IN BLOOD AND FIRE AND FLAME!

The wheat stands lush in Flanders Field
Where once the roads ran red;
The mighty engines, brown with rust,
Lie buried with the dead.
Across a landscape, green and fair,
Where grim-faced warriors fought,
A peaceful people till the land
By blood and carnage bought.

But oh the night! The whispering night!
And the sun that never again
Will softly shine with the same glad light
In the hearts of broken men!

The wheat stands lush in Flanders Field
And the scars that war has made
Are green and soft with growing things
In many a war-torn glade.
The breeze now sings a lullaby
Of peace that only came
When shell-torn legion paid the price
In blood and fire and flame!

But oh the night! The whispering night!
And the sun that never again
Will softly shine with the same glad light
In the hearts of broken men!

BRIEF CULLINGS

No lazy man can ever be President.

Evil often cures itself by its mere excess.

Hard times make the people hard-boiled.

Women who own cut glass shouldn't throw stones.

Success has no time to stop and offer an apology.

We educate too many critics and not enough creators.

Even cynicism doesn't thrive well in a soil of apathy.

She's a wise girl who can read her future in a mirror.

Literature supplies the experience of life and its emotions.

Some people turn up their sleeves at work, others their noses.

You may pardon your own weaknesses in others; but is that justice?

"Pep" is too much for a man who likes to rest and meditate, now and then.

A popular leader is very popular until he wins and has to become an executive.

When anything annoys you or imposes upon you, scold; but scold to the right people.

The same yells a young man develops at the baseball park he can use in a political campaign.

There is plenty of reforming yet to do, but carrying on reform has become such a doubtful avocation.

The farmer driving a load of hay down Main street is what makes a small boy want to be a farmer.

Some people are always borrowing money and some are always lending. They are entirely different types.

A man who surrenders part of his liberty will presently find the rest of it taken away from him. Don't be soft.

Oft a man doesn't wish to be asked, "What do you want for dinner?" He likes to be surprised—agreeably, of course.

A Problem
"Convict 99, come out. Your wife to see you."
"Which one?"
"I said your wife."
"Yes, but I am here for bigamy."

Small Gratuity
"Now, then, what should a polite little boy say to a lady who has given him a cent for carrying her grip?"
"I'm too polite to say it, madam."

A lady of our acquaintance tells us she can remember when a modest girl couldn't stick anything but her handkerchief on the window pane to dry.

The secretary of state's office reports that 9000 more tourists visited Oregon during the first six months of 1934 than for the same period in 1933. Still searching for that prosperity Hoover promised them.

A senator declares that many things proposed to improve the world should be taken with a grain of salt. Many people take beer that way.

Chinese communists are said to be planning another revolution. It is not known whether this is to be a new one or one of the old ones under new management.

The mortgage on our house has been lifted. They lifted the house with it.

And now they are telling the story of the Scotsman who needed chiropractic treatment. So he went around to people who owed him money.

"Girls who wear long woolen bloomers
Have no fear of evil rumors."

A 14-ounce schooner of beer now sells for a nickle in Juarez, Mexico. But who wants to live in Juarez?

Over the Hills, Etc.
"Was your barn hurt during the cyclone?"
"I dunno; I ain't found it yet."

In the Best of 'Em
Pretty Girl—You have a pug nose.
Young Man—Yah?
Pretty Girl—Do pug noses run in your family?
Young Man—Only in cold weather.—Kansas City Star.

Regulation
"Do you think stock gambling can be regulated?"
"Yes," answered Mr. Dustin Stax; "but only to the extent of providing new formalities for people who positively insist on losing their money."

Knows From Experience
Basil—What on earth will your father say when he knows we're engaged?
Barbara—Oh, he'll be delighted. He always is.

Sounds Like Lying
Little Boy—What's etiquette?
Slightly Bigger Brother—It's saying "No, thank you," when you want to say "Yes."

FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1934

VOTE OF THANKS.

In every community there are a few men who give freely of their time and money and energy to civic affairs. Cascade Locks has been singularly fortunate in that it possesses a number of individuals who are willing to do more than their share.

Their willingness to work for a common cause was manifested during the Fourth of July celebration. In putting over a civic affair of any consequence there is always a tremendous volume of detail work. This work invariably falls to workers who are public spirited and willing to take time out from personal business.

In the course of the celebration the bulk of this labor fell on two men, A. W. Meyer and Vernon G. Henderson. Mr. Meyer is president of the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Henderson is secretary. Both men worked like galley slaves and neither received one cent in compensation, either directly or indirectly. Their only reward has been the satisfaction of a job well done. To them Cascade Locks owes a dept of gratitude. And the town is indebted also to Postmaster Frank Hall, president of the Civic club, who found time in the midst of the fire chaos and his duties in the postoffice to shoulder a portion of the labor that had to be performed.

To these three men The Chronicle lifts its hat, for of them it may be said: They did their best.

With a construction camp on the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railway now housing 200 men and an additional 50 men being employed temporarily on the Washington shore by the Columbia Construction company, business is good in North Bonneville. We are glad, for what benefits one community in the district tributary to the dam will benefit others.

In time the Union Pacific construction camp will be housing 800 men on the Washington side of the river; the Columbia Construction company is building its permanent camp at the mouth of Tanner creek, near the railroad station in Bonneville; the Atkinson company will continue to operate until late in September, and the General Construction company is preparing to put from 700 to 800 men at work on the powerhouse foundation and the navigation locks.

The new work coming on along with the work now under way is going to make an abundance of business for the several communities. Those firms which are organized to serve best will profit most as the development work gets into full swing.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Loudback of Gresham were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Geitner.
