Four Oldest Members of the House Get Together

These four oldest members of the house of representatives were photographed at a recent get-together in Washington. Despite their combined age of about three hundred and nineteen years they are all very active in legislative work. Left to right, they are: Schuyler Merritt of Connecticut, who is nearing eighty; Andrew Jackson Montague of Virginia, another eighty-year-old; Edgar Howard of Nebraska, seventy-five, who used to be William Jennings Bryan's secretary; and Clement Cabell Dickinson of Missouri, eighty-four years old.

RETIRING CHIEFS OF STATE FACED WITH DIRE CARES

The problem confronting every ex-President is a difficult one. Grant tried to support himself in business with a partner. He knew nothing about business matters and the failure of his firm was a national scandal. He was driven to spend the last of his life, through a long illness that ended in his death, writing his memoirs, in order to get money.

President Roosevelt once remarked that any man who had been in public life long enough to be President had so lost touch with his previous profession or business that making a living of the sort required by his station was often a serious problem. He pointed to the case of Grover Cleveland, who after his retirement after his second term was forced to supplement his income by writing for magazines. Finally his friend, Thomas F. Ryan, obtained his appointment as a good salary as a trustee for the majority stock of a life insurance society, which relieved him of financial worries.

President Taft retired to a dignified lectureship in the Yale law school.

Meteorites Gathered

Six meteorites have been added to the meteorite collection of Field Museum of Natural History since the beginning of the year. The collection, which is the largest in the world, now contains specimens of more than two-thirds of all known meteorites, or 723 of the 1,046 of which there is a record.

HOLDS UNIVERSE TO BE RESULT OF EXPLODING ATOM

Once upon a time, some 10,000,000,000 years ago, a primordial atom, perhaps the size of an orange, exploded.

The resulting fireworks developed through the ages into suns and stars and nebulous groups of heavenly bodies which we call the universe.

That is the picture of creation painted by Abbe George Lemaitre, of the University of Louvain, Belgium, a profound mathematician, physicist and astronomer.

"In the beginning," he declared, "all matter in the universe existed in a small atom. That atom burst, similar to the manner in which radium explodes, and its fragments evolved into heavenly bodies.

"The universe still is expanding, and the day may come when we will all freeze to death. That, of course, may be billions of years from now."

The expanding universe, Abbe Lemaitre said, might be likened to a spotted balloon. As the balloon grows in shape, the spots on its surface spread farther apart.

Eczema on Hands Skin Peeled Off in Pieces

Cuticura Healed

"I was troubled with eczema on my hands for ever so long. I could not put my hands in much water because after I got through I could just peel the skin off in pieces. It would form like a rash and bothered me terribly, burning and itching. My hands were sights and I was ashamed.

"I tried a lot of different remedies that did not help. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it helped a lot. I bought more and now my hands are completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. S. Hammond, 10 Pleasant St., Holliston, Mass., Aug. 13, 1933.

An American writer once said: "The place to take the true measure of a man is not in the darkest place or in the amen corner, nor in the cornfield, but by his own fireside.

"I care not what the world says of him; whether it crown him boss or pelts him with bad eggs. I care not a copper what his reputation or religion may be; if his babies dread his homecoming and his better half swallows her heart every time she has to ask him for a $5 bill, he is a fraud of the first water, even though he prays morning and night until he shakes the eternal hills."
