EVENTS OF THE WEEK

D. B. Lively, owner of the fox farm at Warrendale, has built two cabins on his property and is now finishing a third. He has found no difficulty in renting them.

Mrs. C. B. Kimmell, manager of the Columbia hotel, is causing a number of changes to be made in the building with a view to adding another room. Workmen are engaged in hauling dirt away from the excavation under the building. Mrs. Kimmell plans to finish up the basement.

Miss Eliza Stevens, of the Bonneville public school, has purchased a tract of land near the Warrendale store and is preparing to build a cottage. She proposes to rent it to some family during the construction period of the dam, and to occupy it as her home after the work at the dam is finished.

Jack Eimer, who came to Cascade Locks recently from California and opened an electric shop, is being kept busy wiring up business houses and new cottages. Business firms for whom he has done wiring report him a fast, skilful workman. He is putting in quite a stock of electrical fixtures.

Rolf Enquist and Hal Babbitt have about completed their new building on the highway, just west of Bonneville, and expect to open their restaurant this week. In another week they propose to throw a grand opening to which they will invite the public. They are building a beer garden back of the place, overlooking the river.

Business men of North Bonneville have purchased a neon sign bearing the name of their town, which they are preparing to erect at the Cascade Locks end of the Bridge of the Gods. The sign cost them $90, but they apparently feel that it is worth the price. The bridge company is making ready to put up several road signs at both ends of the bridge. One pointing the direction to Cascade Locks will be erected on the Washington side

The Stevenson high school Hi-Jinx—big time carnival—will be presented Friday night. The hi-jinx will offer thrills and amusement for old and young.

Vaudeville, dancing, a smoker, games of chance and a musical comedy will be the features of the evening.

Manager Wachter promises all those attending an evening of entertainment that will long be remembered.

Billie Brink and Harry Cramblett were in Portland Wednesday to witness the downfall of the Portland baseball team at the hands of the Missions. Both boys learned several new baseball tricks which they hope to use on the local diamond this summer.

The condition of Thomas Harrison is reported to be greatly improved. Mr. Harrison has been ill for several weeks and his friends will be glad to hear that he is up and out again.

Helmer Sundsten, Fred Gray, Helen Glacier and Helyn Merrill went on a fishing trip Sunday up Herman creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haggblom entertained the following guests at their home Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Heppner of Warrenton, Mr. and Mrs. George Haggblom of Warrenton, Erick Haggblom, Lawrence and Herbert Haggblom, Norma Heppner and Lois Haggblom. The affair was given in honor of Charles Haggblom's 69th birthday and Norma Heppner's 9th birthday. Grandfather and granddaughter have celebrated their birthdays together since Norma became a year old.

Harvey Carey, who conducts the shoe repairing shop in this city has built up a nice business since coming here from Centralia, Wash. His brother, Vernon Carey, is coming down from Centralia to assist him in the shop. He says he has developed his business because he has been able to turn out work at Portland prices.

"Your son is accused of stealing. Have you anything to say for him?"
"Well, I'm glad he's begun to do something to support himself."
