SCHOOL BOARD

W. J. Carlson, proprietor of the Red and White store, has consented to stand as a candidate for the county school board. The election, to be held in June, will be the first under the law which created the county unit system.

The Chronicle does not profess to know the sentiment of Cascade Locks, but it feels that the people of the town should act as a unit in supporting a single candidate for the one position to which the west end of Hood River county is entitled on the board, and if Mr. Carlson is satisfactory to the public as a whole, it can see no reason for a second candidate appearing in the campaign.

As we understand it, a petition must be circulated and signed in behalf of the candidate. There will be five vacancies to fill. Cascade Locks has had a member of the board, and should have a member at all times and under all circumstances so long as the town remains unincorporated.

The Chronicle believes Mr. Carl member of the county board and it believes further that the town is forson would make a very splendid tunate in being able to put him forward as its candidate. With only one candidate running from this district, and the town voting solidly for him, there would be no question about Cascade Locks having representation on the board. We are confident that other communities of the county are perfectly willing for Cascade Locks to have a member of the board, and it only remains for the people to act.

CHEAP POWER.

With the completion of Bonneville dam, Cascade Locks will enjoy the cheapest power rates in America, if not in the world.

Proof of this statement is contained in figures just made public in Washington, D. C., by the engineers of the federal power commission.

Bonneville power can be sold at a lower rate than power from Grand Coulee in Seattle.

Bonneville power, on tide water, is the only power in the United States which can be delivered at tide water at a lower rate than is now obtainable elsewhere.

Bonneville power will, it is estimated by the engineers, cost one-third of a mill less at the dam than it will cost in Portland.

A third of a mill is not much when compared with the 14 cents which Cascade Locks is now paying per kilowatt hour for current, but it promises to mean much to large industrial plants. The difference in cost promises to make Cascade Locks an industrial center.

Here are the estimated costs of Bonneville power, as released by engineers of the power commission:

City	Mills
Cascade Locks	1.29
Portland	1.59
Seattle	1.95

These estimates, prepared by the engineers of the power commission, tell us that Bonneville power will be one-sixth cheaper at the switch in Bonneville than in Portland. Reason: Cost of building, interest and maintenance charges on transmission lines.

Chemical plants, pulp and paper mills, steel mills, tire manufacturers and other huge consumers of electrical energy can save one-sixth of their power bill by locating in Cascade Locks, rather than in Portland or Vancouver.

If these savings are actually to be effected Cascade Locks should become an industrial center. The Dam Chronicle does not publish this statement with a view to encourage speculation, but it does publish it for the purpose of calling attention to the fact that Cascade Locks occupies an enviable position.

Cascade businessmen do not want, will not encourage boom. They believe in the town, feel that it will grow into a small industrial city. They believe that cheap power will attract industries, that deep sea locks will make it the second city in Oregon within the period of a very few years.

The Dam Chronicle is of the opinion that the 50-mile lake which will be created back of Bonneville dam is going to make Cascade Locks the greatest summer resort in the Pacific northwest, if not on the Pacific coast, and it is of the opinion that money invested in the town on that basis is a safe investment. But it desires to set forth the facts, to remind the public that cheap power may come to mean more to the town than any of us now realize.

New Baseball Field.

The base ball grounds have been shifted to the government reservation down by the locks. Members of the ball club have been busy all week getting the field in shape. Last Sunday the team played a nine from the Wyeth CCC camp. This Sunday it will play a team from the forestry service.

Manager Vernon G. Henderson has had letters from a number of Portland teams, seeking games. He expects to begin accepting them late this month.

Uniforms have not arrived yet, but are expected any day now.

Mrs. George Atkinson, who is teaching the Cradel Roll at Sunday school in Bonneville, went to Portland Wednesday to get some supplies for this class for Mother's day.

The Bonneville school was to close Friday, May 11, but due to some work done on the building by the CWA the closing date is extended to May 25.

Mr. Truback is building a house at Warrendale on the Warrendale Packing Co. tract. Mr. Truback has lived at Bonneville for many years, but his former residence is being destroyed by construction of the dam.

Bunnie Nelson and Misses Marjorie Logus, Murial White and Vincent of Portland were guests of Dr. Fred Folson and Louie Folson last weekend.

The ladies of Bonneville met last Thursday and formed a permanent organization. The meeting was held in the community hall. Mr. Stan Wells was temporary chairman and Mrs. Dames Linton served.

INTEREST RATES MUST ALSO BE CONSISTENT WITH CONDITIONS

Banks all over the country are temporarily reducing their interest rates on savings—just as business houses have had to adjust their budgets to increase the margin of safe, sound operation. Good bank loans are not so plentiful as in the old days. Overhead hasn't decreased proportionally, and, of course, deposit insurance has now added its expense.

But it is doubtful if any depositor wouldn't prefer a fraction LESS interest and MORE safety for his deposits.
