The Old "Spring Tonic" (By Frederick D. Stricker, M. D. of Oregon State Board of Health.) Costly huddled amasses of things more or less pleasant which make up the general miscellany of remembrance is the good old spring tonic, sulphur and molasses. As it had a disagreeable taste, naturally it was a remedy for the young. Older people may have taken it, too; presumably they did, I never saw them.

When Jack and Ethyl "come here" they will tell thousands of radio listeners all about what we have to offer them when they come this way. And the Associated Oil company is being deluged with requests for further information, descriptive literature, road maps and the like relating to the places their radio couple has already visited.
