GLOVER BUILDING TO BE OCCUPIED AT ONCE BY RESTAURANT, ROOMS

After standing idle for months the 2-story frame building owned by Wallace Glover is being cleaned up and remodeled for occupancy by Irvin Wilkes of Portland, who expects to open a restaurant. The building, formerly occupied by the Cascade Mercantile company, has been vacant for several years.

Some months ago it was moved back to make way for widening of the highway. A full basement was built under it at the time.

Wilkes has a 5-year lease on the property. He is preparing to open a rooming house on the second floor. The rooms will be ready for occupancy by the end of this week, but the restaurant will not be running before August 1.

Glover owns a mercantile store in Underwood, Wash. The state of Washington is taking a part of his Underwood property to make way for the widening and straightening of the Evergreen highway. He is said to be planning to build on his Cascade Locks property, next door to his 2-story building, with the intention of opening a store. He will close his place in Underwood and move the stock to this side of the river.

VISIT OUR FOUNTAIN

During the celebration when you become tired and hot—remember our fountain. It will be an oasis, for here you can rest and cool off in pleasant surroundings. We will be prepared to take care of the crowds. Here you can get any drink you may desire. We have one of the nicest fountains in the mid-Columbia district. Visit it while in Cascade Locks. Tell your friends about it.

Church People Disappointed.

Local members of the Methodist Episcopal church were somewhat disappointed with the action of the annual church conference held in Portland last week when the Cascade Locks church was put on the "to be supplied" list.

The Methodist church has been the only denomination to keep open in Cascade Locks during the past few years. Only a few times during that period has there been a regular pastor and most of this time in a circuit with Mosier or some other small town. The church members here now feel that with a population of around 1300 people they are entitled to more consideration.

Rev. Nat Buckley, of the Asbury church in Hood River, who has been helping the Cascade Locks church in its efforts to keep alive, has been transferred to the west Wisconsin district and will have a pulpit in Superior.

"Jim" Merrill, owner of Merrill's Barbeque, has been working a crew steadily in his new dance hall. The floor, 60 by 82 feet, is about completed and all will be in readiness for the 4-day celebraion.

Jitney dances will be held on the floor throughout the celebration, and night when the crowd gathers for the first dance will be held Saturday queen's ball. The dancing will be more or less continuous throughout the celebration. It will commence in the afternoon each day, except Sunday, when it will start about 8 p. m.

The floor can accommodate 200 couples. Ropes are being stretched around the four sides. These will be dropped after each dance and the floor cleared before the next number starts.

CENTRAL LUMBER CO. TO ESTABLISH YARD IN CASCAD LOCKS

Work was started Thursday on sheds and office for a new lumber yard which is being established in Cascade Locks by the Cenetral Lumber company.

Property for the yard has been obtained from the Stewart estate. It is situated just east of the We-Ask-U-Inn and the yard will be on land which in the early '60s was occupied by the James Thompson sawmill.

W. C. Anderson of Eugene, president of the Central Lumber company, is in town directing the building of the plant. He announced this week that he expected to have the yard open for business by the latter part of next week.

The company has yards at Albany, Lebanon and Sweet Home.
