

BONNA VILLA

Reverend S. D. Trefren, pastor of the Bonneville church, is ill at home in Bonny Villa with a mild attack of the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Commett have left their Shady Nook home and will take up residence at the home of the latter's mother in Hull Run, who is seriously ill.

Russell Gage, recuperating from a recent ulcer operation, is staying temporarily with his sister, Mrs. Morris Holt, at her home in Bonny Villa.

With Yumar Matson's house already completed this week, work on three more, belonging to George Carlson, Kenneth Nelson and Mrs. Joe Ismay, were to get under way by the week-end. The latter three are leasing property from E. Enquist.

Mrs. Alno Ferrington will be a Portland visitor for at least a week, as she is taking care of her sister-in-law, who is recuperating from an auto accident.

E. Enquist has started clearing a 50-car parking space west of the Bonny Villa Tavern, while on the east side of the popular inn, work has been started on living quarters for Hal Babbitt and Ralph Enquist, co-proprietors.

Mr. and Mrs. George Linton returned from a trip to Portland over the week-end with the former's mother, Mrs. Della Linton, who will reside with them for several weeks.

People of the Shady Nook community were frequent travelers of the highway during the past week. O. I. Gentry, Ray Griffin, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nelson visiting in Portland; Mrs. E. C. Fesselt and George Herren in Stevenson; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perren in Oregan City, and Mr. and Mrs. Fesselt and Mrs. Herren in Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perren were hosts to the E. C. Fesselt's at the two families' weekly Sunday dinner and card party.

Installation of a public telephone in the Bonny Villa tavern was announced Monday by the young owners.

Dr. Floyd Dodds, his wife and son, Billy, have departed for Eugene, where the doctor's father passed away last week.

Rolph Enquist and James Canner visited in Springdale over the week-end with Enquist's family.

The Dunmire brothers, Ernie and Roy, spent the week-end in Portland with their parents. Another Shady Nook resident, Paul Cook, was a Portland visitor, completing a business trip Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Allen, recent arrivals in the Bonny Park district, were hosts to William Graves and family, of the Clark Cadillac motor company of Portland, over the week-end.

Intestinal flu confined Bill Cross to bed for several days last week, and Jim Braunt for a period twice as long.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Jones purchased a new radio while in Portland Monday.

A fishing boat, nets, machinery, tools and spare parts, valued at $400, were lost by Rolph Enquist in the fire that destroyed the McGowan fish cannery last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shears spent the week-end with relatives in Portland.

Two new cars appeared in the Kibler addition at Bonny Villa last week. Lieutenant and Mrs. William Poulson purchasing a new Pontiac when in Portland Friday, and Mr. Kibler himself appearing in a 1935 Studebaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Donovan and Mrs. Ray Smithson, of Portland, journeyed to Bonny Villa last week to entertain Mrs. Elma Poulson on her birthday. Failing to find the genial lady at home, the guests proceeded to re-decorate the house in various ways and then left.

Mrs. Charles Black and Mrs. Dave Marvin were Portland visitors last week, as was Mrs. Edward Schufulle.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bud C. Winslow suffered a minor head bruise when it fell from a chair in the house last week.

Mrs. Tom Dippery's mother, from Portland, is staying with her daughter and three-weeks old granddaughter at the Dippery home in Bonny Villa.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black enjoyed an evening of cards last week at the latter's home.

Mrs. Harry Atkinson was an over-night guest of Mrs. William Poulson last week while the furniture was moved from the former's trailer home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Collins have moved into Roy Griffin's trailer house at Shady Nook. Beverly Jean, niece of the Griffin's, formerly of Portland, will reside with the Collins' and attend Bonneville school.

VETERANS FEEL PAYMENT WOULD AID ECONOMICS

By M. A. Butterfield

All soldiers, sailors and marines who served 110 days or more in the World War received adjusted compensation certificates. There are today 3,531,809 certificates outstanding, with a total face or maturity value of $3,485,650,000. A total of $1,465,900,000 has been borrowed on these certificates by 3,038,520 veterans under the fifty percent loan act passed by Congress in 1931 as a result of the efforts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. It is estimated that about 150,000 of these loans, aggregating $60,000,000 were made by banks and that the remaining 2,885,500 loans were made by the United States government, principally from the War Risk Insurance fund and the Adjusted Service Certificate fund.

In demanding immediate cash payment of the balance due on the World War veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, therefore, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is asking for the cancellation of a government debt amounting to approximately $2,200,000,000. Such cancellation would place this sum of money directly in the hands of approximately three and one-half million veterans who represent a total of between twelve and fifteen million individuals in virtually every town and city of the country.

Consider for a moment the effect of this distribution of money on the purchasing power of the country as a whole. The men to whom this money is due, belong, on the whole, to the middle class of citizens. They are not wealthy—thousands of them are desperately poor. The general economic and employment conditions of the last five years, added to the disabilities many are suffering as a result of their war service, have created conditions of actual want and privation among a large percentage of the certificate holders. Paying to each of these veterans the balance due on his certificate, an average of approximately $500.00 each, would place this money into immediate circulation in every channel of trade and industry in the country. The veteran would be able to make purchases to relieve his immediate needs and also to pay the most pressing of the debts which have accumulated through no fault of his own, during the last few years. He could pay his delinquent taxes, make payments on the home he is on the verge of losing because of mounting interest charges. He could pay his grocery bill and his doctor's bill. He could buy clothing and food and medicine.

In this expenditure of his money, the veteran would lend an impetus to manufacture that cannot be accomplished so effectively by any other means. Merchandise on countless shelves in stores throughout the country would be sold and the merchants enabled to replenish their stocks, thus necessitating increased manufacture. The factories, by the aid of an increased demand for their products, would have to hire more workers, and the workers' wages, in turn, would also be placed into immediate circulation through the purchase of goods and merchandise of which the unemployed are now in need.

Economic experts agree that the average dollar has a turnover value of ten times that amount, so it is entirely reasonable to estimate the economic value of the $2,200,000,000 due on the adjusted compensation certificates as ten times that sum or more than twenty billions of dollars so far as its relation to buying, selling, manufacturing and increased employment is concerned.

Despite gradually improving conditions throughout the country, government and industrial leaders admit we must "prime the pump of prosperity"—that additional purchasing power must be placed in the hands of the masses if industry is to be stimulated sufficiently to provide employment and living wages for the millions now out of work. In its demand for immediate cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is offering a solution for the most perplexing problem of the day. Our proposal has the added advantage of being possible at no added cost for administration. This long overdue debt can be paid through channels already established and without adding a single new employee to government payrolls. It can be paid without danger from selfish political interests seeking a major share of the money. No single community or group of communities will benefit from this plan at the expense of the country as a whole.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States maintains that immediate cash payment of World War veterans' adjusted compensation certificates will prove to be the greatest boon to general recovery yet devised. For this reason alone, disregarding other considerations, it merits the support of the entire citizenry of this nation. It fits in with the economic plans of the present administration and will accomplish the same objectives with a minimum of political graft and useless extravagance.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the Civil Works Administration and countless other alphabetical agencies appointed by the administration are today ministering to the emergency needs of special groups and classes of American citizens, such as the farmers, the bankers, the unemployed. It is not consistent with these policies that the men who bore arms in this nation's defense in the World War be given the same measure of government consideration that is being offered so generously to all these other groups of citizens?

WARRENDALE FAVORITE LOCALITY AMONG HOME BUILDING DAM WORKERS

Thirteen new homes have been built since July at Warrendale, now one of the Bonneville dam area's fastest-growing residential districts. Curiously enough, in those 13 houses are only three children, all boys.

The new settlement, in what is known as the Warren addition, is composed of, in the greater part, modern cottages, equipped with private baths, hot and cold water and modern lighting facilities.

Another oddity concerning the new addition to the little community three miles west of Bonneville, is that all but one of the 13 men who have homes there are employed on the dam project.

To Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mason goes the honor of the first home in the new district, their's being completed in July. Between the summer month and last week, the latter date marking the completion of the last of the 13, belonging to Officer Richard Ballinger, of the United States guards, and wife, the following families built and occupied houses.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Trebak, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Dunn and son, Neil McDougall; Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Butterfield, Mrs. Liza Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Klingbell, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Slattery and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Art Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Walls, and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. May.
