Stranahan said that the city body is willing to aid with the improvement, but their participation has not been hastened because of details necessary to be worked out. Judge Jeffrey declared that the county is willing to cooperate.

Three of Family Die

Death has slight consideration for humankind when she strikes, neither does she consider the sorrow of one human soul grieving for another. So it would seem in the misfortune of the Quackenbush family of Hood River, pioneer leaders in social, financial and religious activities in that city, who formerly owned a West Side country home.

For many years the family resided on a farm between Tigard and Tualatin. From time to time death came in her quiet way, unremittingly taking toll, until three members of the family survived. And for a time then they lived in peace.

On February 5, after Miss Louise Quackenbush, 55, was ill almost daily from pneumonia, death came again, quietly as before.

Leaving the room of his sister, Edward Quackenbush, brother of Louise, and his invalid son, Fred, paused at the head of the stairway. He looked back into his sister's room, waved for a moment, relaxing his grip on Fred. The latter fell down the stairway, striking his head.

Two days later Edward Quackenbush was stricken ill with fever.

The funeral of Miss Quackenbush took place Tuesday. The same day, following the funeral, Fred died. At 4:30 Sunday morning, Edward died.

Fred was buried Thursday. Edward was buried Tuesday.

According to physicians in attendance, there is no malady. It is merely a result of the strange weavings of fate, or circumstance.

Edward Quackenbush was at one time manager of the Ladd & Tilton bank in Portland. Later he retired from the bank and conducted a real estate business, which he did not relinquish until his final illness. He was an active worker in the Y. M. C. A. of Portland and in church circles, and organized the first baseball club in the city. He also helped organize the Philharmonic society, which brought noted musicians to Portland for recital. He also aided to organize the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

What could be more pleasant than to hear two of Hood River's most popular young people in a musical recital? Yet there is a chance because on Monday, March 27, at 3 p. m. Clifton Emmel and Thomas Clarke, both former students of Hood River high school, will give a recital in the new high school auditorium.

Mr. Emmel and Mr. Clarke are both studying music in Portland and are gaining much praise for their talent. Mr. Emmel is making a name for himself as an organist and pianist and is studying music under the direction of Mrs. Frances S. Burke, who is one of the foremost teachers of piano on the Pacific coast. Mr. Clarke is a pupil of Otto Wedemeyer of Portland and is also soloist of the Apollo club. Mr. Clarke also won state wide recognition in the recent Atwater Kent radio contest.

This recital will take the place of the weekly assembly, the only difference being that the students will not be required to attend and an admission charge will be made of 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for students. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the Mascot.

Bobbie Moller Finds First Flower
To Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Moller of the Oak Grove district, goes the honor of finding the first spring flowers. Young Mr. Moller exhibited a blue bell at the Glacier office Tuesday afternoon. Snow banks remained in canyons near the sunny nook of the Hood River canyon where the flower was plucked.

SKI CARNIVAL DRAWS CROWD

ATTENDANCE WAS 1700

Great Fest Taken in Winter Sports Indication That Hood Will Become Winter Mecca

Seventeen hundred people, the largest single party of recreationists ever on the north side of Mount Hood in winter or summer, attended the second annual winter sports carnival of the Hood River Guide Ski club Sunday. The recreationists motored comfortably to Argonne camp 23 miles out on the Mount Hood Loop highway, where the ski trails and jumps had been arranged.

A combination of unusually fine weather and a light fall of snow Saturday had made conditions for the sports ideal. A calm prevailed and the sun shone warmly from a cloudless sky. While snow is still deep on the sides of all the upper reaches of the loop road, the highway has been cleared well as far as Argonne camp, where parking space had been provided for automobiles. State Traffic Officer Banks said not an accident occurred.

The big crowd was chiefly made up of local city and valley folk, although a considerable number of ski enthusiasts had motored here from Portland and the south side of Hood.

"We are certainly delighted with the attendance," said A. L. Anderson, in general charge of the day's events. "It is an indication that Mount Hood is rapidly going to become an all the year mecca for those who love the thrills of out of door sports."

James Still, staff cameraman of the International News, was present to record the events. His films were rushed to the New York City studio of the company by air mail. He declared that the varied sports interests of the day, the participation of so many of the spectators, both old and young, in the affair, gave it a human interest that will result in wide motion picture publicity.

E. W. Arvén and Arnie Annala, were clowns of the day. They gave the spectators some thrills and many laughs with their stunts. Mr. Annala took the ski jump on a set of larved staves.

St. Channah, who has visited ski runs and places of winter recreation in Norway and Switzerland as well as various places in this country, told the crowd he had never seen a place with greater possibilities than on the slopes of Mount Hood.

"As a playground for those who like winter sports," said Mr. Schuchard, "you folks haven't any idea of just what you have got. To me it is wonderful."

Ted Emerson of the Oregonian, gave every one a scare Sunday. Mr. Emerson, when taking the jump, permitted the wrong end of him to become elevated. He sped through the air for 65 feet and alighted on his shoulders. Every one expected that he would be a patient of the first aid man, but he arose smilingly.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis won the prize of all the crowd for the excellent way in which they fed the many hungry recreationists and extended the crowd their hospitality from Argonne camp.

The list of those who were awarded prizes follows:

Cross Country—First, Otto Hagen, Bingen, Or.; Mt. Hood Ski club; second, T. A. Berglund, Prescott, Or.; Guide Ski club.

Snow Shoe Race—First, Jesse Hutson, Parkdale, Or.; second, Dell Hutson, Parkdale.

Skiing Exhibitions—C. A. Landy, of Stevenson, Wash.; Guide Ski club; second, T. A. Berglund, Prescott, Or.; Guide Ski club.

Novelty Race—First, Percy Bucklin, Hood River, Guide Ski club.

Girls' Cross Country—First, Barbara McDonald, Hood River; second, Catherine Carlow, Hood River.

Boys' Stunt Race—First, Carl Moody, Parkdale; second, Wesley Weygandt, Parkdale.

Tug of War—First, Hood River; second, Parkdale.

Jump—First, Shefstad; second, Ole Haugen.

One of the features of the carnival was the showing made by the younger generation. The champions present included the winners of the boys' ski jump. They declared that Carl Moody, who won first place and Wesley Weygandt, second winner, will make the mark. Moody was given a pair of ski binders by the Book & Art store, while young Weygandt was presented with a ski cap by the club.

MOUNT HOOD CREDIT ASSOCIATION HERE
C. W. Simmons, who is aligned with a credit organization which covers Oregon, Washington and Idaho, has arrived here from La Grande and has established the Mount Hood Credit association. Mr. Simmons, who states that he has been well received by the merchants of the city, has taken office in the Culbertson building, occupying the quarters on Third street formerly used by E. L. Bradley with his printing establishment.

Mr. Simmons states that his organization is affiliated with the National Credit Association of St. Louis. The new office will be able to furnish its members here with accurate credit ratings. In addition the office will take care of collections for its members. Mr. Simmons declares that the office of his concern in other cities have grown to the point where merchant members consider the service indispensable.

Fordson Clinic Tomorrow
Norvin C. Coulter, of the Coulter Motor Co., has extended an invitation to those of the valley interested in tractor operations to be present tomorrow from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. at a Fordson tractor clinic. The clinic, which will be attended by experts of the Ford organization, will be held in the show room of the Coulter Motor Co.

The announcement has created a keen interest. A similar clinic held last year drew a large attendance, and it is indicated that the show room will be crowded this year.
